U. S. SUPPORTS EXTENSION OF ARMS HOLIDAY

New Truce Begins Nov. 1 and Will Terminate on March 1.

WORK ON AMERICAN CRUISER AFFECTED

Committees on Disarming Progress Little Since Geneva Recess.

By HAROLD J. T. HORAN.

The United States has agreed to an extension of four months to the arms holiday proposed by the members of the general disarmament conference at its original meeting in Geneva, it was announced by the Department of State last night. The conference will reconvene some time after the first of the year and the supplementary truce has been decided on in accordance with the general understanding that no armament building should be undertaken while the delegates were trying to find a general basis for arms limitation.

Twenty-five other powers, including Great Britain and France, have also accepted. The extended truce will begin November 1 and will terminate March 1.

Indications from London and Geneva fail, however, to support the optimistic implication in the four-month extension. It is believed here that at least one other extension of the some length will be necessary before the delegates to the conference will have arrrived at any effective agreement on disarmament.

Little Progress Made.

It will be at least two months before the conference sits down to work. The committees that have been working in the interim have made little progresss, and the general conference will, in all probability, have to decide on another extension unless radical progress is made from now on.

American Minister to Switzerland, Hugh Wilson, the American delegate remaining in Geneva for the meetings of the effectives committee was requested by Secretary Stimson to inform Arthur Henderson, president of the conference of the following American statement:

"The American Government agrees to the continuance of the truce, for a period of four months, provided that like action is taken by the other principal military and naval powers, and subject to the understanding contained in the department's note of October 29 1931, to the Secretary General of the League, namely that the proposed truce shall not apply to the construction which had begun or for which contracts had been let prior to its entry into force."

U. S. Building Affected.

The only naval building that will be affected by the truce is the construction of one 10,000 ton cruiser for which $300,000 has been appropriated already. However the following naval construction will be continued: one aircraft carrier of 13,800 tons, seven cruisers of 10,000 tons each, eight destroyers of which three are replacements of 1,500 tons each and three submarines of 1,200 tons each.

This is in accordance with the terms of the truce which permitted the construction of naval armament begun before the agreement went into

Woman Charges Liquor Gangsters Tortured Her

Gary, Ind., Oct. 21 (A.P.).—Mrs. Catherine Blanco Manserott, 20, today told police she had been kidnaped and tortured by two men who forced her to reveal what she knew about liquor operations in Gary.

She said the men were members of a liquor "syndicate" who wanted to know about her former employer's source of supply, and threatened to slay her two babies.

Pilot Safely Quits Flaming Mail Ship

Plane Falls in Alleghenies Near Somerset During Poor Visibility.

Somerset, Pa., Oct. 21 (A.P.).—Catching fire over the Allegheny Mountains today, the Pennsylvania Airlines Washington to Pittsburgh mail plane crashed on a farm. The pilot, Merle Estes, 27, of Cleveland, bailed out and was unhurt.

The ship and almost all of the 200-pound cargo of mail were destroyed.

Estes parachuted to earth about 2 miles from the wreck and was brought to the scene by farmers. The ship crashed 7 miles southwest of Somerset. Estes said he tried to make a safe landing, but was forced to go over the side when flames leaped at his legs. He does not know the cause of the blaze. Visibility over the mountains today was poor.

HURT IN FALL

TOM MIX.

TOM MIX SERIOUSLY HURT AS TONY FALLS

Hollywood, Oct. 21 (A.P.).—Tom Mix, veteran star of Western films, was injured, possibly seriously, late today when his noted horse, Tony, tripped and fell upon him in the filming of a thrilling scene at Lone Pine, Calif.

Several hours after the accident he was still unconscious.

Word of the accident was telephoned to Universal Studios here from the location camp of the film cast. Art Rosson, director of the picture, said it appeared Mix had been hurt badly, although he did not believe the actor was in extreme danger.

Rosson said a physician summoned from Lone Pine had not been able to ascertain the extent of the injuries, but believed Mix possibly had suffered fractures of several ribs and concussion of the brain.

The accident occurred, the report said, when Mix was riding Tony at a fast gallop, engaging in a fight with another actor, Duke Lee, who also was mounted. One of the horse's flying hoofs caught a hole and Tony pitched to the ground. Tony was apparently unhurt.

Members of the cast rushed Mix to a nearby farmhouse.

Robbers of Chain Store Escape in Stolen Auto

The A. & P. grocery store at 1225 Pennsylvania avenue southeast was held up and robbed late yesterday by three armed men. Clyde M. Johnson, manager of the store, told police the men forced him and several customers into the rear of the store and rifled the cash register. An undetermined amount of money was taken.

Encountering Arthur F. Sengstack, 1229 Pennsylvania avenue southeast, as they left, the men took his keys and fled in his sedan.

Screen Actor Freed In Wounding of Girl

Los Angeles, Oct. 21 (A.P.).—Carl Mudge, 24, known on the screen as Charles Morton, was released from custody today after detectives said they had been unable to discover any facts indicating an abdominal wound suffered early Thursday by Dona Rose Wheelock, film extra worker, was not self-inflicted. She is expected to recover.

Mudge was taken into custody in her apartment. Detectives said the actress told them she wounded herself.

BANDITS FOILED BY GAS IN BANK HOLDUP ESCAPE

TAXI DRIVER FAILS IN CHASE OF GROUP

One Shot Fired by Gunman Misses Target; License Numbers Traced.

Tear gas holdup protection proved its worth yesterday afternoon when, released by the foot of an alert teller, it completely routed five bandits who attempted to rob the Washington Mechanics Savings Bank at 3401 Connecticut avenue.

The gas protection, installed scarcely two months ago, drove the gunmen from the bank as one shot was fired at William T. Matthews, 22, the teller. He pushed the foot pedal which flooded the building with gas as one of the bandits leveled a revolver at him and ordered: "Stick 'em up!"

Escape in Auto.

The holdup crew escaped in a Studebaker touring car with none of the bank's money. They were followed to Nineteenth street and Park road by a taxicab driver, who saw two men come reeling out of the bank. He lost the chase there.

Police late last night had no trace of the men, who, they believe, came in from out of town to do the "job."

The car was found abandoned at Irving and Sixteenth street northwest. Fingerprint experts will examine it minutely this morning. It was learned that the license tags used on their car were stolen in Baltimore Thursday night.

When the two gunmen entered the bank they were faced with a large sign on the front cage which says, "Federal Gas Protection." As one of the men drew a pistol, Matthews pushed the pedal under his feet. He and three other employes dropped to the floor as the one bandit shot, the bullet striking the side wall and glancing to the floor.

Bandits Are Blinded.

The gas spurted out from the several jets on the front of the cages, blinding the bandits. They staggered from the building. One of them, nearly helpless, bumped into a parked truck in his attempt to find the getaway car, in which three or four others were waiting.

The car was in motion when the second of the two cried "wait for me" as he jumped on the running board and managed to climb in. The taxi driver, J. H. Bradley, of 1819 G street northwest, followed them in his cab which was parked across the street.

The chase led north on Connecticut avenue with Bradley hot on their heels. At Tilden street they turned into Rock Creek Park. He followed through the park but lost the trail when the car doubled back in the Mount Pleasant section.

Lookout Broadcast.

Matthews and the other three bank employes, William B. Moller, jr., assistant cashier; Mrs. M. H. Buckingham and Miss Margaret Hayes, suf-

WARDMAN PROPERTY SOLD FOR $6,816,500

Purchasers of 11 Buildings Said to Represent Association of Bondholders.

For an aggregate price of $6,816,500 eleven properties controlled by the Wardman Real Estate Properties, all of them located here, yesterday were knocked down to Paul A. Brunn and Milton Schilback, reported to be representing the bondholders' protective committee. The sale was held on the steps of the District Supreme Court after Justice Oscar R. Luhring had refused to postpone the imminent action because, he said, the question involved had already been settled by Justice Jesse C. Adkins, of the same court.

The properties that went over to new owners were the Wardman Park Hotel, the Annex to the hotel, the Carlton Htoel, the Chastleton, the Department of Justice Building, the Boulevard Apartments, the north and center buildings of Cathedral Mansions, Stoneleigh Courts and 2700 Connecticut avenue.

In addition, the stock in the drug store located in Wardman Park went for $3,000 and the equipment of the garage in the same building was knocked down for $1,000. The only step now to be taken to make conclusive the sale is a ratification of the terms by the Supreme Court of the District.

Attorneys for the bondholders' committee declared more than 90 per cent of the outstanding bonds—there were $11,000,000 sold out of an issue of $16,000,000—had deposited their holdings with the committee and had agreed to the plan of reorganization which will now be effected.

The properties have a bonded indebtedness of $4,016,500. The bid on them was $2,800,000. The buildings were variously estimated to be worth from $25,000,000 to $30,000,000 when the Halsey-Stuart Co. floated a first and refunding loan of $16,000,000, not all of which was sold. The bonds have been in default for many months.

Several officers of the Halsey Stuart Co. were indicted in Milwaukee in connection with the part that company played in handling the transaction.

Edge Calls Garner "Forgotten Man"

Asserts Speaker Has Been Kept in Dark Room Since Selection.

Rochester, N. Y., Oct. 21 (A.P.).—Speaker Garner was pictured tonight by Ambassador Walter E. Edge as "the only forgotten man of the moment." In a campaign address commending the Hoover-Curtis ticket and the Donovan-Davison State ticket, the ambassador said:

"Jack Garner, of Texas, has been running away ever since Mr. Hearst and Mr. McAdoo selected him to save the country. At first, you remember, they wanted Mr. Garner for President.

"He has been kept in the dark room ever since his nomination over three months ago, at which time he electrified the country with a new version of just how the Government should be run, a fair sample of which he exhibited, or failed to exhibit, as Speaker of the last Democratic House of Representatives."

HOOVER BEGINS THIRD TOUR OF HIS CAMPAIGN

Spends Day Marshaling Facts for Tonight's Detroit Talk.

HE WILL ALSO SPEAK IN CHARLESTON, W.VA.

Subject Matter of Addresses Closely Guarded; Women's Motor Corps Greeted.

Aboard Presidential Special En Route to Detroit, Oct. 21 (A.P.).—President Hoover tonight sped across Virginia and into West Virginia, where tomorrow morning at Charleston he will start a one-day campaign swing to be climaxed after nightfall at Detroit with a new outline of political issues as he sees them.

With a boom of photographers' flashlights to start them off, the Chief Executive and Mrs. Hoover left the National Capital aboard this train at 10:33 p. m. As the President and his party passed through the rotunda of the station, and again as they boarded the train, a crowd that had gathered applauded.

With what is scheduled as one of the most strenuous days of his campaign before him—calling for appearances before fifteen separate audiences in three States—the President prepared to retire early after working a short while on his Detroit speech. He planned to arise tomorrow in sufficient time to allow for work on his Charleston address, set for 9 a. m.

(Associated Press.)

Before turning Westward last night for the third time in three weeks of active political stumping, President Hoover devoted almost a full working day to marshaling the campaign issues and counter-issues he will stress tonight in Detroit.

Although he worked until late Thursday night and resumed his efforts after but a brief rest, the President prepared to board his special train last night with his address not quite completed. In outline form, also, was a speech he will deliver early today in Charleston, first of fifteen stops in West Virginia, Ohio and Michigan.

Both the Chief Executive and his aids guarded closely the subject matter of today's talks. Conjecture on them ranged from a new line-up of Republican economic, unemployment and tariff ideas to an attack upon Franklin D. Roosevelt's statements on the bonus and other subjects.

Make-up of Party for Tour.

A full staff of aids, in addition to Mrs. Hoover, Postmaster General Brown and Ferry K. Heath, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, will make up the presidential party.

Mr. Hoover interrupted preparation for this third swing into the Midwest to meet yesterday morning with the six members of his Cabinet remaining in the Capital. Several stayed behind to talk with him of political affairs.

A swift round of picture taking also occupied part of the President's day. He was given an ovation as he talked with members of a Republican women's motor corps, recruited from several surrounding States into a lengthy automobile parade under the slogan "Rolling Up Votes For Hoover."

The corps gathered on the south lawn of the executive mansion, led by Mrs. Roy V. Wright, who explained

Two Earth Shocks Felt In Southern California

Los Angeles, Oct. 21 (A.P.).—Two slight quakings of the earth which caused no reported damage were felt in Los Angeles and vicinity today. The second, recorded at 9:29 a. m. at the Carnegie Institution Seismolgical Laboratory, at Pasadena, seemed to be the stronger of the two. Lasting only a few seconds, it was noticed in downtown buildings in Los Angeles and in beach towns to the southwest. The laboratory said it appeared to have originated about 15 or 20 miles from Pasadena.

Insull Failure Is Cited in Attack On Regime.

10,000 Are Told Foes Have Launched "Fear Drive."

Coliseum, St. Louis, Oct. 21 (A.P.). Before 10,000 cheering Missourians, Franklin D. Roosevelt tonight reviewed the policies he had laid down for dealing with the various types of investments, and charged that "the indifference of the present administration has permitted the savings of thousands of our citizens to be swallowed up."

He renewed his assertion that the "administration whipcrackers" had started a "campaign of fear."

"What type of leadership has the President exerted toward the elimination of the type of abuse which resulted in the Insull failure?" he asked as he repeated his call for Federal regulation of utilities. He referred again to the program he has outlined in past speeches for dealing with Federal finances, State obligations, municipal bond issues, foreign obligations, domestic industrial bonds, public utility obligations, railroads and real estate obligations, and farm mortgages.

Wet Stand Cheered.

"I fully know that the tasks before me are heavy; some are difficult, but all are possible, he said.

"The question is not whether the situation could be worse; the question is, how can we make it better."

While the crowd sent applause ringing up to the roof that rose high above the two-tiered galleries, the Democratic candidate renewed his declarations for repeal of the eighteenth amendment and modification of the Volstead act.

He came to the Coliseum, where Woodrow Wilson was nominated for the Presidency in 1916, and where Herbert Hoover outlined his plan for farm relief in 1928, from a tumultuous demonstration in East St. Louis, Ill.

More than an hour before the appearance of the Democratic candidate, every seat in the hall had been taken and several thousand persons were standing in thick lines around the floor of the hall and along the walls of the double-tiered balconies. Several thousand others jammed about the entrances and trailed around the block in queues.

Judge Park Acclaimed.

While the crowd waited for the arrival of the candidate, the hall was swept by applause at the arrival of Judge Guy B. Park, recently nominated Democratic candidate for governor

CHILE IS FORMALLY RECOGNIZED BY U.S.

Diplomatic Recess Is Ended After Four Months of Unstable Regimes.

Formal diplomatic relations between the United States and Chile were resumed when American Ambassador William S. Culbertson yesterday called on the Chilean foreign minister in Santiago and handed him a note expressing the pleasure of the United States in the act of recognition.

For the last four months the United States, as well as other great powers, has withheld recognition of the new regime in Chile, following the first revolution of last June. Former Ambassador Carlos G. Davilla leaped into the limelight in Chile by his sudden appearance as head of a revolutionary junta which for a time dominated the civil affairs of the country. Davilla, now out of politics, arrived in New York this week and is expected in Washington soon.

Yesterday Chilean Ambassador Miguel Cruchaga Tocornal expressed his pleasure at the renewal of diplomatic relations between his country and the United States. The position of the ambassador has been somewhat anomalous since he remained on through all the successive changes of government in Chile

Jan Cerny, a member of the Czech Agrarians organization, is slated to become minister of the interior, while Bohumil Bradac, also a Czech Agrarian, is expected to drop the agriculture portfolio and become minister of war.

Dramatic Rescue Scenes Enacted Near Cleveland When Lines Are Shot From Cannon to Boat Stranded on Sand Bar Amid Heavy Seas.

Cleveland, Oct. 21 (A.P.).—A derrick scow, buffeted by waves on Lake Erie for more than 24 hours, and its crew of four was brought safely into the shelter of the crooked Cuyahoga River late today after one would-be rescuer had perished.

The scow, being used in a sewage disposal plant project, was only 100 feet from the shore when it was stranded on a sandbar yesterday, but dramatic rescue scenes seldom seen in inland waters were enacted.

The drowned man, Wayne Salo, 29, and two others set out in a small boat, despite warnings, in an attempt to run a line from a tug to the scow. Their boat was swamped in a few moments.

John Waljakka, watching from shore, slipped a rope about his waist, dived into the water and seized Salo. He managed to struggle ashore with him, but too late to save his life. His three companions were rescued.

A short time later Coast Guardsmen finally succeeded in getting a line to the scow and it was pulled into the Cuyahoga by two tugs. Numerous attempts last night and today had failed because of the heavy seas.

Early today Coast Guardsmen set up their cannon and shot a life line to the scow. A common occurrence on salt water, but the first time, they said, it had been done on Lake Erie in 25 years. A breeches buoy was then rigged up, but the men aboard shouted through a megaphone they would rather ride out the storm.

Woman Is Crushed to Death Under Wheels of Street Car

Conflicting Stories Are Told Concerning Fatal Accident On Connecticut Avenue and Police Are Puzzled; Inquest Is Scheduled for Monday.

The death last night of Mrs. Anna Plowfield, 50 years old, beneath the wheels of a street car in front of her home in the LaSalle Apartments, Connecticut avenue and L street northwest, is being investigated by the coroner's office and police of the Third Precinct. A number of conflicting stories were told as to circumstances surrounding the accident.

Mrs. Plowfield, en route home following an afternoon visit with friends, was crushed beneath a Washington Railway & Electric street car as she had almost reached the door of the apartment house.

Whether she was standing on the loading platform and fell in front of the car, or whether she alighted from the vehicle just as it started off, are two questions puzzling police.

A witness to the accident, Alfred Lewis, of 1026 Seventeenth street northwest, informed authorities that Mrs. Plowfield stepped from the street car behind him.

When the car stopped at the L street platform, Lewis said, four persons alighted. He told police that he was the third and was followed by Mrs. Plowfield.

Hardly had he reached the platform, Lewis related, than the street car started to move. He said Mrs. Plowfield made a quick grab for his arm, missed and plunged beneath the side of the car.

Lewis said the woman was either struck by the closing door or that her dress caught in the protruding step.

ABUSE OF FRANKING PRIVILEGE CHARGED

Costello Says Mills Mailed Large Number of Political Statements Free.

(Associated Press.)

John P. Costello, Democratic national committeeman for the District of Columbia, last night made public a letter to Postmaster General Brown saying it was "inconceivable" that "the abuse of the franking privilege" by Secretary Mills had not come "to the attention of the postal authorities."

If the offender were "a lesser personage than Mr. Mills," Costello wrote, "your vigilant inspection service would have been upon his neck long ago."

Costello said that Thursday night "there went into the mails in large numbers a purely political statement by Mr. Mills."

"In the same envelope was a letter addressed to Mr. Mills by George R. Fearson, president of the New York State Senate, which also was a purely political statement," Costello's letter continued.

Difference of Opinion.

"Mr. Mills' statement purported to deal with matters of Federal finance, but its obvious purpose was that of airing differences of opinion between Mr. Mills and Gov. Roosevelt on matters that are in controversy in the campaign. Mr. Pearson's letter was an exposition of Mr. Roosevelt's fiscal record as governor of New York and likewise reflected differences of political opinion which have no relation whatever to the business of the Federal Government.

"These political documents were mailed in Treasury Department official envelopes which carry a notice to the effect that their utilization for private use to avoid postage is a violation of law for which the penalty is $300.

"$1,500,000 Penalties."

"Mr. Mills apparently saved 6 cents on each envelope mailed. I have no way of knowing how many mailings there were, but if the number reached only 5,000 then the Secretary of the Treasury saved $300 for himself or for the Republican national committee. This expense, along with the expense of preparing the copies of the documents and the cost of materials used, was added to the burden of the Nation's taxpayers.

"I have been advised that guilt for misuse of the official franking privilege involves a penalty of $300 for each individual offense, in which event it is probable that Mr. Mills owes his Government something like $1,500,000 in penalties."

PRESIDENT LEAVES FOR HIS THIRD TOUR

that motor corps were being organized in almost every State.

"You are all ready to start?" Mr. Hoover asked.

"We have already started," Mrs. Wright replied.

The President posed also with Moisaye Boguslawski, chairman of the Hoover-Curtis musicians' committee, who reported his organization was reaching into virtually every State in an effort to swing a majority of the 1,000,000 votes of music teachers and musicians.

Immediately afterward, Col. Edward J. Proffitt, a worker of the Republican Eastern Speaking Campaign Bureau, said he had reported to the President that "things are looking up in New York and elsewhere." He said he urged Mr. Hoover to deliver an address on economic subjects in New York City.

Retiring to the Lincoln study on the second floor of the Executive Mansion immediately after luncheon, the President resumed work on his Detroit address. For the eleventh successive time he canceled his press conference, scheduled for the afternoon.

Itinerary of Detroit Trip.

He talked there with Walter E. Hope, former Assistant Secretary of the Treasury and now a New York banker. Hope, French Strother, one of the White House secretaries, and a newspaper advisor, sat with the President until 1 a. m. yesterday morning while he worked on his address.

The itinerary of the President's trip to Detroit follows: Arrive Charleston 8:50 a. m., with speech in stadium about 500 feet from the station during a half-hour stop; Huntington, W. Va., 10:40 a. m.; Kenova, W. Va., 11:02 a. m.; Ironton, Ohio, 11:38 a. m.; Portsmouth, 12:15 p. m.; Waverly, 12:53 p. m.; Chillicothe, 1:27; Circleville, 2:00; Columbus, 2:55; Delaware, 3:43; Marion, 4:13; Fostoria, 5:13; Toledo, 6:05; Monroe, Michigan, 6:40; Detroit, 7:50.

The Monroe stop was decided upon by the President yesterday morning. He plans to leave Detroit at 10:33 p. m., immediately after his address, arriving in Washington tomorrow afternoon.

and had his resignation refused three times by different governments.

The ambassador said yesterday on hearing of the news:

"I have learned with great pleasure that the United States has recognized the constitutional government which now rules the destinies of my country. Chilean public opinion must of necessity appreciate this attitude and act of justice in view of the situation created within the framework of our law with the unanimous support of all classes of society."

With the departure of Davila from the political scene in Chile, the kaleidoscopic changes that had formerly prevailed there, became more orderly and a provisional government headed by the president of the supreme court, Senor Oyanedel, came into office.

Under the interim government the arrangements were made for constitutional elections October 30 and formal acknowledgment of all foreign obligations made. These two factors are known to have played a large part in the decision of the American Government to renew diplomatic relations.

TEXT OF ROOSEVELT'S ST. LOUIS TALK

I am glad to return tonight to the citizens of St. Louis. I have been here many times in as many campaigns, and always I have felt the warmth of your generous greeting. I came through here five weeks ago when we were starting on our Western trip, and we had time only for a short stop. The Western trip on which we were beginning afforded me the opportunity to continue the elaboration of the Democratic program in Chicago at the end of June.

As this program developed, I have found an extraordinary response on the part of the people of the United States. As our plans for the restoration of agriculture, of business, of labor and of finance were presented, an appreciable steadiness came over the people of this country who had stood so patiently in the face of adversity for so long a time.

This is the spirit, as I see it, of late October. It is a spirit that is a tribute to the saneness of the Democratic program of restoration. It proves the vitality of the people of the United States. As business and labor and agriculture have begun to feel more secure and hopeful because of certain Democratic victory, strange reactions have been produced among the Republican leaders.

They protest that if the Republican ticket is defeated dire things will happen after November 8. They forget that the only appreciable improvement and confidence in the past three months has come not as a result of the insincere and indefinite Republican platform adopted in June or the agonized note of apology in the utterances of the President and his supporters, but as the result of a growing confidence on the part of the people of this country that on November 8 there is but one thing to be expected, and that is overwhelming election of the Democratic tacket. They realize that the confidence that is growing in the minds of the American people is getting ready to express itself in a vote of confidence in the Democratic program of rehabilitation.

Moreover it comes with poor grace from this administration to lay claim to relief measures that in large part were sponsored by Democratic leaders in Congress.

Attacks Republican "Campaign of Fear."

To talk of untried leadership in the face of the fact that the Republican administration has had to turn repeatedly to Democrats for help is to talk folly and nonsense. It is a childish cry and the people will recognize it as such.

Faith is a delicate though powerful factor in our economic life, and a party that sounds a note of alarm from high places is performing no decent service to the American Nation.

One of the most artful and plausible of administration whip-crackers started this campaign of fear on the eve of the Maine election. At that moment our people were in low spirits. Millions of men who had tramped the streets for months feeling hopeless, friendless and alone were listening to his words and he told them that if they didn't vote for the Republican candidate in the Maine election it would be practically impossible for the administration remaining in power from election to March to save them from dire disaster. The good people of Maine were not disturbed by these falsefaces of disaster. They saw that this horrible menace was only a painted mask; that the artificially created eclipse of the sun was nothing but a low-lying smoke screen, so light as to be blown aside by the first breath of fresh air.

They knew that the fire so artfully whipped into life was nothing but a campaign skyrocket, and that the rumblings of disaster that were intended to sound so near and so menacing were simply the old-fashion melodramatic campaign stage properties patterned by Mark Hanna and Matt Quay, and for these long years lying dust-covered in the attic of American politics. The people of Maine saw through this, and I well remember that on the night when we started on our Western trip, the night before I greeted the citizens of St. Louis here in September, the news came that the electorate of Maine had registered their disapproval of this sort of silly entertainment in no uncertain terms.

All of the good, old specters are snatched from the grave, but the mantle of the giant actors of the past now hang in a shabby and ill-fitting manner on the diminutive forms of these new apostles of disaster. The workers and the farmers of today have heard from their fathers of the old terroristic threats that were put into their pay envelopes just before election. They have heard of the warnings originating from the Republican national committee in past campaigns, and pasted on the walls of their factories just before election, and they are not being scared by these things any more.

American labor has educated itself too well. American agriculture has learned too much in the bitter school of experience to be frightened by any new variations of the old terrorism of the past. We are living in another age. These stage properties are out of date.

Hurling of "Tear Bombs" By Opponents Criticized.

As a last resort, the President and former President advance and attempt to throw political and economic tear bombs among the people of the country. Now, my friends, you all know what tear gas is. It is one of the new inventions by which a few people can control a lot of people. A few do it by blinding the eyes of the many by causing tears to flow, and in the midst of the confusion that thus results a determined minority seeks to accomplish its selfish purposes.

You and I know that this tear gas has no permanent effect; it is the temporary and very painful effect that counts. The tears, I can assure you, are not tears of sympathy, but the purpose of the users of tear gas is not to create sympathy but to blind you for the occasion. No, my friends, the purpose of the panic-creating tear gas which the Republican leaders are now hurling is not to open your hearts, but it is to blind your eyes.

Let me tell you from the bottom of my heart that I for one favor having you keep your eyes wide open, and I for one favor keeping my own heart wide open.

I want to take this occasion to say that in my opinion such efforts cast a deep reflection upon the principles that this country has stood for. The American working men and the American farmers are free men, citizens of a great Republic. The lifeblood of this Republic is the integrity and independence of the electorate. You American farmers and American workmen are entitled by all of the fundamental rights that you have acquired in generations of fighting to a free and untrammeled choice on election day. The politician or employer who tries to deny to you these rights and to use a gospel of fear to blind you to the true facts presented in this campaign is an enemy not only of fairness and sportsmanship in politics, but the very principles upon which this country has been established. To protect these rights men have suffered and died. The principles that have won in such a bitter fight are chiseled for all the centuries to come on the granite walls of our American system of government. The man who tries for political or economic advantage, to chip away these rights is an untrustworthy leader in business and politics.

Property Rights of U. S. Citizens Are Emphasized.

I have spoken of human rights and of social justice and tonight in the confident spirit that the present temper of the country affords me I am going to talk with you about a form of property rights which has a direct bearing on our present and future enjoyment of life. You and I know that many millions of Americans have some kind of an interest in some form of property. From the point of view of the average citizen this interest in property takes the form of bank deposits, of trust funds, of insurance policies, or of land or security ownership.

In addition to individuals, thousands upon thousands of institutions created for the public good have similar interests—the churches, the hospitals, the relief funds, the schools and colleges and other non-profit making organizations of many kinds.

Most of the property of these individuals and of these institutions is invested in some form of long-term security. Let me illustrate: Our national economic life is in large part tied up in underlying bonds that represent in fact mortgages on American railroads, on American industry, on American land and on three forms of American government—the national, State and local governments of the United States.

These securities are bought and sold and it is a fact that the prices at which they sell are important to every one of us even though we individually and immediately may own none of them.

It may be said that they are the medium by which the savings of Americans are put to work. For example, your savings in the savings bank do not go into the vaults of the savings bank, but are put out by the bank at interest for your benefit. In the same way, the premium that you pay to a building and loan association goes in each case into investments, all of them representing some interest in the stable institutions of America.

Many months ago in attempting to see the economic situation of this country as a whole in simple terms and in terms so full of meaning that I could at a glance encompass the need of the entire country, I set down a list of the eight great credit groups of this country. I conceive this list to represent the credit interest of the Nation, North and South, East and West, employer and employe, industry, commerce and agriculture. I conceive these eight groups as representing the foundation stones upon which the permanent credit of this country rests. I said then, and I say now, that the stability of the country rests not on any one but on all of these and that when we want to know whether anything is disturbing the stability of the country we want to see whether any of these foundation stones are crumbling away, or whether the ground underlying these stones is weakened by any cause.

This is the way to comprehend the stability of the country as a whole, and in my opinion it is the only way. It is with this in mind that I conceived the plan of my campaign. It was with this in mind that I ordered the presentation of the various subjects that I have discussed with the people of this country. I made my plan in accordance with this comprehensive picture of national needs. I attempted to discuss these in an orderly fashion, carefully, simply, with system and with a deep regard for the facts. I have not been shaken from this plan. I have refused to be intimidated by my opponents. I have kept the faith with this plan as I have kept the faith with the platform of my party, because I believe in the sound sense of the American people. I knew they would hear me, and I knew they would hear me to the end, in spite of all the fear and all the terrorism that the leaders of the Republican party have been seeking to purchase.

Summary of National Credit Situation Given.

And now, at the end of October, I come to a resume of this subject of credit. I want to set forth these points—these eight credit groups—and to talk briefly about the condition of each. At the end of my discussion, which in the last analysis is a summary of what I have been talking about for many weeks, you will see what the condition of the country is with reference to credit, what these groups need and what the Democratic party proposes to do about it.

First, Federal obligations:

At the very top of the credit structure of the country, surpassing all other groups in moral and material importance, stand the obligations of the Federal Government. These are paramount, because government is essential to all ordered economic life. When they go, everything goes. Happily, these obligations are secure. They suffer only to the extent that government is permitted to be extravagant, wasteful or ill-managed. They suffer if the Federal budget is not balanced, and particularly where the deficit of one year is not cleared up in the succeeding year.

I called attention in my address at Pittsburgh on Wednesday night to the great importance of Federal budget-making as the foundation of the national credit. I pointed out that the Hoover administration had been responsible for deficit after deficit; that as one disastrous year succeeded another, no attempt was made to arrange the finances of the country so that at least the mounting loss of revenue might not be turned into a deficit for the next year. It is my pledge and promise that this dangerous kind of financing shall be stopped and that rigid governmental economy shall be forced by a stern and unremitting administration policy of living within our income.

Second—State obligations:

State obligations constitute one of the most sound and safe groups of the entire credit structure. A State is generally required by dire necessity, if for no other reason, to live within its income. If it runs a deficit one period, it must make provision for that deficit in the budget of the following period.

In fact in New York when we run a deficit the constitution of the State requires us to provide in the budget for the following year not merely for current needs, but also for revenue with which to pay the deficit of the past year. And I have strictly lived up to this requirement. This is the best guarantee of credit stability known, and it accounts for the fact that the credit of the State of New York makes its bonds almost the highest grade of investment known to the country.

Soundness of Municipal Bonds Is Termed Vital.

Third—Municipal bond issues:

The next great credit group includes the obligations of cities, counties, towns, villages and other local units. This is a very large group. A fair estimate is over 17 billions of those local bonds. They are largely held by individuals and by institutions and are properly a matter of deep public concern. The soundness of these bonds is directly bound up with the honesty and capacity with which American cities are run. I have as the Governor of New York State concerned myself very definitely with the finances of its cities. I have exercised what influence I could to keep the credit of these cities sound and secure. I have set my face sternly against not only municipal dishonesty but likewise against municipal mismanagement. And I want to record myself here and now that every public official from the President of the United States down owes it to himself to use every scrap of influence he can to prevent the frittering away of the revenues exacted from the sorely pressed taxpayers of every city in the United States, to the end that if necessary they must be compelled to walk in the way of municipal honesty and efficiency.

I want to reaffirm what I have said many times that while the legal power of the President in this respect is limited, his power to lead public opinion in the way of an improvement in local government can be a very definite and useful force for cheaper and better government in American cities. This is what I propose to do toward the credit represented by the 17 billions of municipal bonds.

Fourth—Foreign obligations:

The next group of obligations comprises what are known as foreign bonds. This is an unsavory chapter in American finance. These bonds in large part are directly the fruit of a disastrous policy pursued by the present administration in Washington—none other, if you please, than the policy of lending to backward and crippled nations.

Flagrant instances of the abuse of American investors occuring under this system are well known. When, after my address at Columbus last August, the Secretary of State chose to come to the defense of the administration, his apology was smothered by irrefutable and devastating statements of facts from Senator Glass and Senator Barkley and many others. The administration has not since attempted to defend the indefensible fallacy of the Department of State with regard to these investments. If we were depending upon these bonds as an, integral part of American finance we should be fearful indeed. But fortunately, or unfortunately, as you choose to look at it, the returns on the foreign bond list have already come in. Many are in default. Others have lost the major part of their original face value. The best that can be said is that the danger is in great part behind us and not ahead of us.

I have already announced the policy of my own administration in this regard. My job will be to prevent a recurrence of this incident and to prevent the hard-earned dollars of American investors from being frittered away in foreign fields, encouraged by the sanction of the Federal Government of the United States, and with a profit flowing only to certain international financiers whose greed is greater than their patriotism.

Domestic Industrial Bond Condition Analyzed.

Fifth—Domestic industrial bonds.

These obligations do not represent major difficulties. They are not widely held by banks, insurance companies, savings banks or the credit institutions of the country. They are largely in the hands of private investors. The amount is relatively small in quantity for the industrial companies during the past few years were engaged not in creating debts, but in paying them. On the great cheasboard of American finance the industrial obligations do not constitute a danger.

The problem of industry is not, strictly speaking, a problem of finance. It is a problem which I dealt with in my speech at San Francisco. So far as possible, industry should be organized so that it will give every workman the right to earn a living through his own effort. Such influence as the Federal Government may have should be directed to this end.

Sixth—Public utility obligations:

In connection with public utility obligations, I am not speaking now of the financial excrescences on the public utility system represented by pyramided holding companies, some of which are already in bankruptcy and others of which have already been discounted by the public markets. These companies that are engaged not in stock jobbing, but in the sound and important business of distributing light, power, heat and public service have obligations which do not at this time constitute a problem in American finance. As a group they are currently earning their interest charges. I have already set forth in my Portland speech my attitude toward the problems of these companies.

The outlines of my public utility policy are definitely in the direction of protecting the investor, as well as the consumer. Certainly the integrity of the financial obligations represented in this group will be conserved to a greater degree than ever before through an adoption of my policy toward public utilities. There has not been so far as I have been able to determine a single responsible criticism of the program there set forth.

I ask the simple question, "What leadership has the President exerted toward the elimination of the type of abuse which resulted in the Insull failure?"

The indifference of the present administration has permitted the savings of thousands of our citizens to be swallowed up and lost for all time.

Administration Assailed On Railroad Policies.

Seventh: Railroads.

And now I come to the railroads: Railroad obligations, mostly bonds, amount to $11,000,000,000. They bear interest charges of nearly half a billion dollars a year. Such bonds are held in savings banks, insurance companies, commercial banks, and similar institutions. In the year 1931, admittedly a bad year, the railroad system as a whole earned slightly more than its interest charges on this entire group of bonds. The year 1932 has not been so happy, although railroad earnings are beginning to show slight increases. As to the Democratic plan of meeting this problem, not only in the interest of maintaining railroads at a fair degree of efficiency, but what is more important, the protection of the savings of millions of persons in this country, which are involved in the securities of these railroads, I made it a cardinal point in my railroad address that the railroads should be freed from certain destructive competition, that the Government should undertake for a specified period to see the railroads through provided they put their own houses in order. Note the difference between this and the program of the administration. Without plan and apparently without thought, the best that they could do was to advance a dole to the railroads month by month as any emergencies might arise, leaving both the railroad and the bondholder uncertain as to whether each dole wold not be the last.

This was not meeting problems. It is sticking financial mustard plasters on the railroads.

There is only one way to do this job, and that is to do it. Where adjustments are to be made, let us find out what they are. Let us arrange for their handling in a swift and orderly method. Let us make a definite commitment that once the railroad's house is in order the Government can stand firmly behind it. Our Democratic plan has been before the country now for some weeks. Experts on the situation, representing railroad managements, railroad unions, employers, workers and investors have joined in almost universal approval of the soundness of this plan.

Eighth: Real estate obligations:

Finally, we come to real estate obligations. There is first a great body of mortgages on city and suburban homes. These represent money borrowed by you and me, and our friends, with which to buy homes. Most of these are mortgages on small homes. They are paid by the little man—"the forgotten man," if you like, of whom no one thinks because he does not beg for help. And yet these men are not only the backbone of the American financial system, they are in the aggregate about the safest credit risks we have. This group does not constitute a financial danger to the country, but it does call for wise financial handling. We propose to do whatever we can to free these homes of the burdens of excessive taxation. I have said that these home owners were "forgotten men." But they are no longer forgotten, because in the midst of the campaign, the Federal administration has finally considered their difficulties. We agree to the necessity of home loan banks, but we shall insist in the administration of these banks that they shall not be subject to the unwise and improper administration that has characterized the Federal and Joint Stock Land Bank systems under which the bank makes money while the mortgagor goes unaided. To the extent that the home loan banks effect this, I shall be glad to approve the policy, and I shall be glad to make whatever modifications are needed to insure that the relief grant reaches the spot it is intended to cover.

Reiterates Stand On Farm Mortgages.

Farm mortgages:

And finally I come to farm mortgages. I have discussed this question twice in my campaign. Only today in Springfield I set forth in some detail my proposal with respect to this. What I said there was an amplification of my pledge in my Topeka speech of a month ago.

I seek definite action by the Federal Government—and I stress the word "action"—to prevent farmers from losing their homes, to provide for them lower interest rates where, as in many cases, such rates are excessive, and to extend the capital payments due under the original mortgage terms.

We have seen too many farmers driven from their homes and from their lands. It is time to reverse that process.

These are the eight great credit groups of the country. And this is, in brief, what the Democratic party proposes to do with regard to each. I submit to your fairness, your intelligence and your insight the case of the Democratic party with regard to what it means to our credit system.

I have taken you over the great field of permanent American finance. I have tried to summarize for you in a few minutes the result of many months of public discussion of the various problems connected with these credit groups.

I fully know that the tasks before me are heavy; some are difficult, but all are possible. The question is not whether the situation could be worse; the question is, how can we make it better?

The financial fabric of America is as I have said before a seamless web held together by the infinitely complex loyalties of men. We must protect it against men who would tear it to pieces rather than face defeat. There is every reason to face to future with confidence. Let us bend our minds and will in performing this plain duty because the unmistakable temper of the American people is going to place this responsibility upon the Democratic party. That is the lesson of the past few weeks. It is the answer of the American people.

ROOSEVELT ATTACKS REGIME IN HUGE INVESTMENT LOSSES

to make the race in the stead of Francis M. Wilson, who died after his nomination.

Rubey Hulen, chairman of the State Democratic committee, introduced Judge Park as the first speaker. The thousands stood and cheered as Park denounced "Republican bossism in St. Louis." Former Senator James A. Reed entered the hall while Park was speaking. He was recognized instantly and another demonstration interrupted Park while the crowd roared with applause.

Park then presented the Democratic candidate for senator, Bennett C. Clark, son of the late Speaker of the House.

While Clark was declining to make a speech, noise from the outside announced that the governor was arriving. The crowd roared as the candidate and the members of his family walked to the stand.

As the shouting continued, Mr. Roosevelt sat down. For five minutes it ran on, until finally Hulen asked that the crowd quiet itself.

Reed Sees Victory.

Just as the noise was subsiding, Hulen precipitated another demonstration by announcing that Reed would talk. The veteran Democratic warrior came forward and stood waiting for silence.

"I think that the best service I can do you," he said, "is to let you cheer for the victory that is to come and for the man of the hour.

"I think that the Democratic party must organize itself as a wrecking crew to pull the train out of the ditch where the great engineer landed it several years ago," he continued.

"I do know that we are going to elect a President who not only was born in this country, but who has lived here. It is time to have an American President. It is time to have a man who has but one country and one allegiance and one heart, and that the heart beats for America."

Senator Hawes then came forward to introduce the New York Governor. He brought jeers from the crowd with a reference to Secretary of Agriculture Hyde.

Hawes assailed the Republican administration and said "the four years of experience with Mr. Hoover will not be wasted."

Interrupted by Applause.

Another demonstration began as he presented Roosevelt, who was interrupted by applause several times as he went through the preamble of his speech.

He dealt categorically with the Democratic plans with regard to Federal obligations, State obligations, municipal bond issues, foreign obligations, domestic industrial bonds, public utility obligations, railroads, real estate obligations and farm mortgages. During the course of his summary, he touched upon plans he previously has outlined for dealing with several of these, assailing the administration as "responsible for deficit after deficit."

"It is my pledge and promise that this dangerous kind of financing shall be stopped and that rigid Governmental economy shall be forced by a stern and unremitting administration policy of living within our income," he said.

"We propose to repeal the eighteenth amendment," he said, departing from his prepared text. He was interrupted by a sweep of applause that curled up to the farthest corner of the highest balcony.

"We propose to lay a tax on beer to augment the Treasury's income," he went on, while shouts of "Atta boy!" came down to him.

Predicts Ballot Revolution.

A new sweep of cheering welled up from the floor and echoed down from the galleries as he ended his speech with the assertion that November 8 the country would see a revolution by ballot. For a moment he stood on the platform and waved to the crowd, and bits of paper came spiraling down from the balconies again as his party moved toward the door and his waiting automobile for the drive to the station to board his train. A little later tonight he was to leave St. Louis for Louisville for another speech tomorrow in a border State before sweeping southward into Georgia.

Roosevelt's four-hour stop in Springfield earlier today took him to the tomb of Lincoln, to his second farm speech in the crowd-filled turreted Springfield arsenal, and a series of conferences with Illinois Democratic leaders. Then he pushed on to stops at Carlinville, Alton and East St. Louis, Ill., before detraining again in St. Louis.

The broad, low roofed arsenal at Springfield was filled with a crowd that police estimated at upward of 10,000 persons to hear his reiteration of the three steps he enumerated in his Topeka speech several weeks ago as necessary to meet the farm problem.

Tariff Adjustment.

It called first for a "properly adjusted tariff" to help raise farm prices, pending which he said measures should be taken to give the farmer immediate tariff benefit; next for an easement in the burden of local, State and national taxation on the farmer, and finally for dealing with the farm mortgage question in such a way as to help prevent foreclosure, lower interest rates and provide for refinancing the loans.

"My friends," he said, deviating a little from his original text, "I can't do very much before the fourth of March, but when I go down to Washington I shall propose to Congress a definite plan for the refinancing of farm mortgages in line with the principles which I stated in my Topeka speech, and which I repeated here today.

"I shall recommend legislation to Congress for the scaling down of amortization installments of Federal Land Bank borrowers when in the judgment of bank directors conditions justify such action, with provision for deferring such unpaid amounts to the end of such amortization periods, and I shall enforce such legislation.

To Help Save Farmers.

"This partial and temporary extension will help the farmers to save their farms in a very large percentage of cases until they can secure a better net income through the working out of the plans which I have discussed for the solution of the general farm program.

"As for those farm mortgage institutions not under the control of the Federal Government, I renew the statement made in my address at Topeka declaring for loans by Federal financial agencies to such concerns to enable them to carry defaulted mortgages of deserving borrowers. It must never be forgotten that the funds so loaned the banks are primarily for the benefit of the farmer and must be so employed.

"Finally I propose consideration by Congress of the necessity for a complete reorganization of the means provided to operate in the field of agricultural finance."

CURTIS PUTS FARM BLAME ON WILSON

Sioux City, Iowa, Oct. 21 (A.P.).—Vice President Charles Curtis tonight blamed the Democratic administration in 1919 for starting the farmers' economic troubles.

Speaking at a Republican rally here, Curtis said the agricultural depression was started in 1919 by a "deflation policy" of the Federal Reserve System "calling for payment of farmers' and stockmen's credits."

Contending that the last Democratic administration gave the farmers no relief, the advance copy of the Vice President's address said that when the Republicans stepped into control in 1921 the emergency tariff act was passed, "shutting out $1,000,000,000 worth of imports," and that the next two years "saw 26 separate farm relief bills passed."

Curtis charged that Gov. Roosevelt "tries to make folks believe it all started in 1921, because the Republicans were in control then."

Roosevelt Silent Then.

The Vice President declared Gov. Roosevelt never had "much to say about farm relief until he started running for the Presidency."

"He (Roosevelt) was in Washington in the Navy Department when the farmers' inflation started," Curtis declared, "but he said nothing and did nothing then.

"I can not believe that a man who always runs his farm at a loss could tell Western farmers very well how to improve conditions out here."

Referring to Gov. Roosevelt's Topeka speech and others in which he said the Democratic candidate has been "telling everybody the Republican tariff is a fraud on the farmer," Curtis then turned his attention to Roosevelt's six-point farm-relief program. He suggests that perhaps Roosevelt had gathered his ideas from varied sources and then dropped them in a hat and pulled out the first six plans he came to.

"I notice that he only mentioned the plans and then said he would bring them up for further discussion in Congress if he was elected," Curtis commented. "But Western farmers need practical help."

For Higher Tariff Wall.

"I have always been a high protectionist, and today I'm for a higher protection than ever," Curtis said. "The Democratic candidate for President is in favor of letting down the tariff bars so foreign goods can come in in large quantities. I am not."

In blaming the Democrats for starting the agricultural troubles, he said that at that time "President Wilson's Federal Reserve Bank Board ordered a sudden and demoralising stoppage of agricultural credits, which ruined many thousands of farmers and stockmen who had been led into expensive production by the Wilson plans for at least three years of warfare."

LIMITED INFLATION IS URGED BY NORRIS

Senator Would Use Method Temporarily as Help for Agriculture.

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 21 (A.P.).—Senator George W. Norris, of Nebraska, in the prepared copy of an address made tonight, urged "some inflation of the currency" as a temporary measure for the aid of agriculture.

Continuing his campaign in behalf of the presidential candidacy of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, Norris said he considers it "absolutely essential," if economic recovery is to be brought about, that the way be made easier for farmers to pay their debts.

"Inflation and deflation are both dangerous terms, and when carried to an unreasonable extent they are equally destructive to prosperity and human happiness," Norris said. "But most of our farmers are striving to pay their debts with a dollar which is more than twice as expensive as the dollar which they received when they contracted the debt."

Earlier Senator Norris invited Secretary of Labor Doak "to prosecute me for perjury if he believes I violated my oath when I filed my affidavit in the Nebraska senatorial primary in 1931."

The 71-year-old insurgent said that when he stated in the affidavit that he was a Republican "I meant what I said and I am a Republican still—of course not the kind of a Republican that Doak is. I don't believe he has any monopoly on the party either."

"But then," Senator Norris added, "Doak is directing his fire at me in an effort to sidestep the point I raised the other night—that Doak and President Hoover are seeking to claim credit for the anti-injunction bill passed by the last Congress and whose passage they actually hampered rather than supported."

Debate Over Earth's Age Engages Capital Scientists

Study Here of Einstein's Recent Theory of Ten Billion Years Brings on Discussion Reminiscent Of Actress' "21 Years Plus."

(Associated Press.)

Mother Earth still conceals her true span of life as successfully as any "lady of uncertain age," despite Prof. Albert Einstein's recent estimate that she dates back at least 10,000,000,000 years.

Scientists have calculated by what they term fairly accurate methods that the rocky crust of the earth is about 2,000,000,000 years old, but that may be only the beginning of the story. Like the actress who always says she is "21 plus," Mother Earth's real age may well be "2,000,000,000 years plus."

Even if the crust is 2,000,000,000 years old, tremendous epochs may have passed before the crust was formed, Washington scientists point out. If so, Einstein's estimate may be somewhere near correct.

It all goes back to the question of Mother Earth's ancestry. Many authorities hold that the earth originally was a mass of hot gas or molten matter, either thrown off from the sun or knocked off by the shock of the sun's collision with a passing star. The earth hardly would have been missed, for it is computed to be only 1-334,500 of the mass of the sun.

If the earth started on its career in this manner, a great deal of time must have passed before the hot mass cooled sufficiently for the crust to begin to form. The crust, say geologists, was about 30 miles thick when the first rains fell and started the formation of beds of sediment, probably a billion and a half years ago. The beds later hardened into "sedimentary" rocks.

The two-billion year estimate of the age of the earth's crust is figured from the rate at which thorium and uranium in the rocks disintegrate. Since earliest times these materials, which are radio-active, have gradually turned into lead at a constant rate that scientists have determined.

From the amount of lead found with uranium and thorium deposits they can determine how long the disintegration has been going on, hence how long the rocks have been there in a solid form. However, this rate of disintegration reveals nothing about the vast period of existence of the rocks before they hardened.

One version of what has happened to the earth in the last two billion years is outlined by a Washington geologist. Originally, he says, the earth was covered by a crust of granitic rock and there were no ocean depressions or uplifted continents.

There was plenty of water, but it first probably existed as a cloud of vapor around the whole earth. Then, as the earth's crust cooled, the vapor condensed into one great ocean covering the whole earth about 9,000 feet deep. It is even possible that it was frozen into a tremendous ice mantle, which would have been 10,000 feet thick.

This theory holds that tidal forces and the earth's rotation eventually caused the earth to become unstable. A huge "chunk" of material was torn away and thrown off into space, where it may have become the moon. What remained of the crust was broken, and great depressions were formed into which hot, molten material welled up from below.

The depressions became filled with water, and formed the oceans, while the parts of the crust that remained are the continents.

That is one story of the last two billion years. What happened before that still remains to be told.

FARLEY SAYS G. O. P. IN DRIVE OF TERROR

Charges Products of Ford's Foreign Plants Enter U. S. Free of Duty.

Indianapolis, Ind., Oct. 21 (A.P.).—President Hoover was pictured tonight by Democratic National Chairman James A. Farley as "whimpering," attempting to "terrorize the country into voting for him," and "trying to scare business to death."

The Roosevelt-Garner campaign chief warned his Hoosier audience against overconfidence repeatedly throughout his address.

"We have the battle won, but we can afford to take no chances," he said.

He called his opponents "skillful politicians who in their desperation will not hesitate to adopt any course that gives even a small hope of turning the tide."

Pressure of Industrialists.

"It does not do to underestimate the effect of such pressure as that of various industrial chiefs who are endeavoring to coerce their employes into voting the Republican ticket either directly by a threat that if Mr. Hoover is defeated the factory will close, or a trifle more subtly by the intimation that the industry requires a continuation of Republican rule."

"A job is a precious thing these days," he continued, "even a disguised threat must cause tremendous anxiety to the job-holder, though his fear is only that pique and disappointment on the part of his boss might sentence him to a term in the army of the unemployed."

He mentioned Henry Ford's "passing along word to all his employes that he considered Mr. Hoover's continuance as President as important to the prosperity of the Ford institution."

He called that one example of Republican "desperation."

Factories Abroad.

Farley said Ford had protested against the "Grundy tariff" and after it was passed established factories abroad, the products of which the "administration obligingly" admitted to the United States duty free.

"In view of this," Farley continued, "there is little surprise that Mr. Ford supports the Hoover administration."

Turning to President Hoover, the Democratic chief said:

"We have him whimpering that our campaign is being waged on unfair lines, and we have him promising, as he promised four years ago, that it only requires his election to insure prosperity and the termination of our ills.

"We even have an instance in one of the President's recent speeches of an effort to terrorize the country into voting for him.

Glass-Steagall Bill.

"He did not scruple to announce that at one period we were within two weeks of having to abandon the gold standard for our currency, a fate from which, he wants the country to believe, we were only saved by his heroic efforts.

"It turned out that the measure to which he referred was one proposed by a Democratic senator—Glass of Virginia—and a Democratic representative—Steagall of Alabama.

"Moreover, it was easily demonstrated that the alleged disaster was never in the slightest degree imminent. If the President had any such information he kept it utterly to himself, for, had the menace been real, it could have been met only by congressional enactment. That, of course, would have involved Congress being told all about it, which never happened."

State's Deficit Is Safe; 'Twasn't Holdup Anyhow

Oklahoma City, Oct. 21 (A.P.).—Police and newspapermen dashed to the State Treasury in the capitol today in response to a burglar alarm.

No holdup men were in sight, and it turned out that the alarm had been accidentally tripped.

State Treasurer Ray Weems made an inspection and reported the State's $10,000,000 deficit was safe.

STRAUS RECEIVERS REMOVED BY COURT

Brooklyn Appellate Bench Reverses Order Against Investment Firm.

New York, Oct. 21 (A.P.).—The appellate court, Brooklyn division, reversed late today the decision of Supreme Court Justice Alfred Norton in ordering a receivership for S. W. Straus & Co., Inc.

The appellate court ordered the removal of the receivers on the condition that the Straus company refrain from disposing of any of its assets.

The appellate justices, by a 4-to-1 decision, also made the setting aside of the receivers contingent on the officers of Straus & Co. agreeing to an early trial of Attorney General John Bennett's complaint of misrepresentation in sales of stock and bonds.

The appellate court also set aside the injunction granted by Justice Norton restraining the Straus company from further selling of securities and mortgages, except under conditions imposed by the attorney general.

The company, under this decision, is allowed to continue business "provided that it does so without making any false representations" as alleged in the attorney general's complaint.

HOLDING FIRM WORK OF ROOSEVELT CITED

Was Indirectly Linked With Slot-Machine Trust, Is Charge of Hastings.

Cambridge, Md., Oct. 21 (A.P.).—Senator Daniel O. Hastings, assistant Republican Eastern campaign manager, said in an address tonight that Gov. Roosevelt in 1928 was a director in a large "holding company," the Consolidated Automatic Merchandising Corporation, and as such was connected "with a slot machine trust."

In his address, the advance text of which was given out at Republican Eastern Headquarters, Hastings recalled a magazine article entitled "Making Suckers of America," which he said Roosevelt wrote last August, and then added:

"I know of no financing that made 'Suckers of America' quite as easily as this particular corporation in which Gov. Roosevelt had such an interest and in which he was a director."

After referring to a number of Roosevelt's speeches and magazine articles, one of them entitled, "Theft Within the Law—Holding Company Evil Responsible for Much of Our Present Distress," Hastings described the history of the company, in which he said Roosevelt was a director.

Does Not Charge Fraud.

Then he declared:

"Bear in mind that I do not in any sense charge him (Roosevelt) with fraud or attempted fraud. So far as I know, he may have been as innocent of wrongdoing as any man could be. He maye have simply been the victim of shrewd and unscrupulous promoters.

"However, the fact remains, as shown by Moody's Manual, that he did sufficiently participate in the affairs of a holding company to act as one of the directors of that company in the year 1928."

At another point in the address he said:

"I should have paid no attention to Gov. Roosevelt's connection with this slot machine trust if he had not written these articles and made this speech from which I have quoted.

"But when he complains about the 'flotation of a twentieth century Mississippi bubble on the sea of popular ignorance;' when he does this in the year 1932, after he had been nominated by the Democratic party for the Presidency of the United States, then I say that it is important for the people of this country to know what Franklin D. Roosevelt's attitude was with respect to these kind of transactions but four years previous.

Describes Company.

"This is particularly true when he, as a candidate, is undertaking to blame the administration for the identical things that a company of which he was a director was guilty.

"Indeed, I doubt whether there can be found many companies that held out such alluring promises to the public and which failed so miserably as this company did."

In describing the company, Hastings said:

"The company of which he (Roosevelt) was a director was the Consolidated Automatic Merchandising Corporation. It was organized in the month of May, 1923, for the purpose of acquiring the stock of five existing corporations. The principal business of these companies was the manufacture and licensing of slot machines.

"This company was purely a holding company, the kind of companies that Gov. Roosevelt so strongly condemns."

BANK BANDITS FOILED BY TEAR GAS ESCAPE

Several persons were attracted by the shot and by the explosion made by the releasing of the gas. Among them were Les Kohler, a merchant of a nearby store, and W. C. McKenny, manager of a filling station on the street. They noted the license numbers on the car.

Police broadcast a lookout for a 1925 Studebaker touring car bearing Maryland tags, 132-187. In it, the lookout stated, were five or six men, all between the ages of 20 and 30.

Silent on Robbery Link.

It was exactly 2:35 when the two men walked into the bank. Police would not say whether they believed the robbers were the same ones who successfully held up the bank's branches on East Capitol street and Georgia avenue earlier this year.

Ezra Gould, president of the bank, said that all of the branches were equipped with tear gas following the robbery at Georgia avenue.

Matthew, whose quick thinking brought the tear gas into play, lives at 805 Maryland avenue northeast. He was married two weeks ago to Miss Dorothy Hardy and is the son of Mr. and Mrs. E. Roland Matthews, of 412 First street southeast. At Eastern High School, from which he was graduated in 1928, he was a lieutenant colonel of cadets and a member of the baseball team.

HOOVER WILL SPEAK IN NEW YORK OCT. 31

Address Will Be Intended Primarily for Eastern Seaboard States.

New York, Oct. 21 (A.P.).—President Hoover in Madison Square Garden on the night of October 31 will deliver an address intended principally for the Eastern seaboard States, it was formally announced last night.

With the exception of rear platform talks, it will be the first speech he has delivered during the campaign in any of the 17 States comprising the Republican Eastern division.

Present plans call for him to stop in Newark, N. J., on the way up from Washington, and to go directly back to the Capital after his address. In Newark, the announcement said, the President will probably leave the train and make an impromptu speech in some park.

While in New York he will make his headquarters in the same Park avenue hotel which houses the Eastern party headquarters.

Madison Square Garden, with its 22,000 seats, was the scene of Calvin Coolidge's appearance on behalf of the Hoover-Curtis ticket early this month.

The thousands expected to flock to the famous hall a week from Monday night will come principally from New York, New Jersey and Connecticut, Eastern headquarters announced. Subcommittees will be appointed in those States to handle the distribution of tickets.

The other fourteen States in the Eastern division are Delaware, Pennsylvania, Maryland, Virginia, the two Carolinas, Georgia, Florida, West Virginia, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Vermont, New Hampshire and Maine.

Arrangements are being made to broadcast the address throughout the country.

HOOVER PROPHECIES ASSAILED BY RITCHIE

Cites "Tariff Disaster" and Idleness; Urges New Regime as Remedy.

Detroit, Oct. 21 (A.P.).—Gov. Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland, in a campaign address here tonight, referred to what he said was a recent warning by President Hoover against "false prophets" and said, "It is natural to ask how much of the 'millenium' he prophesied in 1928 has come to pass."

"If none of it has come to pass, then the American people should respectfully decline to have four years more of policies which have been tried and have failed, and the country should turn to Democratic policies as the only hope of relief.

"President Hoover grappled with farm relief," he continued, "and never has the American farmer needed relief so much as now. He signed the Smoot-Hawley tariff bill, and never has an American tariff caused so much disaster as this one.

"He promised that poverty would be abolished, and 10,000,000 people are looking for jobs. He pledged economy in government, and never has government spent so much. He guaranteed a sound fiscal policy, and the Government is hopelessly in the red.

"Do you tell me that the American people will put their faith for the next four years in the very same national administration which so sadly bungled these vitally important questions during the last four years—and do this when the Democratic party, with capable and experienced candidates, a courageous and straightforward platform and an honorable record, gives every assurance of succeeding where the Republican administration has failed? I do not believe it."

WOMAN IS CRUSHED UNDER STREET CAR

William Rowe, 51 years old, of Cherrydale, Va., motorman of the street car, told an entirely different story.

He said that Mrs. Plowfield was not a passenger on his car, and that she was standing on the platform as he drew up. She suddenly plunged in front of the car, Rowe declared, and he was unable to stop in time to avoid striking her.

Members of the fire rescue squad jacked up the front of the street car several feet in order to free Mrs. Plowfield. She was pronounced dead upon arrival at Emergency Hospital.

Although Mrs. Plowfield is listed at Emergency Hospital as assistant resident manager of the La Salle, it was said there that she was only a guest, living in an apartment with a sister.

Officials of the traction company said that Rowe had been employed by the firm for sixteen years and was classed as an expert in his line.

A coroner's inquest will be held Monday.

Wendel Claimants Called to New York

Court Won't Send Commission to West Virginia Mountaineers.

New York, Oct. 21 (A.P.).—Two mountaineers from West Virginia were told today to come to New York if they wished to claim relationship with Miss Ella von E. Wendel, spinster who left a $40,000,000 estate.

Surrogate James Foley denied the petition of the mountaineers—James Floyd Dew and William Robert Dew—to have a commission sent to Beckley, W. Va., to hear their evidence. They are 83 and 81 years of age, respectively.

Through their counsel, John E. Palmer, they claim to be sons of John Hammond Dew, maternal uncle of the late Miss Wendel. Relatives have always believed Dew was drowned at sea. The mountaineers claim he went to Montgomery County, Va., lived with a family named Linkous and adopted their name.

30 Hurt in Britain In New Disorders

One of Jobless Arrested Says Hunger Caused Rioting.

London, Oct. 21 (A.P.).—A jobless man, arrested today in connection with a riot near the Tower Bridge police station, testified in court subsequently that the demonstrators had shouted: "Give us food. We don't want royal parasites."

The mob attempted to rush the approaches to the police station, where three men were being arraigned on charges growing out of disorders yesterday while Prince George was visiting the East End. Reserves were called out, and one policeman was injured. The prisoner who gave the "parasite" testimony was charged with assaulting a police inspector.

Police in Stratford-on-Avon also encountered trouble today with jobless men. A group of 300 unemployed from the Manchester district, marching on London for the national unemployed demonstration next week, attempted to demolish the workhouse where they slept last night. One policeman was injured and 80 of the marchers required medical attention.

Big Delegations Await President in Charleston

Charleston, W. Va., Oct. 21 (A.P.).—Delegations from many of the State's principal cities, Republican candidates and others are in Charleston tonight to be on hand to greet President Hoover on his brief stop here tomorrow.

All principal State candidates, including T. C. Townsend, gubernatorial nominee, interrupted speaking tours to participate in the reception for the President. Among other party leaders present will be National Committeeman Walter S. Hallanan and Mrs. Gale Ebert, committeewoman.

Al Smith Reports $8,999 Expenses

Cost of Unsuccessful Drive for Party Nomination Told Senate Group.

(Associated Press.)

Alfred E. Smith reported to the Senate campaign expenditures committee yesterday that he spent $8,999.32 in his unsuccessful candidacy for the Democratic presidential nomination this year.

The 1928 Democratic standard bearer said he received contributions totaling $9,000, including $4,500 from William English, $2,000 from Charles Harwood, $1,500 from Herbert B. Swope and $1,000 from Mrs. M. Rumsey. The Smith report was submitted at the request of Senator Howell (Republican), Nebraska, chairman of the committee, who has written to all candidates.

Smith said his expenditures, principally at the Chicago convention, were: Salaries, $606; telephone and telegraph, $150; express charges, $71; buttons, lithographs, $981; literature, $3,500; railroad transportation, $1,053, and hotel rooms, headquarters, meals, $2,636.

British Rector Removed After Morals Conviction

Norwich, England, Oct. 21. (A.P.).—The Rev. H. F. Davidson, rector of Stiffkey, was declared today removed, debased and degraded from the offices of priest and deacon of the Church of England, as a result of his conviction last July on charges of immoral conduct involving a number of young women.

The sentence was pronounced before the high altar by the Bishop of Norwich, who brought the charges against the rector. It followed a previous declaration by the bishop in the Norwich Consistory Court depriving the rector of all his ecclesiastical promotions in the diocese.

Juror Ill, Cleric May Get Mistrial

Muskogee, Okla., Oct. 21 (A.P.).—Illness of a juror raised the possibility of a mistrial tonight in the murder case of the Rev. S. A. Berrie as the defense announced it was prepared to offer evidence that the preacher's first wife, with whose death he is charged, used a nerve medicine containing a deadly poison.

Defense counsel said they were ready to call Dr. Robert M. Isham, research chemist, who had made a written statement that his analysis of a small amount of the medicine showed the presence of poison in quantities "more than sufficient to cause death." Proceedings in the trial were halted today by the illness of Juror W. L. Puckett, suffering from malaria. Court was adjourned until tomorrow.

"I won't call a mistrial at least until the juror has had Sunday to recover," said Judge W. J. Crump, "that is, unless his condition is shown to be critical. In that event, of course, the case could not continue."

Chicago Gang War Toll Reaches Four

Former Capone Aid Is One of Two Found as "Ride" Victims.

Chicago, Oct. 21 (A.P.).—Gangland guns took two more victims today, bringing to four the casualty list of "one-way riders" since Wednesday.

"Fat Tony" Jerfita, 40, race-track hanger-on and branded by police as a former Capone lieutenant, and Harry Lefton, alias Lefkovitz, 29, reputed "fence," were the latest victims. Shot to death, Jerfita's body was found in an abandoned automobile on the far west side. Lefton was found, fatally wounded, in another auto on the southwest side.

The slain bodies of Sammy Dalaly, 19, reputed gangster, and Thomas Kane, former Municipal Court bailiff and beer runner, were found Wednesday. Kane's killing, police said, was regarded as a renewal of the South Side beer war.

Roosevelt's Labor Record Questioned

G. O. P. Director Requests Investigation by Federation's Council.

(Associated Press.)

A request that the executive council of the American Federation of Labor investigate the labor record of Gov. Roosevelt was sent yesterday by W. L. Hutcheson, director of the labor bureau of the Republican national committee, to William Green, president of the federation.

Hutcheson's request was contained in an open letter, made public by the committee, along with the statement from Hutcheson that "the Democratic managers, who have been flooding the country with charges every informed person knows to be false, have gone through the motions of asking that their chrges be investigated some time this year.

"I've called that bluff and asked that they be investigated now, together with the Democratic candidate's labor record, and that an attempt be made to find out just where he stands on vital issues in the campaign," Hutcheson's statement said. "It's time for a showdown."

Morgenthau Says Titles Considered Differently

New York, Oct. 21 (A.P.).—Henry Morgenthau, former Ambassador to Turkey and a friend of Gov. Roosevelt, issued through Democratic national headquarters the following comment tonight on an address made in Maryland by Senator Daniel O. Hastings:

"In those days such companies as the one mentioned were not considered holding companies. It was an actual manufacturing corporation, which made legitimate automatic machinery such as postage stamp machines and weighing machines.

"Mr. Roosevelt stayed on the job about a month and then resigned when he became governor."

Penalties for Nonvulnerable Sets Predicted as Bar to Psychic Bidding.

New York, Oct. 21 (A.P.).—New rules for contract bridge will go into effect November 1, and it is the hope of the sponsors that the nature of the changes will be kept secret till then.

Announcement was made today by Walter Beinecke, vice president of the Whist Club of New York, acting in the absence of Charles M. Schwab, the president, that an agreement had been reached with the Portland Club of London and the Commission Francaise du Bridge to publish the new code November 1. It will be effective immediately.

Discussions of changes began last spring when a committee from the Portland Club visited New York and conferred with a committee from the Whist Club, the rules of which in wrist, bridge, auction and contract, made for its own exclusive membership, have been universally accepted.

Presumably penalties for nonvulnerable sets will be increased to deter psychic bidding. Long agitation for such changes preceded meetings of the committees.

In the last few months efforts have been made to have a nation-wide organization act as the law-making body in this country. Ely Culbertson urged that the Whist Club get busy and legislate if it was to retain its traditional influence.

The announcement of the Whist Club, however, sets forth that a cooperating committee representing all American bridge organizations will join the club in the promulgation of the new code.

Acting for the Whist Club is a committee headed by John Godfrey Saxe and including as members Walter Beinecke, Leavelle McCampbell, Harold C. Richard, William E. Talcott, Harold S. Vanderbilt and ? 'ton C. Work.

3 Higher Officials Of Ecuador Resign

Jujon Brands Their Regime as "Parliamentary Dictatorship."

Guayaquil, Ecuador, Oct. 21 (A.P.).—Three high public officials, Modesto Larrea Jujon, minister of government; Manuel Navarro, vice president of the Senate, and Jose Velasco Ibarra, president of the Chamber of Deputies, submitted their resignations to the president today.

Senor Larrea Jujon described the government as a "parliamentary dictatorship." Senor Velasco Ibarra said he never would return to the chamber unless he received an apology from the chief of police, who he said had offended him.

These developments added to a political situation already serious. The root of the trouble apparently lies in the action of the government in putting 500 unemployed former soldiers to work on state roads. Protesting members of Congress characterized this as an infringement on individual liberty.

TELEGRAPHIC DISPATCHES

Salt Lake City, Oct. 21 (A.P.).—Possibly secure in the knowledg. of their immunity from deer hunters, two fawns wandered into the business district of Midvale, a suburban town, on the second day of the open season today. One remained behind, severely cut by a plate glass window through which it jumped. The other ran away.

Pocatello, Idaho, Oct. 21 (A.P.).—It was a belled eagle, not a belled buzzard, which Angelo Trayis found in a coyote trap when he was attracted by tinkling. The bird, with a wing spread of more than 7 feet, had the bell suspended from its neck by a leather strap. Instead of fighting its captor, the eagle was tame and appeared to appreciate being petted. Trayis believes it is a pet and is seeking the owner.

Long Beach, Calif., Oct. 21 (A.P.).—Jackie Taylor, 3, well-known orchestra leader, died unexpectedly at his apartment here today. Mrs. Taylor said he had been afflicted with stomach trouble.

Oklahoma City, Oct. 21 (A.P.).—Gov. Murray issued a proclamation today placing his initiative petition for proposed income tax revision on the November 8 election ballot. The bill provides for an increase in the income tax rate on all corporations and larger taxpayers and reduces the levy for small taxpayers. The new rates would range from 1 to 10 per cent as compared with 2 to 5 per cent at present.

Montgomery, Ala., Oct. 21 (A.P.).—The Alabama Senate today unanimously adopted a resolution calling upon Congress to resist any proposal to cancel war debts.

Mobile, Ala., Oct. 21 (A.P.).—Miss Merle E. Wallace was indicted for second degree murder today in the slaying of Nathan D. Thomas, a married man, on a nocturnal joy ride. She claimed two highwaymen killed him on an isolated road.

Seminole, Okla., Oct. 21 (A.P.).—While holding her 18-month-old son in her arms, Mrs. Amos C. Bruner was shot to death with her husband, a tenant farmer, near here today. The baby was not hurt. Z. J. Williams, 61, owner of the farm, surrendered to officers, who quoted him as saying he became angry after he had made a futile attempt to obtain rent money or a part of the corn crop from Bruner.

Greenwood, S. C., Oct. 21 (A.P.).—A girl's body, believed to be that of Miss Mildred Hill, 22-year-old Winthrop College student who disappeared February 17, was found in the river today 15 miles below the bridge. The body was discovered by J. R. White, of Dyson, a farmer, who was fishing on th. river bank.

Presidential Warrant Awaited in Insull Case

(Associated Press.)

Andrew J. Vlachos, of Chicago, assistant State's attorney, and Charles A. Bellows, here awaiting the issuance of a presidential warrant for the arrest of Samuel Insull, now in Greece, were yesterday admitted to practice before the Supreme Court.

They had been advised that all preliminaries had been completed at Springfield, Ill., for a request by the governor for the issuance of the presidential warrant. They expect the necessary papers to reach the State Department by Monday, and said they were confident the presidential warrant would be issued and that they would be named to serve it.

MRS. HOOVER HEADS RELIEF COMMITTEE

Newton D. Baker Names Her Honorary Chairman of Woman's Branch.

(Associated Press.)

A few hours before her departure for Detroit with her husband on a campaign tour stressing economic issues, Mrs. Herbert Hoover yesterday assumed the honorary chairmanship of a large woman's relief committee.

An informal ceremony at the White House marked the launching of this woman's branch of the group headed by Newton D. Baker. It was titled the national woman's committee of the welfare and relief mobilization.

In a black dress with cream lace front, Mrs. Hoover received a group of six women heads of organizations in the red room. They held a short conference, and briefly retired to the west gate for photographs. Then they went indoors for tea.

Matters of Coordination.

Mrs. Hoover issued a formal statement on the aims of the new group, "not money-raising, nor the obtaining nor actual distribution of supplies," she said, but to deal "primarily with matters of coordination and the maintaining of morale."

Heads of important women's organizations to figure prominently in the relief movement were here guests: Mrs. Nicholas F. Brady, its chairman, also chairman of the National Board of Girl Scouts; Miss Mabel Boardman, secretary of the American Red Cross; Mrs. Frederic M. Paist, Wayne, Pa., president of the Y. W. C. A.; Mrs. Grace Morrison Poole, president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs; Mrs. Leonard Schloss, director of the National Council of Jewish Women, and Mrs. Mark Lansburgh, of the woman's joint congressional committee.

Mrs. Hoover and Mrs. Brady yesterday issued invitations to 73 women to act as vice chairmen. From this nucleus was to be built, the organizers said, a working machine of from 500 to 1,000 women leaders in welfare work.

In Want First Time.

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, wife of the Democratic candidate for President, and Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, widow of the war-time Democratic President, were asked to be vice chairmen.

Mrs. Hoover, in explaining how women could achieve the "coordination" aim of the group, said in part:

"There are going to be some millions in want, who must not feel it a disgrace to accept necessities. Many have not been in need before, and will not know how to go about relieving their own distress. Many of their neighbors will not know they are in distress. Innumerable sources of supplies will be established. To see that these are sufficient to meet the demands of the area they are supposed to cover, and that every unprovided man, woman and child knows how to reach his source of supply, is one of the most important undertakings of a committee such as yours."

Market Meanderings

By MILDRED REED BUNDY

Pies With Whipped-Cream Fillings Are Attractive as Well as Appetizing on Week-End Menus, and Sell at Reasonable Price.

Fluffy pies, with whipped cream fillings, variously flavored, are begging busy housewives to let them play a part in week-end menus. The pies are making their bid for attention in a well-known pastry shop on G street. The three kinds of these pies—chocolate, lemon and burnt almond—are marked just 50 cents each today. With such a pie for dessert the hostess may be confident of pleasing her guests. A number of Washington housewives depend on these pies for guest occasions, or as especial treats for the family when the college son or daughter pays a flying week-end visit. Other pies in this shop, costing just half as much as the fluffy whipped cream creations, but pies that will also give much satisfaction and save much time for the homekeeper, include cherry, mince, apple, peach, coconut, huckleberry and pumpkin.

In mentioning this pastry shop the Meanderer would like to advise her food-wise readers that a pastry expert with some of the most skillful baking ability in Washington turns out personally the good things one finds there. This pastry wizard has not always put his fingers in the pie, literally. Until recently his work was the dazzling finishing touches, the sugar roses, the saccharin festoons for wedding cakes, the sweet lettered greetings for birthday cakes and the topping for French pastries were his particular accomplishments. Business conditions cut the staff of the bake shop. Cheerfully and competently this pastry baker, erstwhile sugar spinner, and artist with the exterior of cakes and pies, put his hands to the flour sifter and the rolling pin. So the finished article is sweet and fine, indeed. The Meanderer goes to the sacred pie-dough-rolling sanctuary to find this artist, so she knows whereof she speaks. For 50 cents, then, the fluffy pie is a bargain—all parts guaranteed.

Glace cantaloupe, glace pears, peaches, ginger and other sugarcoated good things are in tempting rows in a shop out Fourteenth street way, northwest. Here also the Meanderer found candied orange, lemon, pineapple, limes, citron and cherries, soon to be wanted for fruitcake making. This shop is famous for its nuts, and in the nut counters there are pistachios, pine nuts, Brazil nuts, cashews, as well as the usual English walnuts, pecans and peanuts. Molasses popcorn balls, caramel apples and rum toffee sell rapidly here, too. Already exotic offerings of boxed candied fruits and Turkish pastries at very reasonable prices are arriving for winter trade.

Bittersweet from the Allegheny Mountains in generous bunches at the very reasonable price—for the season's first bittersweet—of 25 cents a bunch in one flower shop out Fourteenth street northwest. Enormous pink dahlias are $1 and $1.50 a dozen there, and the big, heady chrysanthemums are offered at only $2 a dozen. The exquisite Talisman roses and the tight, small, yellow and pink rose buds sell for the startlingly small price of 35 cents a dozen; gardenias sell for 25 cents each.

The selling of 92 dozen of a certain delectable Japanese short pastry from one bake shop in one day attests the popularity of the shop's output certainly. In this same shop, located out Fourteenth street northwest, are sweetened bran rolls, 24 cents a dozen, and the apple sauce cake that keeps so well, a cake that is a splendid buy at 20 cents. Here, too, a splendid food value is found in a four-pound jar of strawberry preserves, Government tested for genuine fruit, for 59 cents.

Three kinds of grapes, Concords, Niagaras and Delawares, large, perfect clusters, are attractively packed in baskets at a big fruit stand in one of Washington's large markets in the northwest section. The baskets approximate four pounds and cost but 25 cents.

Genuine Rocky Ford melons from the famous melon district of Colorado are on sale in the fruit stand mentioned just above at prices quite low for the fancy product—just 10 cents up, depending on the size of the melons.

Sugar corn has attached the high-hat price of 5 cents each to its ears, now that the supply is scare. Peaches, though scarce, are reasonably priced at 4 pounds for 25 cents.

Hubbard squash, 6 pounds for 25 cents, and bunches of fine quality broccoli weighing nearly 3 pounds are especially worth-while items in one vegetable stand in an open market in the northwest section.

Apple candy made in Virginia, and recommended to be delicious as well as healthful, is sold in a sweet-and-nut shop the Meanderer visited. Mixed salted nuts, which include a very large variety, sell here for 80 cents a pound.

Mushrooms seem to be tagged 50 cents a pound in nearly every market. This price is said to be much below that of this season last year.

Pumpkins in plentiful abundance for Halloween sold 7 pounds for a quarter in one market frequently visited.

Telephone inquiries about items in this column to The Washington Post, National 4205, extension 52; or address Mildred Reed Bundy, The Washington Post, inclosing self-addressed, stamped envelope for reply.

SALMON SALAD WINS POST AWARD OF $5

Miss Jean Colwell Sends in Excellent Recipe for Luncheon.

This week's food recipe prize of $5 was awarded to Miss Jean Colwell, of 1701 Sixteenth street northwest, and should be an excellent side course for a luncheon or dinner. Miss Colwell presented a recipe for salmon and egg salad.

In order for recipes to be eligible for the prize, ingredients used in the dishes must be supplied from advertisers listed on The Post food page.

Split six hard-boiled Sanico eggs in half lengthwise, and mash the yolks very fine. Mince one small can of Argo Red Salmon (tuna fish is equally good) and beat into yolks of eggs. Add two Heinz sour gherkins, finely minced, onion juice, tabasco and salt to taste, and one-half cup Gelfand's mayonnaise. Stuff the halved eggs with this.

Dissolve one envelope of Knox's gelatin in one cup water. Heat two cans of bouillon with parsley and a few carrot tops. Strain over gelatin and let cool. Place eggs in individual molds, with stuffed side uppermost. Pour a little bouillon over each. Sprinkle minced celery in each mold. Pour in more bouillon until eggs are covered. Cool and serve on lettuce leaves, with a bit of mayonnaise on each mold. (All of these ingredients can be purchased at the Sanitary Grocery or the Piggly Wiggly.)

OUR DAILY FOOD

By COLONEL GOODBODY

"THE Bowery, the Bowery,
They say such things, and do such things
On the Bowery, the Bowery,
I'll never go there any more!"

The Bowery was once New York City's "main stem," where all the fine theaters and restaurants were located.

Sixty years ago, when Lyons' restaurant was opened, the Bowery was the great meeting place. Lyons opened his doors in 1872 and then walked down to the East River and threw the key away. For 35 years the front door was never locked.

The doors were never closed. Twenty-four hours a day—every day in the year, you were served promptly at Lyons' And when they closed in 1907, they had to nail the door shut.

Lyons' restaurant was known as the "Delmonico's of the Bewery." And well Lyons' deserved it. But neither the foods nor the prices were fancy. You could get a good slice of roast beef, a boiled potato, a piece of pie and a cup of coffee—all for a quarter. And the waiter thanked you if you left him only a nickel tip. When Teddy Roosevelt was police commissioner in 1895, Lyons' saw him at lunch almost every day.

And here is an old-time menu: Assorted cold cuts, German potato salad, dill pickels, olives and radishes to go along with the cold dishes; rye bread and butter, pie and coffee.

Uncle Sam's Home Hints

TIMELY TESTED RECIPES

(Bureau of Home Economics.)

Smothered Chicken.

3-pound young chicken
4 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons flour
½ teaspoon salt
1 pint milk.

Wash, draw and split the chicken down the back. Sprinkle lightly with salt and pepper and place flat in a greased shallow baking dish. Make a sauce of the fat, flour, salt and milk, pour over the chicken, and bake in a moderate oven (350 degree Fahrenheit) for 1½ hours, or until the chicken is tender and lightly browned. If the gravy has curdled during cooking, remove the chicken, add a little blended milk and flour, stir until smooth, return the chicken and reheat. Garnish with parsley and serve in the baking dish.

Giblet Gravy.

Simmer the giblets (liver and gizzard) in 1 quart water until tender, drain and chop fine. With ½-cup of the drippings in the roaster, blend 6 tablespoons flour, add the liquid in which the giblets were cooked and enough more hot water to make a thin gravy. Cook for 5 minutes, add the chopped giblets, season with salt and pepper, and serve with the turkey.

Cabbage and Carrot Salad.

Use equal parts of grated raw carrots and finely shredded cabbage. Mix the carrots and cabbage together with salad dressing until well blended. Add ground peanuts if desired. Serve on crisp lettuce.

Cabbage and Onion Salad.

Shred the cabbage and cut the onions into very thin rings. Season with salt, celery salt, pepper and paprika. Mix with mayonnaise or French dressing and serve on a cabbage leaf.

Stuffed Celery.

Cut the celery into pieces convenient for handling. Fill the hollow of the celery stalks with soft cheese, plain or mixed with chopped pimiento, green pepper, nuts, olives, or a combination of two or more of these. Serve on the plate with another salad or as a relish.

Cheese Salads.

Peaches, pears or cherries combine well with cream, Neufchatel, or other soft cheese. Fill the hollows of canned peaches or pears with the cheese, plain or mixed with nuts, dried fruits, or one of the chopped salad vegetables. Serve on lettuce with salad dressing.

Make a little mound of the cheese on the lettuce and put slices of peaches or pears around it. Large white canned cherries with the pits removed or stewed dried apricots also may be combined with the cheese.

Spoon Bread.

1 cup corn meal
2 cups cold water
2 teaspoons salt
1 cup milk.
2 or 3 eggs
2 tablespoons melted fat.

Mix the meal, water and salt, and boil for 5 minutes, stirring constantly. Add the milk, well-beaten eggs, and melted fat and mix well. Pour in a well-greased hot pan or baking dish and bake for 45 or 50 minutes in a hot over (400 degrees F.). Serve from the pan in which baked.

Cottage Cheese, Tomato Salad.

On individual salad plates arrange crisp lettuce. In the center make a mound of cottage cheese, which has been mixed with cream, salt and pepper, place tomato in slices or quarters around the edge and serve with salad dressing.

OPEN FORUM CALLED ON BANDIT MENACE

St. Marys County Officials Sponsor Mass Meeting on "Black Shirts."

Leonardtown, Md., Oct. 21 (A.P.).—The St. Marys County Commissioners today arranged a meeting here next Thursday night at which citizens of the county may discuss the law enforcement of the section in open forum.

The commissioner's announcement was followed by a statement from State's Attorney John T. Briscoe pointing out the meeting will be primarily for the purpose of the citizens to express their feelings and views. His statement said the gathering would not be in behalf of any particular group nor confined to any group "but a free and open meeting duly advertised."

A series of highway hold-ups and store robberies in southern Maryland during the last few weeks prompted the authorities to call the meeting. A gang, known locally at the "Black Shirts" has been accused of taking hundreds of dollars in cash and jewelry, causing many citizens to ask for protection.

At the same time the Board of County Commissioners today offered a reward of $300 for the capture of the outlaws, and Sheriff Richard Hammett, whose home is about 20 miles from this town, moved to Leonardtown, where he could keep in closer contact with the situation.

In his statement today the State's attorney said:

"This meeting is not called for any particular group, nor is it confined to any particular group of citizens of St. Marys County, but a free and open meeting duly advertised, for purposes of enabling all the citizens of the county, regardless of their sentiment, to attend and express their feelings and views and discuss freely and openly the question of law enforcement in St. Marys County and other matters connected therewith.

"The State's attorney feels that the sheriff is doing all in his power to apprehend the criminals."

U. S. FAVORS ARMS HOLIDAY EXTENSION

force. The United States, however, is still 93,000 tons below the limits provided by the London Treaty.

The armaments truce was originally proposed by Signor Dino Grandi, of Italy, in an effort to bring about an atmosphere of good feeling and reciprocal confidence among the delegates.

MacDonald-Henderson Feud.

With the disarmament conference recessed last summer, the president, Arthur Henderson, formally informed the Department of State of the necessity of extending the truce.

The presence of Arthur Henderson at the head of the disarmament conference has been responsible to some degree for the lukewarm attitude of Ramsay MacDonald to the work of the conference.

MacDonald and Henderson are personally antagonistic since the Labor party disavowed its former leader and MacDonald continued on to lead the government with Tory support.

BROWN TO TAKE OATH AS POLICE HEAD TODAY

assistant superintendent. This will go to one of the other inspectors, perhaps O. T. Davis or T. R. Bean.

Since the resignation of Brig. Gen. Pelham D. Glassford, Maj. Brown has been acting chief of police. His selection was made by the Commissioners at a meeting at the District Building.

The new chief of police, who was formerly senior assistant superintendent in charge of the Traffic Bureau, has no further plans for changes in the department.

There was immediate speculation as to who would be named to the new chief's former post.

His elevation to the post of police superintendent was made possible by the sudden resignation of Gen. Glassford Thursday after he had agreed to a compromise in his fight to remove Chief of Detectives Frank S. W. Burke. He said his resignation was because the Commissioners would not give him a "free hand" in the administration of the department.

The presidential approval necessary for filling vacancies in the Government service was given early yesterday afternoon by President Hoover, before the appointment of Inspector Brown.

The position of police chief is not new to Maj. Brown, because he has acted in that capacity on several occasions during the absences of Maj. Henry G. Pratt and his successor, Gen. Glassford.

Maj. Brown is 59 years old, and has an excellent record in the department.

Widely known as an authority on traffic problems, he has been a policeman for 36 years.

One of his first duties will be to act on the request of Capt. Edward J. Kelly for a transfer to a precinct command. Meanwhile, Kelly will act in his temporary command of the Crime Prevention Bureau.

Inspector Brown joined the department January 10, 1896, when he was 22 years old. His rookie assignment was at the Seventh Precinct, commanded by Lieut. John A. Swindells. Later he was detailed for three years at the White House, during the McKinley administration.

In 1905 he was promoted to the rank of sergeant, in 1917 to a lieutenancy, and in 1920 to a captaincy. He became an inspector in 1925, succeeding Albert J. Headley in command of the Traffic Bureau, then more or less in its formative stage. Under his supervision the bureau was brought to its present state of efficiency, with the entire District under a centralized control and motorcycle service of 50 officers.

In his long career, Brown has witnessed a complete transformation in police methods. But regardless of the increased mechanical equipment now utilized in police work, he declares he believes it is more difficult to be a policeman today than ever before.

Dance Steps in Mad Whirl Of Electrons Are Pictured

Americans Using X-Ray Disfraction Camera to Catch Atomic Rhumbas and Molecular Waltzes at Speeds of Thousandths of a Second.

Pasadena, Calif., Oct. 21 (A.P.).—The various dance steps in the mad whirl of the electrons are being catalogued.

Dr. Peter de Bye, Leipzig physicist, has disclosed the secrets bared by his X-ray disfraction camera, which uses an electron gun shooting through molecules of gas and taking pictures of the gay life that exists in those molecule universes that measure twenty millionths of an inch and less.

Life in the gay nineties is revealed—not the good old days the old folks tell about—but the whirling of bound electrons at speeds of 90,000 miles a second. Then there are the free electrons that do the atomic rhumba at a speed of 1,862 miles a second, while others tango, waltz, two, three and X-step at various speeds between 2,000 and 90,000 miles per second.

This gay life is going on in all the things called solids—metals, woods, minerals, for instance—as well as in gases and liquids.

Prof. de Bye conferred with Dr. Jesse W. M. Du Mond, research fellow in physics at the California Institute of Technology here, who has taken motion pictures of the mad dance of the electrons.

Dr. Du Mond, with the special X-ray spectroscopic device he perfected with Harry Kirkpatrick here, uses X-ray to bombard metal structures to be examined and thus takes spectrographs. The X-rays bounce off the electrons in the metal and this effect, known as scattering of light by the electrons, reveals the dance in progress.

Dr. Bye's work, however, is more basic. He photographs the individual molecules, such as two-atom gas molecules and other simple structures, and actually measures the interference resulting from this scattering. By this means he clocks the tempo of the atomic change, in other words, actually measures the step of the dance.

Each new dance step thus measured unfolds new vistas of knowledge in the sciences, by the clews thus brought to light bearing upon the constitution and behavior of the basic crystal structure of the elements.

RIOTING PRISONERS PUT IN NEW CELLS

Canadian Troops and Keepers Restore Order and Redistribute Inmates.

Kingston, Ontario, Oct. 21 (A.P.).—The 900 inmates of Portsmouth Penitentiary were being sorted out and assigned to new cells tonight after the prison authorities had succeeded in stamping out the second riot of the week.

To demonstrate that order had been restored in the institution, Brig. Gen. D. M. Ormond, dominion superintendent of penitentiaries, escorted a group of newspaper men on a tour of inspection.

After these visitors—the first admitted since the riot last Monday—had examined every part of the penitentiary with the exception of the cell blocks, Generao Ormond took them to the warden's office, where he recounted the events of the week. As he spoke occasional shouts from the inmates could be heard.

Prisoners Wreck Cells.

Yesterday's riot, the penitentiary superintendent said, started while he was interviewing inmates in his investigation into the Monday disorder. Prisoners in the cell blocks started breaking up their furniture and destroying fixtures, and men in the corridor of the ground floor of cell blocks G and H wrenched off fasteners to release their comrades.

There were 40 guards in the cell block dome outside the corridors and patrolling the curtain barriers. Contrary to widespread reports, Gen. Ormond said these guards never were captured as hostages by the rioters.

"It was soon evident the prisoners were capable of wrecking the curtain barriers, and a call was sent to the permanent force in Kingston (soldiers) who arrived in less than 18 minutes," he continued. "Parties were placed in the center cell block dome and no further danger of losing control of the penitentiary existed.

Attempts to Break Walls.

"This was about 4.30 p. m. on the 20th. Since that time we have been in absolute control of the convicts.

"Penitentiary officers and troops were placed outside the cell block looking in the windows. They observed in some cases convicts working to break through the wall between the cells who appeared to commence to work through from the cell block to the Roman Catholic chapel.

"Against their attaining this, shots were fired by penitentiary officers. No shots at any time were fired by the soldiers.

"The convicts are now being sorted out and new disposition is being made of them. That should give us added certainty of control and avoidance of any casualities until the damage to the cell block is repaired.

"All convicts had full meals up to noon of the 20th and approximately 184 had the evening meal on the 20th. After they have been distributed according to my plans they shall be fed in a very short time."

Kenmore is the only home, with the exception of Mount Vernon, now standing, which is intimately associated with Washington in his youth and throughout his life.

COHORT OF DIAMOND SLAIN IN NEW YORK

New York, Oct. 21 (A.P.).—Another cohort of Jack (Legs) Diamond, Dominick Bufano, was murdered in gangland fashion today.

Severely battered, his body was found in an abandoned automobile on East Seventy-eighth street. The knees were tied up around the chest with rope noosed over the neck. Several other gangster victims, police recalled, have been similarly trussed up of late.

The examination of Dr. Charles Norris, chief medical examiner, placed the assassination at about 4 a. m.

The police, in looking for a motive, said Bufano, known as Wicky and as Johnny the Dopey Merino, had aspirations to fill the shoes of the late Legs Diamond. Wicky also was known to participate in the rackets. He was arrested several times, but never was a conviction obtained.

While Bufano was associated at times with Diamond, the police also suspected him of being one of those hoodlums sent to Denver several years ago to shoot at, but miss, Diamond's brother, Eddie.

William Canastra, an iceman, first noticed the abandoned automobile with its engine running, in front of his place of business. He called a nearby policeman. The body, wrapped in a burlap sack, was discovered.

The early morning working crowds gathered by the hundreds about the automobile. Identification was made by fingerprints.

Bufano was flashily dressed—light blue suit, his bushy hair carefully combed, even when trussed up.

The murdered man also was known in the past as an associate at times of Vincent Coll, who was shot to death several months ago by machine gunners as he stood in a downtown telephone booth.

Garrison May Get Job Back if He Is Cleared

Reappointment of Tom Garrison as chief deputy sheriff of Prince Georges County will be considered if he is freed on statutory charges which caused his arrest in Alexandria, Sheriff W. C. Hopkins said yesterday.

Garrison will be given a hearing on the charges Tuesday, and Sheriff Hopkins will not select his successor until the outcome of this trial is known, he said. Immediately after his arrest early Thursday, Garrison gave his resignation to Sheriff Hopkins.

Bids Asked on Nine Highway Projects

Virginia Considers Building Bridge Over Roanoke at Clarksville.

Richmond, Va., Oct. 21 (A.P.).—The State Department of Highways today called for bids on nine road and bridge construction projects, and announced it was considering plans for the construction of a new bridge over Roanoke River at Clarksville.

While the construction of the Roanoke River bridge has not been ordered, actually, department officials said the present structure is considered inadequate for traffic over United States routes 58 and 15, and the bridge probably would be built "as soon as the commission can find the money."

The bids called for today included four Richmond-Washington highway widening jobs, 4.9 miles in Fairfax County, beginning 1 mile south of Accotink, 4.3 miles in Prince William County, from a point 0.15 of a mile south of Occoquan, 2 miles in Fairfax County, from Snake Hill to Gum Springs; 3 miles in Stafford County from a point 0.9 of a mile south of Chappawamsic.

FRANCE UNDECIDED ON DEBT PAYMENT

Confusion Reigns in Official Circles Over Installment Due in December.

Paris, Oct. 21 (A.P.).—The problem of payment by France of the December war debt installment due the United States appeared to be wide open tonight after several days of discussion in the press and parliamentary circles.

The Government, which has been under fire from sections of the press—particularly since Premier Herriot's appearance Wednesday before the foreign affairs committee of the Chamber of Deputies—made it known semiofficially that no decisions had been reached regarding debts. The entire problem is expected to come up in the chamber next week.

One difficulty facing the government is the necessity of asking Parliament for an appropriation to cover the payment.

Considerable confusion resulted today from an announcement that Jacques Bizot, of the ministry of finance, was going to London to consult Sir Frederic Leith-Ross, of the British treasury, ostensibly on the war debt question. Late in the day the foreign office denied that M. Bizot was making any such trip.

From sources considered authoritative it was learned, however, that conversations with the British probably would be held. Such discussions would be in line with the consultative agreement reached by France and Britain several months ago.

La Liberte, Nationalist newspaper, opened a campaign against the December payment to the United States on the ground that France has not received reparations from Germany.

Richard F. Carman, trainer of the Nevada Stock Farms, racing stable and one of the best known horse trainers in the country, yesterday lost in District Supreme Court his fight to retain the custody of his 11-year-old son, Edward H. Carman.

The mother had come here from her western home to begin the court battle for her son. Through Attorney John Paul Jones, Mrs. Carman contended that she should have the boy.

The Carmans were divorced in Juarez, Mexico May 25. Mr. Carman remarried in June, and he and his present wife make their home at the Broadmoor Apartments, while the stable of which he has charge is racing at Laurel.

RIOTING THREAT SEEN BY NORMAN THOMAS

Cites Drift to Violence in Upholding Program of Socialists Here.

(Associated Press.)

A prediction that unless the Socialist unemployment relief program is adopted "we will have starvation and riots next winter" was made yesterday by Norman Thomas, Socialist candidate for President.

Speaking at a National Press Club luncheon, Mr. Thomas said "the drift of the times is to great violence."

He described as "practicable" the Socialist program which calls for a $5,000,000,000 outlay for direct unemployment relief, appropriation of a like amount for public construction and ultimate establishment of unemployment insurance and old age pensions.

He urged a capital levy on wealth which he described as one which "might be immensely beneficial." Controlled inflation he said was "possible."

Deploring the "degradation of politics," Thomas said "the outstanding fact in America is that thers aren't enough Americans who have faith in either major political party to fill a room as large as this."

Thomas said the Socialist party is "making headway" and forecast a "big vote" for t in November. The Socialist movement, he added, "is growing remarkably" in .he colleges.

"There is nothing so pathetic," Thomas continued, "as the bankruptcy of so-called progressivism," which he said was active between elections only.

He said no one has ever "succeeded in becoming a progressive so cheaply as Franklin D. Roosevelt," Democratic presidential candidate.

There were 14,819 Democrats and 11,689 Republicans numbered among the total county registration of 27,237, according to Samuel A. Wyville, clerk to the election supervisors. There are 730 voters registered as members of minor parties or unaffiliated.

A FARM SUBSIDY?

For the third time during his campaign Gov. Roosevelt discussed farm relief in his address at Springfield, Ill. Only one new thought was introduced in addition to what he said at Topeka and Sioux City. The gravamen of his entire address was expressed in these words:

> First, the Federal Government owes it to agriculture to see that it gets a fair price for its products. That means that the price of farm products must be raised above the present ruinous low levels to which they have fallen.

To say that the Government owes agriculture a fair price for its products is practically equivalent to saying that the Government owes the farmer a living. Why just the farmer? If this principle is to be accepted, wouldn't the Government also owe it to labor to see that it gets a fair wage for its services? Would not the Government also be obligated to guarantee business a fair return upon its capital? In his enthusiasm to promise something worth while to the farmer, Gov. Roosevelt has slipped over the edge of practical economics into the morass of socialism.

Gov. Roosevelt is among the most vociferous critics of the stabilization policy carried out by the Farm Board. When farmers refused to cooperate by reducing their crops, the board completely failed in its effort to maintain prices. There is no reason to believe that Gov. Roosevelt has a magic formula by which he could guarantee a profit to the farmer. It is cruel to lead farmers into the belief that Uncle Sam will underwrite their business.

The governor suggests that "a properly adjusted tariff can do much in this direction, but the present tariff policies of the Republican administration have done precisely the opposite." The 1930 tariff act gives the farmer far more protection than he has ever had before and most agricultural products are already well protected against foreign competition, except the dumping of some countries that are off the gold standard. Gov. Roosevelt has intimated in his other speeches that he would not disturb this protection for agriculture, although he persists in denouncing the law by which it is accomplished. Apparently he has in mind reduction of industrial tariffs in an effort to extend the foreign markets available to the American farmer.

The Roosevelt plan of thus extending foreign agricultural markets makes especially ominous his theory that the Government owes the farmer a fair price for his crops. Most American farmers can not sell on the world market, except at prices below the cost of production. Does Gov. Roosevelt mean to say that the Government should make up the difference between the export prices available to farmers and what he terms a "fair price" in the United States? If so, it would be the most gigantic dole ever given to any group of citizens by any government.

Gov. Roosevelt did not make clear his intentions in this regard. He only hints that he favors a subsidy for agriculture in the nature of the export debenture plan. Yet his unequivocal statement that the Government "owes it to agriculture to see that it gets a fair price for its products" leaves little ground for doubting that some such plan is in his program.

It is difficult to see how Gov. Roosevelt can complain at the tactics of Republican campaigners who are attempting to frighten the electorate, when he proposes dangerous ventures of this kind. The governor's own words are sufficient to strike fear into the hearts of those citizens who sense the dangers of a governmental guarantee of prices.

THE CHIEF OF POLICE.

Inspector Ernest W. Brown becomes superintendent of the Metropolitan Police Department as successor to Gen. Glassford. The District Commissioners have made a good choice.

The new superintendent of police has had 36 years' service. His record, from rookie to inspector and senior assistant superintendent, is not only unblemished, but is marked by numerous citations for especially good work. Beginning his police duties at 22 years of age, he is now 59, with five years more to serve before retirement.

For two good reasons it is desirable that the chief of police should be selected from the department personnel. First, the promotion of an officer to the head of the department encourages the entire force and promotes faithful service by holding out the hope of the highest reward. Second, the public obtains the benefit of long experience when a trained officer is made superintendent. No chief lacking local knowledge and experience could be expected to cope successfully with the problems arising in the National Capital.

Supt. Brown has always attended strictly to his duties. He is not a politician, and the fact that his name has not filled the newspapers is to his credit. A fair and square administration, without accompaniments of sensational publicity stunts, is in prospect. For this the public is grateful in advance. The new superintendent has the best wishes of the force and the people as he enters upon his duties.

PROSPERITY BEGINS AT HOME.

On the basis of quiet and impartial common sense, Ambassador Mellon's address at Manchester, England, is one of the best analyses that have been made of the American political situation. Mr. Mellon assumed an attitude of almost complete detachment. His seasoned comments were not affected by the political maelstrom that is surging on this side of the Atlantic. In Great Britain it sounds ridiculous, of course, to hear some Americans blaming their President for a world-wide depression. Starting from that viewpoint, Ambassador Mellon was able to give a calm and unbiased analysis of the campaign and its fundamental issues.

Ambassador Mellon was at his best when discussing world trade. His comments are a potent suggestion that politicians in the heat of the campaign are talking too much about petty factors and neglecting the broader viewpoint, which alone is worthy of consideration in planning for the future. World trade will begin to flow again when domestic business is revived and each country is in a position to go ahead with its normal economic activity. "Of even greater importance than leveling trade barriers," says Ambassador Mellon, "is the building up of purchasing power, and in the case of the United States this can be done only by giving preference to our own industries in our domestic market as you and other nations are finding it advisable to do with respect to your own trade."

What could be gained, even from the international viewpoint, by the destruction of American industries in order to give foreign enterprises greater privileges in the American market? The industry of this country is so diversified, says Mr. Mellon, and its market is so extensive "that any tariff bargaining into which we might enter for the benefit of certain industries would inevitably be at the expense of other industries." From the long-range point of view the impairment of American purchasing power, which has been acquired through the industry and genius of this people, would be a calamity for the whole world.

Ambassador Mellon's advice on this point is so practical and sound that it should make a broad appeal in this and other countries. He said:

> Our first concern must be to restore prosperity within our own borders and to build up the consumption capacity of our own people. If we in America can do that by means of our tariff and you can do the same thing for Great Britain by your agreements at Ottawa, then let us wish each other well and enter upon a friendly race to see which can do the most for our own people, knowing that in each country increased prosperity must inevitably have a favorable effect on the other and the rest of the world also.

That is the fundamental philosophy on which the existing civilization is based. If the United States should undertake to accord all enterprises throughout the world equal opportunities with American industry, the result would not be universal prosperity but a collapse of the standard of living which this country has attained. Each country must develop its own purchasing power in the most advantageous way that is open to it. No country can expect to become prosperous through exploitation of markets developed by its neighbors.

A little more attention to these fundamental conceptions of national economy would rule out much of the stupid wrangling about trade barriers in the present campaign.

WAR ON CANCER.

One of the largest groups of cancer specialists ever assembled is meeting this week at St. Louis under the auspices of the American College of Surgeons. It is encouraging to note their reports of progress.

The war against cancer is being pushed forward on two fronts. The first is that of experimentation and research. Scientists are trying every conceivable metal, serum and extract in the search for a cancer cure. But they have found very little to give them encouragement. They have not yet discovered any marked and constant difference between the cancer cell and the normal cell. Dr. Francis Carter Wood, director of cancer research at Columbia University, thinks that until this secret has been uncovered vague searching for a cancer cure is a waste of time. Yet research goes on in the hope that some one somewhere will hit upon a remedy.

From the clinics where cancer is being treated the reports are more hopeful. Cancer specialists who are not confronted with finding a cure for the disease, but with saving the lives of cancer victims by the best methods at their command, are making notable progress. More than 8,800 cases in which cures have been effected, without any recurrence over a five-year period, are known to the doctors attending the cancer symposium at St. Louis. This is not a large number out of the 150,000 who die of cancer in the United States and Canada each year, but the cures are growing.

The doctors agree that if every person over 35 years of age would have a thorough physical examination every six months the cancer problem would be largely solved. In other words, cancer is definitely curable—in its early stages. Well-trained physicians are able to detect cancer before it becomes dangerous. The victims themselves are frequently able to discover the disease. The specialists advise every individual over 35 to be suspicious of every unusual lump upon the body as well as chronic indigestion, even though these symptoms may appear trivial.

The necessity for periodic examinations to avoid the dangers of cancer should stimulate the growth of health clinics. One reason why so few people take regular physical examinations is because of the lack of established facilities for that purpose. A nation-wide system of health centers where a person could obtain a competent examination at a reasonable fee might cut down the toll of cancer by half and prevent an untold amount of sickness and death from other causes.

Some one suggests that the Republicans and Democrats ought to agree to let the athletes stay home. Any reflection on medicine ball?

Henry Ford is big enough to advocate the election of President Hoover, even though automobiles don't need tariff protection.

DON'T DROP THE PILOT

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: If we will disregard all appeals to our emotions and prejudices and are guided by plain logic, reason and old-fashioned business gumption, the reelection of President Hoover is assured. Our 40,000,000 or more voters are the stockholders of this great concern, known the world over as the U. S. A. On November 8 they are to choose a president and a board of directors (members of Congress). If there are any good and sufficient reasons for ousting the present manager of this big corporation they have not yet been published. If there is any man who is better qualified by natural gifts or long experience to handle this difficult job right now he has not yet appeared on the scene.

President Hoover has proved an able chief executive, in the most trying times that any President ever wrestled with, in times of peace. He will be a more valuable manager the coming four years. He could not help being so after the grilling of adverse conditions during his first term. Like the hard knocks of early poverty, that is an education which only actual experience can give. He now knows what to do and what not to do; when to speak and when to maintain silence. He is not burdened with any delusions or theories. No one is better equipped to guide the ship of state out of the troubled waters than Herbert Hoover. Self-preservation, the first law of nature, urges us to stand by the captain, whose skillful navigation has brought us safely through the storm and is now avoiding the rocks, as we enter more peaceful waters.

In his heroic struggle, in which vast public and private resources have been mobilized, the President has won a great battle and deserves the approval of the citizens of all political parties. If that is given him on November 8 he can give his undivided attention to the general welfare.

As Frank Vanderlip remarked recently, "Any new President begins to think about reelection while sipping his coffee on March 5." This hindrance to full time for constructive work will not hamper a President serving his second term. Let us give President Hoover that golden opportunity.

As a Republican, who voted for Grover Cleveland and Woodrow Wilson, I make my appeal to conservative members of the Democratic party as well as those of Republican faith.

The above few simple facts are all we need to consider at this critical time. All carping criticism can well be brushed aside, as of little consequence and of no survival value. What every one desires is more jobs, more income and greater general prosperity. We are confronted with no easy task, even with the ablest executive in the White House.

This is the time to read again the lines of Longfellow's great poem, "The Building of the Ship," where he says:

> "Thou, too, sail on, O Ship of State,
> Sail on, O Union, strong and great.
> Humanity with all its fears,
> With all its hopes of future years,
> Is hanging breathless on thy fate.
> We know what master laid thy keel,
> What workmen wrought thy ribs of steel,
> Who made each mast, and sail and rope,
> What anvils rang, what hammers beat,
> In what a forge and what a heat
> Were shaped the anchors of thy hope.
> Fear not each sudden sound and shock,
> 'Tis of the wave and not the rock.
> 'Tis but the flapping of a sail,
> And not a rent made by the gale.
> In spite of rock and tempest's roar,
> In spite of false lights on the shore,
> Sail on, nor fear to breast the sea.
> Our hearts, our hopes are all with thee.
> Our hearts, our hopes, our prayers, our tears,
> Our faith triumphant o'er our fears,
> Are all with thee—are all with thee."

Yes, we know our pilot, with iron nerve and undaunted courage, has steered our U. S. ship of state within sight of a port of safety and through an economic tempest of such fury that it threatened utter destruction. Shall we drop that pilot now? Not, unless we are devoid of all sense of gratitude and loyalty. The heart of America has praised and blessed Herbert Hoover on many former occasions. This is the time of all times to stand by him. POST HASTE.

A good many of Gov. Roosevelt's generalities do not glitter as much as they did the first few times they were mixed.

After reading Montagu Norman's floundering attempt to explain that he doesn't know what's the matter with the world or how to cure it, the wonder is that he ever broke his rule of silence.

Gov. Roosevelt says a balanced budget must be disregarded when Federal relief funds are needed. Is this a bonus loophole?

When Senator Borah hears that a little town out in the State of Washington made a profit on an issue of wooden money he will be embarrassed that he proposed only five billions of fiat for the Nation.

It will be an exhibition worth witnessing if Gov. Roosevelt is ever called upon to adjust tariff schedules to fit his sliding scale of promises.

According to the Farley headquarters to portray the dangers of not having a change is quite O. K., but to suggest the dangers of a change is a panic K. O.

Senator Norris is using Jonah metaphors, but his progressives will turn out to be a whale of a dose for Democrats to swallow.

In dangerous contradiction Colombia and Peru are talking peace and preparing for war. They had better take a look at Bolivia and Paraguay and not go loco.

Some folks are dumb. They can't see how the country is going to be saved by spending three billions for beer to provide a half billion revenue.

Gov. Roosevelt has a superstition about not changing hats during a campaign. He knows that headsets must get accustomed to the transmission of party talk.

Harvard brewing stock is being offered in Washington. Security for profits might be assured by promising to keep them under a Yale lock.

Talk of lowering tariff barriers, when so many foreign products are already nimbly leaping them, is a Franklinstein.

That sigh of relief you heard from New York came from Chairman Farley when Mr. Raskob said his $25,000 contribution could be used as cash and not applied "on account."

GOOD AND EVIL.

I find it difficult to say
That all of life is good;
The best and worst of every day
Is little understood.
For that delight o'er which we smile
And strive so hard to keep Shall in a very little while
As surely make us weep.

Perhaps the pain which burns us now
Tomorrow's joy may bring.
Yet who would call the throbbing brow
A necessary thing?
And who is bold enough to say
To scatter hurt we should,
Because the future has a way
Of making evil good?

'Tis only certain that we go
Along the path of years
To joys that we shall smile to know,
To pain, and care and tears;
And this is all that we can say
About life's changing stage,
There is a boon for every day,
A bliss for every age.

Another Letter From a Bald-Headed Dad to His Flapper Daughter

By ROBERT QUILLEN

MY DEAR LOUISE:—Yesterday I noticed, for the first time, that you have learned the feminine trick of making your smile say one thing while your eyes are saying another.

It is a useful trick when some bore has you in a corner, but eventually it will cost you a great deal more than it is worth.

Quit it now before it becomes a habit.

You didn't develop it intentionally, but as a kind of instinctive defense. You were caught in a situation where you were in duty bound to appear interested though you felt no interest at all. And rather than seem impolite, you assumed a smile that indicated pleased attention and wore it as camouflage while your wits went wool-gathering.

Nearly everybody in a similar situation does the same thing. But patient mothers, middle-aged spinsters who teach school and the wives of big-talking men use this method of defense so often that it becomes second nature and then they begin to lose friends.

They never listen to anybody. Merely pretending to listen has become a fixed habit they can not break. The moment another person begins to talk, they assume their mechanical smile to show how interested they are and at once begin to think of something else.

But they don't fool anybody. The smile is too obviously a fake. The dullness of their eyes gives them away. And the person who is trying to interest them feels a just resentment.

Good manners, however they may be defined, have the same intent and purpose in all lands. The purpose is to please the other fellow and make him feel that he is a person of consequence.

One way to make him feel that way is to listen while he talks. If you fail to listen, you seem rude. And you double the rudeness if you merely pretend to listen and thus indicate your belief that he is simple enough to be fooled by your pretense.

Better avoid play-acting, Honey. Either listen courteously and intelligently or frankly turn your back. A frozen smile of pretended interest is more offensive than a yawn.

Press Comment Upon Acts and Actors in the Great American Show, "Politics."

Swanson Would Object.
New York Herald Tribune.

Intimation by Senator Robinson, Democratic leader in the Senate, that desertion of President Hoover by his colleagues of the so-called progressive group in the Republican party might save their committee chairmanships in case the Democrats organize the upper house in December would seem a not unattractive lure. We think, however, Mr. Robinson might find it difficult to carry out his suggestion. For the very reason that Senator Borah would be desolate at the thought of giving up the chairmanship of the committee on foreign relations it would be difficult to persuade Senator Swanson, of Virginia, ranking Democrat on the committee, that the place should not go to him in case of reorganization. We rather feel that Mr. Borah is altogether too hard-headed an individual to be carried away by any such vague suggestion. The same is true of Senators La Follette, Norbeck, Cousens, Blaine and others for whose favor Senator Robinson evidently was angling.

Garner Made Party Program.
Kansas City Star.

Some of the Democratic orators are asking why it is that Mr. Garner has become a particular target for opposition speakers. Mr. Garner, they say, is not running for President. But, regardless of how Mr. Garner may feel on the latter point, it must be taken into account that the Speaker of the House has been the leader of his party in its program of legislation and that, by accepting Mr. McAdoo's trade and nominating the Speaker for the Vice Presidency, the party itself indorsed that program of legislation. The program has not been repudiated, even by the present head of the party ticket. Hence, acceptance of the invitation to take particular note of Mr. Garner—if that answers the question of the orators.

In the Homestretch.
Topeka Capital.

When the Republican party gets its dander up it is a formidable fighter. Prior to the Maine vote there was no sign of a campaign. But following President Hoover's fighting speech at Des Moines the Republican party woke up to the fact that it has a leader worth fighting for. The party is making the best battle today it has made since 1896, when it was licked in September, but won a notable victory in November, with lasting benefits to the Nation. Republicans are hard at work in every precinct north of Mason and Dixon's line. They are carrying the battle to the opposition.

In Illinois it is said that a month ago the Republicans were beaten 300,000 votes. Now Illinois Republicans declare that in Chicago and downState steady gains have been made ever since the Des Moines speech, which both by friends and foes of the Hoover-Curtis ticket is recognized as the critical event of the national presidential contest. It is not unlikely that Illinois will cast the electoral vote that will measure the majority, either way, in the electoral college.

Moses on the Bonus.
Portland Press Herald.

Senator Moses, of New Hampshire, was asked by the commander of the New Hampshire department of the Veterans of Foreign Wars if he would vote for the soldiers' bonus. Senator Moses replied: "If my vote for the bonus is the price of my continuance in the Senate, I deem the price too high and will not pay it."

Once an American senator won undying fame by declaring at a critical period of the Nation's history: "Millions for defense but not one cent for tribute." The declaration of Senator Moses is worthy of being written on the pages of history alongside of Pinckney's declaration.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Reader Appreciates "Letters to the Editor," and Sends Good Ones Himself Occasionally.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: There is probably no department of your valuable paper that is more illuminating than "Letters to the Editor." True enough, we are often impressed that it is merely a combination of "jangling voices," but through them, after all, the light flickers.

For instance, Dr. G. M. Fisher, of Amaranth, Pa., tells us in Sunday's paper that "Enthusiasm is the biggest word in business today. Enthusiasm is the emblem of energy, too," &c. We might add it is the manifestation of whole-hearted earnestness. This is something that ought to be in evidence with all of us all of the time. Dr. Fisher gave us a fine letter.

Walter Addison Watson, of Riverdale, Md., says in the same paper: "The repeal of the eighteenth amendment would not employ men, but increase unemployment. Consequently, it would retard the circulation of money and lower the depths of the present depression. The adoption of the eighteenth amendment did not cause a depression, and its repeal would not relieve one," &c. This is another earnest letter, full of food for thought, and free from so-called fanaticism.

John O. Barkley has a letter in the same paper, correctly characterized in the headlines, "Ills of Farmers Started Long Before Hoover Administration." This letter reveals keen analysis and earnest purpose. It presents indisputable facts worthy of the serious thoughts of every citizen.

Such letters are really educational, and you, Mr. Editor, should be congratulated for giving us so many like them, instead of the frivolous, vicious, superficial ones so often seen in print. W. B. WITHERSPOON.

After Cafeterias, Uncle Sam May Become Pants-Presser and Barber.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Having had experience as a Government clerk, I enjoyed reading the letter of "Retired" in regard to Government cafeterias. As in his case, I found it possible to go outside for a short breathing spell and smoke during the half-hour lunch period. By eating the time-saving "wholesome, homemade lunch" he speaks of, more time is left in which to rest up than you might imagine. For instance, not only is there time to enjoy the open air, but where I used to work there were some who enjoyed a game or so of cards or checkers at lunch time.

I conclude from what he says that "Retired" does not think the cafeterias promote efficiency enough to talk much about. I agree with him that, even in this small way, there is danger in the Government's going into business because it sets a bad precedent. Such precedents are very apt to breed their kind. Next thing we know, if the cafeterias make good in the Federal Triangle development, they will be followed by tonsorial, shoe shining and pants-pressing accommodations. ALSO RETIRED.

Reduced Rate of Postage for Local Mail Would Bring Revenue.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The Postoffice Department in Washington again reports an immense deficit. I believe this can be reduced considerably if Congress would allow for cities where there is delivery by carrier a local postal rate, such as is in effect in every other commercial country of the Postal Union. By that I mean a rate of 50 per cent less for local letters. This is bound to stimulate business because manufacturers, wholesale and retail dealers, &c., would send offers to their local customers regularly if the local rates would be 50 per cent less. The increased use of this service will soon wipe out a large part of the deficit. There is in force a local parcel post, telephone, telegraph, express rate, &c. Why not a local rate for letters. Why ask 3 cents for a letter to be delivered in the same block or even in the same building when the postoffice only asks 3 cents for a letter sent to Alaska, California, &c.?

Kentucky Farmer Hails Roosevelt Reforestation Plan.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: When Gov. Roosevelt is elected President and works out his reforestation program, our people of tomorrow—yea, a hundred years from tomorrow—will plant trees not alone for the "Father of His Country" but in memory of Franklin Roosevelt himself, savior of our forests. He is the man who can help the farmer control his problems of flood and soil erosion.

The farmer must have his buying power restored to him before other industries can get on their feet. With a change of administration there is not likely to be a change over night. Recovery will, of course, be slow; but the farmers of America believe that Roosevelt is the morning star prophetic of a speedier return to better times. Believing this, it is my belief that agriculture will support the Democratic nominee solidly in November. JOHN ROB WILLIAMS.

What If Voters Holding Jobs Should Vote Themselves Out of Jobs?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In listening to all of Gov. Roosevelt's speeches, I have been trying to figure out what he intends to do, not only to better the times, but to keep the men and women that are working today on their jobs.

The Literary Digest has a knack of figuring things out for us all. Why doesn't it try and give us a rough idea of the number of people working today? How many of that number stand a chance of voting themselves out of a job by voting for Roosevelt, November 8? It would open the voting public's eyes if this could be figured out. B. C. D., VERMONTER.

NONPARTISAN NEWS PRAISED BY WILEY

New York Times' Business Manager Lauds Trend in Princeton Talk.

Princeton, N. J., Oct. 21 (A.P.).—The newspaper of 1932 represents the "true golden age of journalism" from the college man's point of view, Louis Wiley, business manager of the New York Times, told the Nassau Club tonight.

In tracing the change that has come over the field of journalism since the era of "the so-called great editors, Greeley, Dana, Raymond and others," Wiley declared:

"The day of the rabidly partisan newspaper is past. It was not really a newspaper. Some newspapers today are openly partisan, and it is entirely possible to see on their front pages daily a biased emphasis in the treatment of news. * * *

"Generally speaking, however, the newspapers are relegating their partisan views to the editorial pages, where they belong.

"The reporters and the news editors understand that they are to gather and print the news without color."

In this connection Wiley commended the political reporting of the Associated Press, which he termed "an achievement which ranks high in the annals of good reporting."

He called a national election "a test of the service of the newspaper," and added:

"Although we now have the radio, which carries the voice of the presidential candidates to millions, the newspapers carry the texts of these important documents to tens upon tens of millions.

"You can not 'read, mark, learn and inwardly digest' the fleeting voice of the air, but you can know the import of a speaker's words when these words are before you in cold type. * * *

"I do not belittle the value of the radio, but I am glad that our citizens do not approach the polls on election day armed only with the information which they have gained from the air. The intelligent voter demands more than he can obtain from any source except his newspaper."

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

GLOSSARY FOR THE CAMPAIGN.

CHAOS—Something that will happen if the other side wins.

Morass—A place each candidate says we'll be in if we don't vote for him.

Forgotten man—The fellow who is remembered for about eight weeks once every four years.

Industrial stabilization—A condition promised by both parties, which will ease the shock when the corner merchant runs into a cash customer.

Precipice—Something every campaign orator is sure we'll plunge over if we go to sleep during his speech.

Forces of recuperation—According to the Republicans they consist of the R. F. C., Herbert Hoover, Ogden Mills and a Republican Congress; according to the Democrats they consist of a general housecleaning, a new face in the window and the operation of trout streams under Democratic regulation.

Myth—Any issue raised by the opposition.

Conservative—The man in the office.

Beclouding the issue—Taking any stand on a proposition differing from the stand of an opponent.

"A gentleman for whom I have the greatest respect."—A phrase always preceding a vicious attack on the gentleman in question.

"My friends"—Any candidate's way of greeting thousands of people he never saw before in his life.

Crash into ruins—Something civilization will do if we don't vote for the party under whose auspices the rally is being held.

Bog of depression—Something nobody was able to see until it was too late to post any detour signs.

The Reconstruction Finance Corporation—The director of the mint saying, "Okay America!"

TRY IT SOME NIGHT.

THERE are many cures for insomnia, but nothing equals listening to two candidates for office speak over the radio the same night.

Today wine is so plentiful in Hungary that it is being used instead of water to put out fires. This is one reason why no such thing as Fire Prevention Week is tolerated in that country.

The Atlanta Mystery.

Al Capone is fighting to be released from Atlanta. Something must have gone wrong politically or he would have been out long ago.

Almost Extinct.

A man was arrested in New York for horse stealing the other day. Horses are getting so scarce there that they are protected all the year around now.

Something is wrong with the campaign. Neither party has blamed the other for the loss of 4 inches in the height of Pikes Peak.

A Warning.

Gov. Roosevelt says that if he is elected he intends to ask the governors of the 48 States down to the White House to supper frequently so he can get their views. He evidently has never seen some of those Western governors eat.

Two Railways Ask To Cut Cattle Rates

C., B. & Q. and C. & N. Seek Approval of Lower Western Charges.

(Associated Press.)

The Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad and the Chicago & Northwestern yesterday asked Interstate Commerce Commission approval of reduced rates on cattle and sheep in carloads from the Wyoming drought district to Nebraska, Colorado, Montana and sections of Wyoming not affected by dry weather.

They also asked permission to reduce rates on hay, straw and other live stock feed from Colorado, Nebraska and Kansas to stations in Wyoming.

The proposed rates would be effected on one day's notice in an effort to assist live stock men and farmers to get cattle and sheep to sections where feed is more plentiful.

Liquor Possessor Gets 30 Days or $150 Fine

Pleading guilty to a charge of possession of liquor, John W. Buchanan, 23 years old, yesterday was sentenced to pay a fine of $150 or serve 30 days in jail by Judge Isaac R. Hitt in Police Court.

At the same time Judge Hitt referred to the probation officer the case of May Grace Saunders, 29 years old, who was arrested with Buchanan. She entered a plea of guilty to possession and maintaining a nuisance.

TWO CITY PASTORS EXCHANGE PULPITS

Mr. Clinchy to Preach at All Souls' and Mr. Pierce at Mt. Pleasant.

The ministers of two of Washington's liberal churches will exchange pulpits at the morning services tomorrow. The Rev. U. G. B. Pierce, of All Souls' Unitarian, will preach in the Mount Pleasant Congregational Church, and the Rev. Russell J. Clinchy, Congregational minister, will occupy the Unitarian pulpit.

Speaking on "Gathering Chestnuts in Japan," Dr. R. Kent Beattie, forest pathologist of the Bureau of Plant Industry, will address the Adult Forum of the Mount Pleasant Congregational Church tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock. How to Keep Well

By DR. W. A. EVANS

BOTULINUS POISON.

Mrs. I. H. K. writes: I saw recently a notice of the third victim in two weeks who died from botulinus poison.

1. Will you kindly explain this form of poison?

2. Does it occur in jams, jellies, &c.?

3. In pickles that are put up like dills in cold water?

4. Does the health officer's warning mean that they should be boiled in an open kettle before canning in order to destroy the botulinus bacteria?

5. Any advice on the safest way to can in order to avoid these bacteria shall be greatly appreciated, as I have heard of it but never understood how one was to combat it.

REPLY.

1. This bacillus is found in many soils. It gets into meats and vegetables. When foods that contain it are canned without being properly cleaned and heated to a high temperature, the bacillus multiplies and secretes a poison. It grows only in substances from which the air has been excluded, as in canned goods. It does not develop in sour substances. Food that contains botulinus poison is apt to taste and smell suspicious. However, this is not a safe sign to follow, and tasting a highly poisonous food may cause death. Botulinus usually causes vomiting and diarrhea. It is liable to be a day or more in causing symptoms. The symptoms are usually located in the nervous system. Double vision is apt to be the first sign.

2. Rarely, if ever.

3. Same as 2.

4. That amount of heat is not enough.

5. Select good food articles to be canned. Reject all that are not in good condition. Wash and clean well. Sterilize by steam under pressure. The temperature must be carried higher than 212 and, in boiling, the temperature does not go above that level. When suitable use vinegar or other sour ingredients in the foods to be canned. Botulinus does not thrive in sour stuff.

GALL BLADDER.

J. T. G. writes:

1. Is it possible to drain the gall bladder with a tube similar to what is being used by doctors at the present time?

2. Is the theory of this technique correct?

REPLY.

1. Yes, within limits.

2. Same answer.

So-called medical drainage of the gall bladder, as distinguished from surgical drainage, has a place in medicine. It is an inconvenient, troublesome procedure.

Elaborate Layman Service at Cathedral Tomorrow

A special corporate service for the laymen of the diocese of Washington will be held in the great choir and sanctuary of Washington Cathedral tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock. The central portion of the edifice will be reserved for laymen up to the processional hymn, and plans are being made for welcoming a large congregation which is expected to overflow into the choir aisle chapels and the east aisle of the north transept.

The service will be conducted by Canon Raymond L. Wolven and the sermon will be delivered by Bishop James Edward Freeman. The lesson will be read by the Rev. Dr. Z. B. T. Phillips, rector of Epiphany Parish. Special music will be rendered by the Cathedral choir, with hymns appropriate for congregational singing.

Many of the clergy of the diocese will march in the procession in their vestments and there will also be a place in the procession for a group of laymen representing the founders of the new Laymen's League of the Episcopal Church and a delegate from each parish. Among the laymen in procession will be Eugene Thompson, president of the Laymen's League, and Busey H. Howard, vice president for the province of Washington, which includes several important dioceses in this part of the country, and Richard W. Hynson, president of the chapter recently organized at Epiphany Parish.

Mr. Hynson is chairman of the committee on arrangements for the service, and is working with the assistance of leading laymen in other parishes who are taking a vital interest in the new organization for men which is being created in the Episcopal Church.

The sermon at the celebration of the Holy Communion at 11 o'clock will be by Dean C. F. Bratenahl. There will be the usual celebration of the Holy Communion and the reading of Morning Prayer and the Litany in the Bethlehem Chapel at 7:30 o'clock and 10 o'clock, respectively.

Pilgrimages for visitors from out of town and for members of the congregations who have not yet had an opportunity to see the Cathedral and other points of religious interest on Mount Saint Alban will be held at 12:30 o'clock and 5 o'clock.

Bishop Freeman announced today that the preacher at the morning service on October 30 will be the Right Rev. Lord William Gascoyne Cecil, Bishop of Exeter in England, who is the son of the Marquis of Salisbury, who was Prime Minister under Queen Victoria. He is in this country to give a series of addresses under the auspices of the committee on the interchange of preachers and speakers between the Churches of America, Great Britain and France.

SERMON TOMORROW BY DR. HUTCHINSON

New Pastor at Mount Vernon Place Church Will Preach Twice.

The Rev. Forney Hutchinson, who at the recent session of the Baltimore Annual Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, held in Winchester, was transferred from Oklahoma City, Okla., to fill the pastorate in the Mount Vernon Place Church in this city, will preach his first sermons there tomorrow.

Dr. Hutchinson has served the St. Luke's Church in Oklahoma City for fourteen years, and has made a remarkable record there. When he went there in 1918, he began his work in a new building, and there was no thought that a larger one would ever be needed. About four years ago, however, the building was remodeled and the seating capacity practically doubled. Since then, also, a large addition has been built to house the Sunday School.

It was Dr. Hutchinson, who, at the general conference of his church, held in Dallas, Tex., in 1930, refused election to the Episcopacy, stating he preferred to remain "a plain preacher," with its closer personal contacts, believing it was in this field he might render the greater service.

The Sunday School meets at 9:30 a. m., and there are devotional and special prayer services for young people and adults at 7 p. m. A meeting of the Spiritual Life Group will be held Monday evening at 8 o'clock.

The regular prayer meeting service on Thursday evening will be conducted by the Rev. Nolan B. Harmon, jr., who is acting pastor until Dr. Hutchinson can complete his work at Oklahoma City.

NEW ASBURY PASTOR SPEAKS TOMORROW

Rev. E. C. Beery Has Held Pastorates in Important M. E. Churches.

The Rev. E. C. Beery, the new pastor of Francis Asbury Methodist Episcopal Church South, Sixteenth street near Lamont street northwest, will fill the pulpit tomorrow, 11 a. m., and the evening service at 8 p. m. Special music will be furnished by the Francis Asbury quartet. The Rev. Mr. Beery will also conduct the Thursday evening prayer services.

Mr. Beery is a bachelor of arts of Randolph Macon College. Since his graduation and entry into the ministry he has held a number of important charges. One of his earlier ones was Calvary M. E. C. S., of this city. For the past three years he has been pastor of Raleigh Court M. E. C. S., in Roanoke, Va., where he had a most successful pastorate. He added to his church plant a modern educational building at a cost of $40,000, and added over 300 to the church membership, bringing the total membership to 1,100.

One of the most interesting events in the history of Asbury Church was a marriage Monday afternoon in the church auditorium between Miss Ming Hwa Nyeu to Samuel Moy. The arrangements for the wedding were made by the Women's Missionary Society.

Miss Nyeu is the daughter of Gen. Nyeu, of China. She is a graduate of the M. E. Church South McTyrre School, in Shanghai, China, from which her mother and grandmother were also graduated. Miss Nyeu is also a graduate of the George Washington University. Mr. Moy is employed by the Interstate Commerce Commission and is a lieutenant in the United States Reserves.

A group meeting of all the missionary societies of the District will be held in this church on Monday at 11 a. m. A box luncheon will be served.

NEW PASTOR

THE REV. E. C. BEERY,
who was recently assigned as pastor of Francis Asbury Methodist Church, and will occupy the pulpit there for the first time tomorrow.

Broken Propeller Lands Capital-Bound Plane

The breaking of a propeller on the nose motor of a Washington-bound trimotored transport plane belonging to Pennsylvania Airlines caused a forced landing about 40 miles out of Pittsburgh Thursday evening. Although the ship was demolished, none of the seven passengers was injured.

Pilot Harry L. Smith cut the switch off all three motors as soon as the accident happened and set the plane down on an open knoll. Passengers adjusted their safety belts and were not thrown out of their seats.

Picketing in Minnesota Disrupted by Dissension

St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 21 (A.P.).—The first break among Minnesota farmers seeking higher prices by blockading highways came today as Washington County members of a farm "holiday" association voted to free themselves from nonmarketing pledges.

Three hundred members met at Stillwater and voted to stop picketing until after the National Holiday Association convention at Sioux City October 25. They will resume marketing of nonperishables.

Boorde, will give his point of view of daily occurrences as carried in the daily papers as they reveal the positive and negative effects of the Gospel of Jesus Christ in America.

What Today Means to You

"LIBRA."

IF October 22 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9:15 a. m. to 10:30 a. m., from 12 noon to 1 p. m. and from 7 p. m. to 8 p. m. The danger hours are from 7:30 a. m. to 8:30 a. m. and from 2:30 p. m. to 3:30 p. m.

This October 22 may be classed as a doubtful day. Watch for the unexpected to happen and do not be surprised if some pet enterprise suddenly "goes sour" or if some trusted friend fails you. Make your own decisions today, relying on your own judgment rather than on the advice of assistants or friends. Young people will be inclined to irrational and erratic acts.

The child born on this October 22 will have varied talents and interests, and care should be taken to lead him and train him along some special line. His successes will come with little effort, and he will grow in the tendency to become easily discouraged if events do not run along smoothly for him. He must be taught that success comes only with hard work. He will be extremely fortunate in making influential friends both in school and in later life.

If you were born on October 22, you are probably a shrewd judge of affairs. You have a keen insight into human nature. You will beyond doubt be a success in the business world, and will establish yourself as an authority in whatever phase of business you enter. You will have more than enough of the material needs and luxuries of life, but you will have to fight hard for any real happiness. You will start life with many fine ideals, but your tendency will be to discard them as economic pressure is brought to bear on you. Do not forget that there is much more to life than what is brought to your attention by the five senses.

You are inclined to be too unreserved in lending your support to some new cause or project that appeals to your emotions, without thoroughly examining its merits. This same tendency is prevalent in the selecting of a mate, and must be carefully guarded against.

How to Be Beautiful

By ELSIE PIERCE

Falling Hair.

DEAR Miss Pierce: I am a constant reader of your column and have gleaned some wonderful advice from it. I have brown hair, hanging down to my neck. About three weeks ago I washed my hair in water and put in about one tablespoonful of borax. Every since my hair has been falling out—awful. It seems I will be bald-headed before long. My hair is very oily, too. Please help. K. G.

It is doubtful that the borax caused the hair to fall out, although a tablespoonful is too much. Just a pinch in the last rinsing water is sufficient, and should help to counteract the oiliness of your scalp. Continue brushing in spite of the fact that your hair is falling out. New hairs are very likely replacing the old. Massage scalp every night with strong, rotary movements. Avoid too many sweets, starches and fatty or oily foods in the diet, and take more fruits and vegetables. Get enough rest and fresh air, too. I wish you would send for my hair bulletins.

Curling Fluid Recipe.

Dear Miss Pierce: Please tell me whether waving fluids are harmful to the hair. I am trying to train my hair into waving and should like to know if the prepared or home-made ones are best for this purse. G. F.

There are many excellent waving fluids on the market, and so reasonably priced that it hardly pays to make them at home. If the hair is brushed regularly, the waving fluids will not in any way harm the scalp. Otherwise, they may leave a residue, which is similar to dandruff. So keep brushing the hair. Here's a recipe for a home-made fluid, if you wish to try it:

"One ounce of quince seed and one quart of distilled water. Boil in double boiler over a slow fire until reduced to just half the quantity. Strain through double layer of thin cheesecloth. It will then be the consistency of molasses. Thin out with rose water. Or for a more elaborate recipe add three ounces of alcohol and two ounces of rose water or toilet water.

* * * *

Waxing Fluid or Water?

Dear Miss Pierce: Do you recommend waving fluids for keeping the hair in place or is there some simpler method? E. J.

Personally, I like plain water in an atomizer night and morning. With a little practice you will soon find hair easy to set after the water is sprayed on. If the hair is very dry, a little oil or brilliantine may be used afterward. Do you know that equal parts of castor oil, glycerin and alcohol, to which you may add your favorite perfume, make an excellent brilliantine?

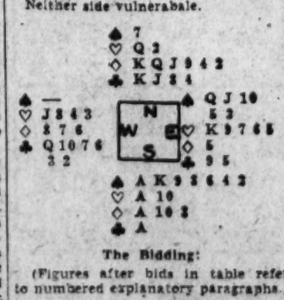
HANDLING THE SQUEEZE.

SQUEEZES for extra tricks at Contract Bridge are fairly common. Sometimes they are not legitimate squeezes, but only pseudo-squeezes, in which one of the opponents thinks he is squeezed and keeps the wrong card. Sometimes the Declarer stumbles into a legitimate squeeze. The defense takes the first trick. He now runs his eleven good tricks and then finds that one of the opponents has been squeezed and he makes the thirteenth trick in addition. But occasionally these squeezes are not quite so simple, and proper handling and correct technique are required by the Declarer to bring them to a successful conclusion.

The hand below was played by Mr. Gaylord A. Smith, of Conneaut, Ohio, and is certainly one of which Mr. Smith has a right to be proud.

South—Dealer.
Neither side vulnerabale.



The Bidding:

(Figures after bids in table refer to numbered explanatory paragraphs.)

South	West	North	East
2♠(1)	Pass	3◇	Pass
3♠	Pass	4◇	Pass
5NT	Pass	6◇	Pass
6NT(2)	Pass	Pass	Pass

1—A borderline Opening two-bid.
2—South should pass at this point. He bids six notrump as the hand was being played in a match point Duplicate game, and cashing the 150 Aces might be the means of getting a top score on the board. In Rubber play the 150 Aces would not even be considered, and the safer contract—that is, six diamonds—would be chosen.

West opened his fourth-highest club and South took the trick with the blank Ace. South then immediately tried the spade suit, realizing that a spade break would give him his twelfth trick—and the bad news became evident immediately. Mr. Smith noted that his only hope of fulfilling his contract now would be to squeeze the opponents for his twelfth trick. However, if he immediately took his top-card tricks he would run out by the time the eleventh trick was reached, and with two cards left in each of the opponents' hands they would be able to amply protect their winning cards. Therefore, the first step in preparing for the squeeze is to give up a losing trick, so that later on the opponents can be squeezed down to the very last trick. The read will then be cleared, and no matter what is returned, the triple squeeze will develop for the Slam.

Mr. Smith thereupon played a low spade, which East took with the Ten and immediately returned a spade, which was won with the King. The diamond Ace and Ten were cashed, and the last diamond in Declarer's hand returned, which was won in Dummy with the King. The diamond Queen and the club King were then cashed. To the tenth trick the diamond Knave was led from Dummy, and when the diamond 9 was led at Trick 11, the last screw was being turned, as East had to keep both a high spade and the King and one heart and West had to keep the club Queen and also heart protection. On the lead of the last diamond, East discarded a heart and then Mr. Smith discarded a spade from his own hand. No matter what West now did, he was able to take the last 2 tricks either with two good hearts or a good club and a good heart.

It is interesting to note that there is no chance at all to work this squeeze unless a spade trick is given up early in the play.

Christian Science Churches

"Probation After Death" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all the Churches of Christ, Scientist, tomorrow. The Golden Text is from II Corinthians vi:2: "Behold, now is the day of salvation." Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "Now when Jesus was risen early the first day of the week he appeared first to Mary Magdalene, out of whom he had cast seven devils. And she went and told them that had been with him, as they mourned and wept." (Mark xvi:9, 10).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science Textbook, "Science and Health, with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "They who earliest saw Jesus after the resurrection and beheld the final proof of all that he had taught, misconstrued that event. Even his disciples at first called him a spirit, ghost or specter, for they believed his body to be dead. His reply was: 'Spirit hath not flesh and bones, as ye see me have.' The reappearing of Jesus was not the return of a spirit. He presented the same body that he had before his crucifixion, and so glorified the supremacy of Mind over matter." (Page 45.)

TIBBETT ACCLAIMED BY CONCERT THRONG

Stewart Wille Assists Him in Opening of Wilson-Greene Season.

The Wilson-Greene concert season was opened auspiciously at Constitution Hall last night in the presentation of Lawrence Tibbett, leading operatic barytone, in an outstanding program. This star from the Metropolitan Opera Company in New York City had as assisting artist Mr. Stewart Wille, pianist, who contributed a pleasing portion of the program in a number of piano solos.

There was real variety in Mr. Tibbett's program, showing how well he has adapted himself to the requirements of concert singing, which, of course, differs widely from demands of grand opera. Mr. Tibbett's mellow tones had great flexibility, and, as usual, his artistry in rendition proved him the master artist that he is.

With a barytone voice of unusual range last night's singer handled easily compositions which might have seriously taxed the powers of one less gifted in this direction.

In the single operatic selection of the formal program "Di Provenza, Traviata," by Verdi, the audience got an appealing glimpse into his prowess in grand opera. It was not difficult to understand after its close why this singer had gained his high rank among the Metropolitan stars. Of pleasing personality, one could easily visualize him on the grand opera stage singing great roles cast for barytone voices in which opera stars of other days had made world-wide reputations.

There was real charm, too, in the group of German leider which came early in his program and gave Mr. Tibbett an opportunity to display the emotional side of his genius. From Schubert, Brahms and Strauss the songs were drawn and he sang them with tenderness, with impeccable diction and a keen understanding of their inner qualities. Several English songs, notably the "Bailiff's Daughter" and "Little Old Foolish Man" aroused the audience to a high pitch of enthusiasm.

Mr. Wille, in two solos, "The White Peacock," by Griffes, and "Malaguena," demonstrated pianistic genius of a high order. Mr. Wille has a vigor and zest in his playing, a thorough command of technique and a grasp of the possibilities of his instrument for solo work.

A dainty ballad, "Mam'selle Marie," by Guion, described as an imaginary Creole Ave Maria, quite captivated the fancy of the audience, as did Uterhart's "The Gargoyle of Notre Dame."

New School Fund Distribution Set

City and County Institutions Will Get $1,442,000 in Next Week.

Richmond, Va., Oct. 21 (A.P.).—Dr. Sidney B. Hall, State superintendent of public instruction, announced today that a total of $1,442,000 in State funds will be distributed to public schools in Virginia during the next week.

The counties will receive $1,021,000, or approximately one-fourth of their annual allotment, while the cities will receive $421,000, or approximately one-half their allotment. The present release of State funds for public school education in the various localities is being made at the regular time, although one-fourth of the counties' allotment was advanced on October 1 as an emergency measure to offset a shortage in local funds.

Under the law the general appropriation for schools is paid in two installments, November 1 and February 1, although the rule was changed this year to make possible an advance to needy counties.

Grand Jury Will Probe Girl's Death in Cottage

Richmond, Va., Oct. 21 (A.P.).—Henrico County officials today said that a special grand jury investigation of the death of Miss Estelle Fisher, 19, was planned for Monday. The girl's body was found Saturday morning in a cottage on Kingston road owned by Sam Ballard, of Richmond.

She had been shot through the head and a verdict of suicide was at first returned by Coroner A. Y. Traynham, but today it was said that "conditions of the case" had led Commonwealth's Attorney H. M. Ratcliffe to ask Judge Julien Gunn to call a special grand jury to investigate.

Virginia Democrats Win Roosevelt Fund Contest

Richmond, Va., Oct. 21 (A.P.).—Virginia Democrats won the Roosevelt Cup for the most Roosevelt-Garner medallion contributions up to October 21 and the cup will be awarded to William J. Schwarzschild, Democratic campaign finance director for the State, at a Democratic rally in New York next Thursday.

The Virginia finance organization reported more than 15,000 medallion wearers by October 20, and contributions in excess of $20,000. The Virginia quota is 50,000 and Mr. Schwarzschild said he was optimistic over the prospects for reaching it.

Norfolk Woman Dies Suddenly on Steamer

Baltimore, Oct. 21 (A.P.).—En route to Baltimore on the old Bay Line steamer, State of Maryland, to enter a hospital for observation, Miss Alice Saunders, 46, of Norfolk, Va., died suddenly today while the steamer was bound up the Chesapeake Bay.

A sister, Miss Lucy Saunders, and a trained nurse were with Miss Saunders when she complained of feeling ill and collapsed. Dr. L. H. Magruder, of Norfolk, a passenger on the boat, said she probably died from a cerebral hemorrhage.

LOEW'S PALACE

"MOVIE CRAZY." Paramount picturization of a story by Agnes Christine Johnston. John Grey and Feliz Adler, adapted to the screen by Vincent Lawrence, starring Harold Lloyd, with Constance Cummings, Louise Closser Hale, Kenneth Thomson, Robert McWade, Spencer Charters, Sidney Jarvis, Harold Goodwin, Arthur Housman and Noah Young. Directed by Clyde Bruckman. Reviewed Friday afternoon.

By NELSON B. BELL.

Rigidly adhering to those qualities of wholesomeness and mild hilarity that have characterized a majority of the increasingly infrequent Harold Lloyd comedies, this latest addition to the list finds the young man who discovered a fortune in a pair of horn-rimmed spectacles fairly maintaining his average as one of the screen's infallible laughgetters.

It has always been the contention of this outpost that Harold Lloyd is not half so funny as the situations in which he is placed. That is still true in "Movie Crazy." Any personable young man could be dropped into the role of Harold Hall, the hard-bitten youth from the Middle West, who hurls himself against the gates of Hollywood with utter futility, until a grudge fight staged on a lot where cameras are grinding wins him a contract, and be almost as amusing as Mr. Lloyd, who, somehow, seems never quite so provocative as his authors.

By going in for romance and the tranquil idiocies of love's first young dream, "Movie Crazy" is a little more dilatory than usual in getting into the robust lunacies of its middle and closing episodes. There are, to be sure, laughs in more or less profusion scattered along the path of the early sequences, but it is not until Harold Hall, as an uninvited guest at a swanky party in a fashionable hotel, exchanges dress coats with a sleight-of-hand performer and prestidigitator and begins to produce most amazing zoological exhibits from nowhere—as much to his own surprise as anybody's—that the buttons really begin to pop and the sides to ache. When the little white rabbit is served, under silver, to the delightfully swackled young rounder impersonated by Arthur Housman, my dear, you'll scream—maybe die—it's that funny! Imagine how you'd feel—but we won't go into that.

Then when Harold inserts himself into the cast of the great struggle scene aboard ship, knocks out the director and keeps the battle raging until water is up to everybody's ears and he has subdued the obnoxious leading man, curse him! you will again stand in imminent peril of passing out from apoplectic appreciation of a cleverly contrived continuity. It is enough to win anybody a contract!

For the rest, you will always be moderately amused and frequently moved to a high pitch of enthusiasm over the vast improvement which Constance Cummings shows here over anything she has ever before done for the cameras and microphones. Miss Cummings is a fine foil for the romantic yokelry of the star and reveals a sense of humor and an all-around versatility she has never before given her public reason to suspect. Harold Hall, of course, is a fresh carbon copy of all the earlier Haroldsthat have personified The Boy in all of the dramas of defeatism that have made Lloyd famous.

Except that the managements honor my calling with Annie Oakleys, I should have deemed it worth the price of admission merely to watch Mr. Housman's bit as the gay young inebriate, but over and above his insobriety are excellent performances by Louise Closser Hale, as the producer's wife; Robert McWade, as the producer; Spencer Charters, his general factotum; Kenneth Thomson, the jealous leading man; Sidney Jarvis, the director; Harold Goodwin, studio executive, and Noah Young, who has been in every Lloyd cast since a time when the memory of man runneth not to the contrary—which is practically back to the days of the old single-reelers.

Supplementing the feature are a Mickey Mouse comedy, "Trader Mickey," a cartoon caricature of the African jungle drama, that is a show in itself; "Pigskin," a dreary subject concerning itself with the conditioning of the football squad at Northwestern University, which struck me as just so much lost motion and an approximate zero in entertainment, and the Metrotone News, which, miracle of miracles, omits all reference to politics and the campaign!

Constance Cummings and Harold Llyod, as they appear in the bespectacled comedian's annual adventure in laughter, now holding forth on the Palace screen with usual devastating results to vest buttons and blood pressure.

LOEW'S FOX

"SIX HOURS TO LIVE." Fox picturization of "Auf Wiedersehen," by Gordon Morris and Morton Barteaux, featuring Warner Baxter, with Miriam Jordan, John Boles and George Marion. Directed by William Dieterle. Reviewed Friday evening by W. A. Whitney.

The cycle of motion pictures more or less soundly based on what is popularly termed science has taken some queer turns in its short run; but the use of a life-giving ray to reanimate the human carcass is something new, and, as a novelty, well worth consideration.

But the effects of this ray are not permanent, the revitalized animal being granted only six hours. Yet this brief span is sufficient to allow Capt. Paul Onslow to complete his patriotic work of spiking an international trade conference so that the mythical nation of Sylvaria may remain economically intact, as well as to avenge his garroting earlier in the evening.

Assembled in this conference are those who seek the trade pact for their own private ends. But Capt. Onslow sees clearly through the subtle machinations, and alone stands out for the integrity of all nations in general and his own in particular.

The tragic, though successful, culmination seems imminent, but Prof. Otto Bauer, inventor of the resurrecting ray, comes on the scene and proves that his machine will work on human beings as well as on rabbits. Of course, there is a romantic theme running through the footage, but it shrinks in importance before the more entertaining and diverting "scientific" revelations.

In the end, the mechanical marvel of science is destroyed by the captain, who in his return to this vale of tears, becomes philosophical and takes that means to prevent a repetition of what was to him a major catastrophe: the return for so short a period of time knowing not only that his time was limited but realizing, with a prescience quite not of this world, the impossibility of any happy culmination of that newly found happiness with Valerie von Sturm.

Tragic though the tale be, Warner Baxter, as the captain, gives another of his finished delineations. John Boles, as his closest friend and rival for the heart of Valerie, has not much to do, but no complaint can be registered with that little. George Marion, as the savant, is the usual disheveled scientist. The tenderer moments involve Miriam Jordan, who is an ameliorating delight in an otherwise tense, and frequently sordid, series of events. Beryl Mercer, Irene Ware and Halliwell Hobbes do their usual commendable bits.

Headlining the stage show is Larry Rich, whose "champeenship" of fun, in which he is supported by a variety of talent, might be more believable if he stuck to his few songs and fewer dances instead of trying to be funny. Joe Frisco, with cigar and derby, traipses through his usual act with a couple of charming young women. Harrison and Fischer, in a series of ballroom dances, are the hit of the show, especially with their modernistic interpretation of "Manhattan Parade." The Great Yacopis and Arthur Jarrett, radio entertainer of major standing, complete the stage line-up.

Canadian Apple Trade Increases

Benefit of British Accord Already Being Felt, Commons Told.

Ottawa, Oct. 21 (A.P.).—Apple growers in British Columbia, the House of Commons was told today, are already feeling the benefit of the trade agreement with Great Britain made at the imperial economic conference.

Grote Stirling (Conservative), Yale, speaking in the debate on ratification of the treaty, said Great Britain was now buying nearly every standard size of British Columbia apples and inquiries were coming in about small apples British buyers had refused to "look at" in the past.

Of the 48 States of the United States, 37 produced apples and had been accustomed to dump their surplus on the British market, Stirling said. The new agreement would neutralize the effect of this dumping.

COLUMBIA

"THE CROOKED CIRCLE." World Wide picturization of a story by Ralph Spence, featuring Ben Lyon, James Gleason, ZaSu Pitts and Irene Purcell, with C. Henry Gordon, Raymond Hatton, Roscoe Karns and Berton Churchill. Produced by William Sistrom and directed by H. Bruce Humberstone. Reviewed Friday night by M. A. McKavitt.

Without circumlocution or palaver, we are able to declare here and now that Columbia Theater patrons are going to spend an enjoyable evening when they see a new comedy mystery-drama, "The Crooked Circle"—a silly, chilly, willy-nilly piece of laugh-provoking Zasupittsiana. Not only is the main attraction a depression antidote, but the rest of the program is bound to dissolve any type of blues, jitters or hystero-depressia.

Have a look at that cast in this Relph Spence story. They are all seasoned troupers. The gentleman who concocted "The Gorilla" has given to a fun-loving American public another pseudo-chiller which is going to bring back to the erstwhile "House of Hits" that part of the cinema clientele which isn't especially interested in Occidental Opera Des Equines. For a thorough, arctic chill, we recommend a scene near the opening, when the optic-rolling and hand-weaving comedienne, ZaSu Pitts, hears about the ghostly violin recital that has been a prelude to the sudden demise and disappearance of the former occupants of this eerie house, Melody Manor, from the awesome-voiced caretaker. For many a hearty laugh we hereby thank that dumb, wise-cracking motorcycle cop, Mr. Jimmy Gleason. His is a sterling performance. From a veritable deluge of plain, nutty remarks by this same Gleason personage we are reminded that he mentioned that the tough Crooked Circle crowd weren't born—they were just quarried! And Mlle. Pitts thought a myth was a female moth! I repeat: the quips are plentiful, so loosen your vest before this pair of maniactors gets started.

You will often hear that "something always happens to somebody" in "Melody Manor," and this is certainly true. We marvel that the author finally extricated himself from this almost intangible set of circumstances, but it is accomplished with eclat. And how!

There are more doors in this mystery play than there are loopholes in a backwoods legal document. The entire cast was in fine form. C. Henry Gordon, as the mysterious-looking new member of the amateur criminologist club, will keep you guessing until the end as to his real identity. Ben Lyon is an energetic, young and embryonic sleuth who handles a revolver as if he knew what its possibilities were in a pinch. Raymond Hatton does an extremely good bit of acting in an unusual character part. Irene Purcell, Roscoe Karns and Berton Churchill, along with the rest of a long line of able performers execute their roles in a highly proficient manner. Bills due the first of the month will quickly lose their terror as you watch the delightful and fast-moving bit of mysterioso.

If you don't mind, we earnestly desire to sing a few peans of praise about the rest of the evening's entertainment, and to congratulate the management in procuring these Ports o' Call travelogues. Celestial Venice (Bangkok, Siam) is a superior and very interesting presentation. "Torchy's Busy Day," an Educational Film Comedy, caused gales of laughter to sweep through the theater. After we had heard Henry Ford, a child prodigy play the organ and observed the great ships of the Navy on Navy Day plow through a rough sea laying a smoke screen, as presented in the Paramount News, we reluctantly called it a day.

Virginia Congress Voting Explained

Ballots May Be Cast for Nine Candidates or Less, Is Ruling.

Richmond, Va., Oct. 21 (A.P.).—Maj. Edwin H. Gibson, Assistant Attorney General, today explained that Virginia voters on November 8 may vote for nine of the candidates at large for Congress, or any number up to nine.

The explanation was sought from Maj. Gibson to clear up a misunderstanding reported from several sections of the State. There was said to be some fear that the ballots of those voting for fewer than nine of the candidates would be thrown out.

This is not the case, Maj. Gibson said, adding that ballots will be thrown out only when more than nine names are left unscratched.

"MADISON SQUARE GARDEN." Paramount picturization of a story by Thomson Burtis, adapted to the screen by P. J. Wolfson and Allen Rivkin, featuring William Collier, sr., Jack Oakie, Warren Hymer, Thomas Meighan, William Boyd, Marian Nixon, Lew Cody, ZaSu Pitts and Robert Elliott. Directed by Harry Joe Brown. Reviewed Friday afternoon.

The honesty, the thrill and the pageantry of professional sport is paid blood-tingling and impressive tribute in this exciting dramatization of the color, the triumphs, and the tragedies that center in the new Madison Square Garden in New York, recognized as the country's foremost citadel of athletic competition, for profit.

"Madison Square Garden" is preeminently a man's picture, although a touch of romance, a rich vein of comedy and comparative freedom from the thuggery that so often mars pictures of this stamp will lend it an immediate, if modified, appeal to feminine lovers of athletic prowess, as well.

The story of the old manager who comes to New York with his two "boys," Eddie Burke, a middleweight scrapper, and "Brassy" Randall, a wrestler, and the adventures they encounter when "Doc" Williams is made matchmaker at the Garden and the two dumbbells are made potential victims of a gang of crooked gamblers, booze-runners and chiselers, is not so important as the fact that by linking this typical fable of the big town to the past by the introduction of the stars of an older generation and lending it all an unaccustomed authenticity by introducing the most famous of the contemporary sports writers, the sponsors of the picture have given a definite character and personality to an institution that to many is merely a big building!

William Collier, pere, has the best role he has ever had in pictures as "Doc" Williams, the manager who couldn't do a crooked deed. It is, perhaps, a pretty far cry from "The Dictator," or even from such of his later successes as "The Hottentot" and "Never Say Die"—I am speaking of the stage now, of course—but the manner in which the senior Collier plays it is not at all remote from the fine skill that made him one of America's most distinguished light comedians.

Jack Oakie and Warren Hymer were perfect selections for the dull-witted pug and rassler, and Marian Nixon an effective ingenue to lend appeal to Mr. Oakie's tenderer moments. ZaSu Pitts again is a flighty public contact in the role of Miss Nixon's associate at the telegraph desk in a hotel lobby. Lew Cody, William Boyd and Robert Elliott are sinister as the powers that prey upon those who don't care how they get their money, just so they get it. Thomas Meighan appears advantageously as President Carley, of the Garden.

Incidental to the major movement of the plot are flashes of a six-day bicycle race, an ice hockey match, an indoor track meet and the training routine of fighters and wrestlers. The fight sequences vital to the plot are put on in big league fashion with Joe Humphreys announcing and Lou Magnolia acting as referee—almost as real as Twin Cities or Portner's!

On the stage, Fred Bradna, the executive director of the Ringling Brothers and Barnum and Bailey Circus when they are under the big top, presents a midwinter circus that borrows practically all of its acts from the larger tent show—Mme. Bradna, a European equestrienne of international renown, in a picturesque offering of animals, birds and horsemanship; Maybelle's Elephants, Mlle. King, evidently Lillian Leitzel's successor as an intrepid and muscular aerialiste; the Three De Kos, the Flying Concellos, Don Francisco, tight and slack wire performer; the Davenport Troupe, scores of clowns and a variety of other specialists.

The elephants, the resinbacks, the fiery finish horses and the clown comedy all combine to give the spectacle the glamor of the white canvas and the tang of the tanbark, although I must confess that to me the whole business seemed too long and a little too repetitive for best effect. However, the youngsters will eat it up!

Among the screen auxiliaries, Richy Craig, jr., has a priceless "nut" short-reel, "They Call It Madness," as delightful a bit of insanity as you are apt to run across this side of the asylum. The Universal News, with Graham McNamee, and orchestral prelude complete a unique bill.

Southern Writers Declared Leading

Charleston Session Is Told Work With Drama and Novel Is Ahead.

Charleston, S. C., Oct. 21 (A.P.).—Donal Adams, editor of the New York Times Book Review, opened informal conferences at the "house party" of Southern writers here today by declaring that Southerners are leading at present in their work with drama, the novel, poetry and history.

Approximately a score of Southern writers, editors and others associated closely with literature gathered here today for their second meeting. The first was held last year at Charlottesville, Va. The group has no formal organization and its membership is not fixed. It plans to assemble whenever and wherever opportunity presents the occasion.

Adams says "the eyes of literary America are on the South" and that writers of that section had contributed notably to the 1932 fall harvest of new books.

6,000 See Tech High Triumph Over Eastern Eleven, 7 to 0

34-Yard Pass Wins School Contest

Meiklejohn Scores on Long Aerial From Brinkman.

By LEWIS F. ATCHISON.

TECH HIGH'S football crown wobbled precariously on the brow it has adorned these past four years, and for a time seemed imminently in danger of being tumbled into the dust by a big Eastern eleven, fired with the ambition of scoring the greatest scholastic football upset in a decade. But a long, 34-yard pass, that whistled through the air from the palm of Max Brinkman's hand and nestled in the arms of Capt. Al Meiklejohn, spelled defeat for the doughty Lincoln Park eleven.

This pass, one of a half dozen heaved by anxious Tech backs, paved the way for the only score of the game. Johnny Gormely added the extra point with a well-directed placement, bringing the score to 7 to 0. Six thousand saw the game.

Although Tech scored in the second period, it did not hit its true stride until the second half, when it piled up the majority of some 134 yards it gained through Eastern's surprisingly strong line. Tech made only 45 yards through scrimmage in the first half and failed to register a first down. It made only four first downs in the second half.

Kicking Game Marks First Half.

Play was confined to Eastern territory throughout the first half. Both teams resorted to a kicking game, waiting for the break that never came. Kicking honors were about evenly divided. "Spud" Foley, of Tech, averaged 38 yards, and Joe Mills, of Eastern, averaged 39 yards. Brinkman's lone punt for Tech traveled 56 yards and was grounded on the Blues' 3-yard line. Mills got off two punts over 50 yards.

The winning touchdown followed an exchange of punts in which Tech had the edge. After Brinkman's kick had been grounded on the 3-yard line and Palmer had lost another precious yard in a futile line plunge, Joe Mills kicked from behind his own goal line to the 34-yard mark. On the first play Brinkman hurled the ball to Meiklejohn, who was tackled by Mills as he fell over the final chalk mark. Kenny Wade, Eastern half back, vainly endeavored to knock down the pass, which caught the Lincoln Parkers napping.

Eastern immediately retaliated with a passing attack that threatened dire results, but only one of the four passes tossed by Mills found its mark, the others missing by inches.

Eastern's lone scoring threat came in the last five minutes of play when Mills uncorked a 35-yard pass to Wade, bringing the ball to Tech's 30-yard line. Mills followed up with another pass but its flight was arrested by Coiner, Tech end, who got back to the 46-yard line before being hauled down. The game ended soon after with Tech pounding the fast-weakening Eastern line.

Hoyas Slight Choice Over Terrors

Improved G. U. Line Faces W. Maryland Team Today.

By BOB CONSIDINE.

TWO virtually even football forces will hurl themselves against each other today at Griffith Stadium when Georgetown University meets Western Maryland in one of the feature games of the local grid season. If either team is favored it is the embattled Hilltoppers, still smarting from their loss to New York University last week, and feverish to get back on the winning bandwagon again.

Georgetown will put a better team on the field today than in any previous game this season. The only cloud that mars the Hoya outlook—physically speaking—is a slight injury suffered by Al Kelly, Georgetown's mass of lubricated lighting, in yesterday's workout at Griffith Stadium. This possible handicap has been made up by the return to form of Capt. Ray Hudson, whose absence from his end position reduces the caliber of the Georgetown line by about one-half.

Georgetown Line Is Improved.

Georgetown sends a vastly improved line into the game today. It is a line whose rigidity was forged in the heat of the N. Y. U. battle; a line that realizes that it has been up against perhaps the greatest charging line in the business. Western Maryland, although it boasts a front wall just about as effective as Georgetown's, will seem to pale to the Hoyas besides those New York bruisers.

With a rapidly drying field in prospect, Georgetown nevertheless plans to make the forward pass play an important part in its campaign today, but not at the expense of its shifty running campaign, which was a possibility if the rains of the early week had continued. Georgetown offers four outstanding ball carriers in Kelly and Parcells, mercury-ankled end runners, and Bradley and Stanley, sturdy line plungers.

Western Maryland is essentially a power-play team. Its main effect is achieved through tremendous leg drive, rather than deception. Its backs—Dunn, Gorski, Shepherd and Meko are best through the line, with Merko showing signs of shiftiness the others do not. The line is big and charges low, in sharp contrast to the Notre Dame-ish Georgetown line, which stands high and wards off the enemy by the use of the hands.

Howard U. Battles Virginia Union Here

Howard University's football team will meet up with Virginia Union at Howard Stadium this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Virginia Union, hailing from Richmond, is rated high in colored football ranks in this region.

Head Coach Verdell put the Bisons through the final workout of the week yesterday, lightening up the grid tasks after a full week of vigorous warming up. Assistant Coach Bell, former Ohio State luminary, donned football regalia again during the week to help train the Howard line.

NEW YORK, N. Y., Oct. 21.—Catholic Universitys' football team, possessing both speed and heft, and one of 1931's leading scorers in Tom Whelan, arrived in town tonight, retired early and were reported all set to invade Ebbet Field tomorrow against Manhattan College in a game that promises to be one of New York's best attractions for the day.

Pitting speed, passing and perfect rhythm against the massive men of Manhattan, Catholic University was a 5 to 4 favorite here tonight to win tomorrow's battle. Manhattan increased its prestige greatly this week, in practice scrimmages against Columbia, by holding Lou Little's roaring Lions scoreless. But Manhattan did not quite undo its sad 7-0 loss last Saturday to St. Thomas.

Manhattan worked out here today against its hefty freshman team, which was equipped with C. U. plays, and had little trouble stopping the plebes. The Manhattan Varsity found "C. U." particularly easy to outwit on forward passes, hurled by Manhattaan's triple threat backs, Bill Pendergast and Mal Thomas. Pendergast completed a 43-yard pass to Jack Sullivan and Thomas unleashed one of 40 yards to Al Donahue, Sullivan's running mate on end.

Tom Whelan, who has scored in every game C. U. has played since 1930, will be the center of all eyes tomorrow. His blocker, Capt. Bus Shearv, will also play a feature role.

CHEVY CHASE CHAMPION REPEATS

Susan Hacker Keeps Title; Mrs. Wrong Runner-Up.

DUPLICATING her first-round score of 94, Miss Susan Hacker yesterday made a successful defense of the Chevy Chase women's golf championship, outdistancing her nearest rival, Mrs. Hume Wrong, by eight strokes on a wind-swept course. Mrs. Wrong posted 95—101.

Two tied for third place—Mrs. A. S. Merrill, with 99—101—200, and Mrs. Harrison Brand, with 106—94—200. Mrs. T. C. Kincaid, tied with the champion the first day, with a 94, soared to 108 for a 202 total. Miss Louise Claytor posted 97—105—202. Mrs. L. C. Cameron had 103—104—207, and Mrs. Frank R. Keefer, 110—108—218.

Richard P. Whiteley turned back Frank T. Reeside yesterday to win the Liberty Cup championship at Chevy Chase. Whiteley held a 3 up advantage at the turn.

Mrs. C. P. Medley and Mrs. Otis F. Glenn reached the finals of the Kenwood Golf and Country Club women's championship yesterday, and will decide the title next week. Mrs. Medley eliminated Mrs. A. A. McEntee, 2 and 1, while Mrs. Glenn put out Virginia Pope, youthful feminine star, 3 and 2.

Miss Betty Garber yesterday was crowned 1932 golf queen at West Potomac by virtue of her victory over Mrs. Hope Wilkinson, 7 and 6, in the finals of the women's championship. Miss Garber shot the nine holes in 37, 8 above par, and started back, 3, 3, 4. She was 5 up at the turn.

The finals of the West Potomac men's tournament, with S. C. Wimsatt and W. J. Estes as the principals, will be held next Tuesday. Bob Stevenson, manager, announced.

J. H. Raymond scored a hole-in-one at West Potomac, holing his mashie shot on the 125-yard seventh. The ball struck the edge of the green and rolled into the cup.

Shirley L. Povich, sports editor, defeated Harris Hull, aviation editor, in a sternly contested match, 1 up, at East Potomac yesterday to win The Washington Post golf championship. Going into the final eighteen holes, Povich held a 2-up lead. Hull whittled down the advantage by winning five holes, and was 2 up at the end of the twenty-seventh. Povich rallied on the last nine, but Hull won the thirty-fifth to square the match. On the home hole Povich put together three nice shots to get home in 5 and win, while Hull took a 6.

Steele and Daviscourt In Wrestling Feature

MARYLAND U. READY FOR ST. JOHN'S

MORE than eager to check a losing streak that started October 1, Maryland University's football team meets St. John's, of Annapolis, at College Park today at 2:30 o'clock. The Old Liners have not tasted victory in the last three starts, their scalps having been taken by Virginia, V. P. I. and Duke. Maryland hopes to win today and in doing so achieve enough momentum to carry them over V. M. I. next week and serve them well against Vanderbilt November 5.

The Terrapin squad is in excellent shape, probably the best of the year, and will have Tom Webb, regular center, back at his post for the first time in two weeks.

Maryland should win by a couple of touchdowns.

The local team's superiority is in its backfield, where it has a sterling line plunger in Ray Poppelman, two fine end runners in Earl Widmyer and Paul Kiernan, and a great blocking back in Al Woods. Poppelman will not start today's game, his place having been taken by Bucky Buscher. Woods, whose main purpose in life at Maryland has been to hurl his frame against would-be tacklers, and end up in a cloud of dust while a teammate ran onto the glory of a touchdown, gets something of a break today. Coach Byrd yesterday moved this veteran up to quarter back, and it would not be a surprise today if Woods made great use of himself.

The local boys on the visiting team are Carl MacCartee, half back, former Techian; Ed Delisio, full back, former Centralite; Bernie Cassassa, and former Centralite, Austin Winston, lineman, former Techian; and Angus Lamond, lineman, former Centralite. McCartee and DeLisio are reputed to have the best chance of scoring against Maryland.

Special to The Washington Post.

TULSA, Okla., Oct. 21.—Johnny Fenlon, pepper-pot of the George Washington University Football Team's back field, will be unable to play against Tulsa here tomorrow as a result of the shoulder injury he received in a brisk workout in St. Louis yesterday, where the Colonials stopped off to break the tedium of a long train trip.

Finis Parish, also hurt in St. Louis yesterday, rounded into form overnight and will start the game at half back, with Joe Carter as a running mate. Johnny Baker, sophomore, will call signals in place of Fenlon, and "Otto" Kriemelmeyer will be at full back. The customary G. W. line of Chalmers and Mulvey, ends; Bill Parrish and Walter Slaird, tackles; "Zuzu" Stewart and Hardy Pearce, guards, and Frank Blackistone, center, will prevail.

McCarver Held In Reserve.

"Nig" McCarver, speediest of G. W.'s backs and the best passer on the squad, excepting Fenlon, will be held in reserve, to be flung in the game when there is need for speed galore.

The Colonials arrived here this morning and were entertained at luncheon by the Tulsa Chamber of Commerce. Tomorrow's game is by far the leading grid attraction of the day and should draw in the neighborhood of 10,000 fans.

Tulsa is full of civic pride over its team, which has lost but one game this year and that to Oklahoma—which later beat Kansas University by three touchdowns. The Tulsa back field boasts of three jackrabbit ball carriers—Chuck Keeling, Billy Boehm and Skeeter Berry. Tulsa will use virtually the same line-up that beat George Washington last year, 24 to 7. Tulsa won two years ago, 14 to 7, and is a slight favorite to win tomorrow.

Shorey's 69 Leads In Shenandoah Golf

Shorey was 6 strokes better than his nearest competitor, Jack Lowdon, of Staunton, professional; Nelson Long, of Roanoke; Al Houghton, Washington, and W. Cunningham, Washington, each of whom shot a 75.

Shorey turned in a par equaling 37 on the outgoing nine, but broke loose on the homeward stretch with a spectacular 32 that was 5 under par. A. B. Thome, of Washington, had 77.

Episcopal-Swavely Meet at Alexandria

Alexandria, Va., Oct. 21.—Episcopal High School gridders will meet another Old Dominion opponent in their drive for State honors on Hoxton field tomorrow when the Swavely Preparatory School warriors of Manassas come here for a game at 3 o'clock.

American U. Is Host To Bluefield Gridmen

American University has no set-up this afternoon when it meets Bluefield (W. Va.) College's eleven at A. U. Field at 2:30 o'clock.

Bluefield has won both games it has played this year, beating Morris-Harvey, 13-7, and Shenandoah, 20-0. American, loser of every game played last year, has made a notable comeback this season, losing a narrow decision to Hampden-Sydney and then coming back to beat Bridgewater.

N. Y. U. Risks Claims With Colgate

By ALAN GOULD
(Associated Press Sports Editor).

NEW YORK, Oct. 21 (A.P.).—College football moves into the big-game battle area tomorrow on all major fronts, with the sectional or national championship hopes of a score of teams more or less heavily involved.

The ranks of the big fellows as yet neither beaten nor tied in the early October skirmishing may be abruptly depleted. Not only do a half dozen of these leaders clash in such vital contests as the Stanford-Southern California, New York University-Colgate and Virginia Poly-Kentucky frays but other pace-setters face opposition of varying shades of intensity.

Attendance Decline Is Noticeable.

Despite the season's most spectacular offerings, thus far, including such glamorous traditional battles as the Yale-Army game at New Haven, the tumult and the roar will reach new "lows" for the post-war span of college football development. Where close to 500,000 spectators could be expected in normal times, less than 300,000 will see eight of tomorrow's outstanding contests, to be played in the most populous centers.

The critical Standford-Southern California game at Palo Alto, with the Indians a favorite for the first time in several years, probably will attract close to 65,000 for the day's biggest turnout. The same game drew 95,000 to the Olympic Stadium in Los Angeles last year.

In the East the N. Y. U.-Colgate tussle between two well-matched rivals for sectional honors probably will attract 50,000 customers to the Yankee Stadium and, for the first time, outdraw the colorful Yale-Army game. Estimates today were that no more than 40,000 would journey to the Yale Bowl, where the Cadets will be the heavy favorites to trounce the Elis. This game has usually been a sellout and last year drew 70,000 fans.

Crowds of 20,000 to 35,000 are expected to see the outstanding games in the Middle West, featuring North-

FAIR IMAGE GALLOPS TO 3-LENGTH VICTORY AT LAUREL

Schmidt Filly Wins at $22 Mutuel

Chrysostom Is Second as Fingal, Choice, Runs Far Back.

By WALTER HAIGHT.

FAIR IMAGE has been a busy little filly. She was brought to the races last winter at the Fair grounds when most of those she met at Laurel yesterday were swinging on the gate or whatever it is that baby horses do to amuse themselves. She was out Chicago way all summer, finding her best stride in the heat at Hawthorne to win two races and she was right on the job for her Maryland fling, when the Havre de Grace meeting opened. She will probably go South this winter to begin the cycle again. But she thrives on work.

Yesterday, this daughter of Pharamond II, made a show of her field in the outstanding race of the day, a six furlong sprint for juveniles entered at $5,000 claiming prices. She had Melvin Lewis, a boy she met in Chicago, in her saddle and the result wasn't even close. Three lengths of the infield shrubbery could be seen between her and Chrysostom, with Cattail third, another five lengths away.

The winner, the property of Mrs. W. E. Schmidt rewarded supporters with a satisfying mutuel of $22.20. The cheer that accompanied the posting of the figures revealed that the two-dollar public was well represented. Some 10,000 saw the featureless program.

Cattail, Jacob's Ladder and My Counsellor did some smart early running but the race was over on the far turn when Fair Image struck her stride.

That last jump, like the first hundred years, is the hardest. For the second time in as many steeplechases, the brush, a sixteenth from the finish, was the deciding factor. Yesterday it was Mrs. T. J. Donohue's Luckite which profited. Luckite came over the final fence a half length behind Louis D'Or, but the latter made a bad landing and before he could recover, the ultimate winner was across the finish line, three lengths in front. Louis D'Or then had to hustle to take the place from Huffy. Flavius and Willingdon were the ones to fall in the field of fourteen. George Jessel, named for the stage playboy, provided the big laugh of the race as he trailed the field by some 200 lengths while taking the jumps from a squatting position.

Matadi, a lukewarm favorite, defeated the field seeking the third over the 1 1/8-mile course, running Meade and his long shot, Durbaru into defeat and then sailing away from Skirt in the stretch.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—CANTERWOOD, $36.10, $14.50, $7.70; FLORA CANTER, $5.30, $3.20; FELICIANA (Labrot entry), $3.20.

CANTERWOOD, away forwardly and gaining steadily after the initial furlong, swung to the outside of FLORA CANTER when reaching the home stretch and, wearing the latter down, drew out gradually. FLORA CANTER opened up a winning lead when leaving the back stretch, saved much ground, but faltered fast when challenged. FELICIANA, breaking from the outside, was unable to threaten the leaders at any stage. FAIR BILLY circled his field and finished stoutly. TOWN SQUARE had no mishaps. RUSTIC LADY tired.

SECOND RACE—About two miles. Purse, $1,500; claiming. Steeplechase. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 2:20. Off at 2:26½. Winner, Mrs. T. J. Two-dollar mutuels paid—LUCKITE, $9.10, $5.10, $3.20; LOUIS D'OR, $4.40, $3.20; HUFFY, $3.40.

LUCKITE, kept in the first flight and fencing cleverly, went to LOUIS D'OR at the final fence and drew out under pressure when the pacemaker made a bad landing. LOUIS D'OR, steadied in front early, took contention from FLAVIUS, saved ground, but faltered when he bobbled at the last fence while W. Rea lost his stirrup irons. HUFFY improved his position steadily and was gaining slowly at the end. OLD MONSIEUR could not improve his position at any stage. DOCK LIGHT was never dangerous. WILLINGDON struck his fifteenth repeatedly and fell at the last fence. FLAVIUS was racing stoutly when he fell at the twelfth jump.

THIRD RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 2:56. Off at 2:58. Winner, W. C. Weant's b. c. (4), by Durbar II—Photoplay. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $700; second, $200; third, $100. Time, 0:24 3-5, 0:50 2-5, 1:17, 1:45 2-5, 1:59 2-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—MATADI, $5.20, $3.40, $2.50; SKIRT, $5.20, $3.70; DADDY NELSON, $4.80.

MATADI, taken under steadying restraint for the first six furlongs, wore DURBARU down when midway of the last turn, was placed to severe pressure and outstayed SKIRT. Latter entered contention stoutly in the final half mile, made a strong effort at the final furlong pole, but hung thereafter. DADDY NELSON, closer up than usual, was easily best of the others when assuming a contending position. DURBARU weakened steadily when the rest came.

FOURTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:30. Off at 3:32. Winner, R. S. Clark's ch. c. (3), by General Lee—Oratrix. Trained by M. Smart. Value to winner, $700; second, $200; third, $100. Time, 0:24 3-5, 0:50 2-5, 1:17 2-5, 1:46, 1:59 4-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—MARSE ROBERT, $9.30, $5.10, $4.80; WORTHINGTON, $19.50, $14.30; POLITEN, $5.20.

MARSE ROBERT, taken to the outside when settled on the back stretch, raced into a brief lead when midway of the final turn, withstood a stout drive willingly and was under strong urging at the end. He pulled up lame. WORTHINGTON, favored by improved handling, saved ground wherever possible, but weakened after a determined bid when straightened into the home stretch. POLITEN, on the outside in the first five furlongs, was taken into the deepest footing in the final half mile, but continued with good energy. BURNSIDE, rated along until challenged, weakened fast during the stretch run. MARGARET MC had a rough trip along with THE TATTLER going to the first turn. MAJOR GENERAL stopped.

FIFTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 2-year-olds. Start good from stalls. Won easily; place, same. Went to post at 4:05. Off at 4:08. Winner, Mrs. W. E. Schmidt's br. c. Two-dollar mutuels paid—FAIR IMAGE, $22.20, $7.70, $5.30; CHRYSOSTOM, $5.90, $4.50; CATTAIL, $7.40.

FAIR IMAGE, kept well up with the early pace, sprinted into a commanding lead when reaching the home stretch and had speed in reserve at the end. CHRYSOSTOM, taken up shortly after the break, weaved his way into contention on the inside and finished fast when clear. CATTAIL, a strong factor, disposed of JACOB'S LADDER, but was unable to stay when challenged. NOSE IN could not threaten when the final drive came. HAPPY ANNE broke slowly and was outrun.

SIXTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stalls. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:40. Off at 4:41½. Winner, E. C. Grogan's b. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—WISE COUNT, $7.50, $4.30, $3.30; MONEL, $5.40, $4.30; PROMETHEUS, $3.80.

WISE COUNT, having the most early speed, and going to the front at once, saved ground while displaying his best speed and, holding on gamely, outlasted MONEL. Latter, a strong factor throughout, fought it out with good courage. PROMETHEUS, sluggish in reaching his best stride, entered into contention with a rush when taken to the outside and finished resolutely. BRIGHT BIRD went evenly.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gates. Won easily; place, same. Went to post at 5:10. Off at 5:12. Winner, L. Two-dollar mutuels paid—THE DOCTOR, $5.00, $3.10, $2.80; MEETING PLACE, $4.00, $3.70; GUERANDE, $10.60.

THE DOCTOR, in excellent form, was kept into a forward position early, responded readily to overtake MEETING PLACE and drew out smartly when shaken up during the stretch run. MEETING PLACE, rated in front and saving ground, could not stay with the winner when placed to pressure. GUERANDE, kept under urging from the start, finished gamely. RUANE, as usual, slow to begin, moved up when put to a drive, but hung in the last furlong. FLYING MAX was outrun the entire trip.

Stocks Continue Declines; Offerings Include Leaders

A number of 3 to 5 point net declines were sprinkled through the list at the close and many leaders were down at least 2. Heaviness affected all groups. Sales on the stock exchange totaled 1,244,195 shares.

Some brokers felt that Montagu Norman's remarks on world economic conditions had had an adverse effect here; yet London markets were steady by comparison with ours. Another reason offered in explanation of the rather sharp relapse was that price cuts on steel rails and bearish implications for the near term, a question being raised as to whether roads, in their present financial condition, would place in the next few months enough new business to make the lower scale profitable. Over the long run, however, the reduction was looked upon as favorable.

The stock market was thin rather than weak and professional operations doubtless acounted for a large percentage of the transactions. Offerings concentrated in leaders, with rails bearing their full proportion of offerings. Union Pacific lost more than 5, Santa Fe was down nearly 5, and New York Central, Southern Pacific, Northern Pacific, and Chesapeake & Ohio yielded 2 to 3. U. S. Steel netted 3 points lower, the preferred 4, American Telephone, Allied Chemical, Du Pont and Case dropped 4 to 5.

General Motors earnings figures for the third quarter and nine months, published just as the market closed, probably conformed with expectations. There was an operating loss of $4,464,229 for the recent three months which after preferred dividend payments made a common-stock deficiency equal to 16 cents a share. The company earned only 8 cents a share on the junior equity during the entire nine months. However, with inventories well deflated, it has been able to maintain a strong position in cash, this item amounting to $209,000,000 on September 30. The report naturally revived discussion as to dividend payments on the common; action is scheduled for November 2.

Tomorrow's statement on freight car loadings is being counted on for a gain. Statistics will cover the week ended October 15 and if a rise occurred, as seems assured by advance data, it will mean that an advancing trend has been maintained a full fortnight after the usual time for seasonal slackening.

Bradstreet's Weekly, commenting on retail and wholesale trade conditions, noted "an encouraging amount of optimism," which sentiment appears to be overbalancing uncertainties. Morale, it is said, has been stiffened by the persistent seasonal gains. Dun's found expansion less extended, but regarded this as natural after the recovery since mid-July.

THE MARKETS AT A GLANCE

What the Stock Market Did

	Fri.	Thurs.
Advances	54	146
Declines	401	249
Unchanged	100	107
Total issues traded	555	502

Stocks.

The downward drift continued along a wide front. Losses averaged 3.2 points. However, the volume of trading did not increase, and stood at 1,244,195 shares. Brokers blamed Montagu Norman's remarks for slump, although the London prices held up well.

Bonds.

Market lost stability and sank fourtenths of a point. Dealing increased slightly in volume to $8,082,000, but remained below normal. Secondary rails suffered heaviest. German loans declined. U. S. Treasury issues were down.

Curb.

Prices wilted from a fraction to 4 points. Utilities recorded losses. Specialties joined the break. The trading volume increased to 150,000 shares.

Wheat.

Anxiety over drought reports overcame bearish tendencies, and wheat closed nervous ⅛ to ¼ down to a shade advance. Corn was up; oats, down. Government steps to remove restrictions on futures helped to restore confidence. December wheat sold at 48¾ to 48⅞ cents.

Cotton.

Prices worked slightly lower on Southern selling. The general market dropped 4 to 9 points. December contracts closed at 6.19. Liverpool reported hedging taken by Bombay buyers.

Spanish Bank Rate Cut.

Madrid, Oct. 21 (U.P.).—The bank rate was reduced today by ½ of 1 per cent to 6 per cent.

FOREIGN MARKETS.

(Associated Press.)

London—Business on the stock exchange was moderate and the tendency of quotations was affected by profit-taking especially in silt-edged securities and gold mining shares. Industrials and Argentine rails improved slightly in the late trading. The market closed irregular.

Paris—Yesterday's heaviness in Wall Street was reflected on the bourse today. Movements were narrow and rentes and international issues declined. Oil shares were fairly well held and the closing was heavy.

Berlin—Dr. Luther's speech on the need of world trade by Germany strengthened opening prices on the boerse. Issues failed to hold their gains, however, and the closing was weaker.

CURB'S PRICES WILT ON HEAVIER TRADING

Utilities Record Losses in Sales Volume Totaling 150,000 Shares.

New York, Oct. 21 (A.P.).—In slightly increased trading, aggregating about 150,000 shares against 120,000 yesterday, prices on the curb market today wilted from fractions to as much as 4 points for the more active issues.

The flattening out of recent gains in power prodcution apparently found belated recognition in liquidation of utility issues. Electric Bond & Share common dipped 4 points and the preferred issues yielded a point or so. Losses of around a point were recorded by American Gas & Electric, Consolidated Gas of Baltimore, and American Light & Traction. Cities Service, Central States Electric and United Light & Power "A" wre each a small fraction lower.

Deere & Co. reflected an early sag in wheat prices, giving up ½ point. Specialties like great Atlantic & Pacific and Aluminum Co. broke around 4 points in quiet dealings. Swift International was down 1.

Bennett to State Stand On Wheat Bounty Plan

Ottawa, Oct. 21 (A.P.).—Prime Minister R. B. Bennett will make a statement in Parliament next week on the proposed bounty for wheat growers, he announced today.

The government has been urged to pay a bounty of 5 cents a bushel.

Custom Smelters Offer Copper Lots at 6 Cents

New York, Oct. 21 (A.P.).—Custom smelters were reported willing today to sell some copper at 6 cents a pound delivered. They had been holding the price at 6¼ cents, but stated that stocks had begun to accumulate due principally to scrap shipments.

Shipments of finished copper and brass products to consumers were reported somewhat better. September shipments were described as the best since last spring. Electrolytic copper was quoted at 6 cents a pound, for domestic shipment, up to the end of next March.

Dried Fruit Prices Steady.

New York, Oct. 21 (A.P.).—The dried fruit market maintains a steady tone, with demand for apricots showing increased breadth, according to dealers.

Hide Prices React.

Steel Imports Cut Wages In U. S., Convention Is Told

Pittsburgh, Oct. 21 (A.P.).—J. W. Thomsen told the tenth annual convention of the American Institute of Steel Construction today that 240,000 American workmen were deprived of a week's work last year by importation of foreign steel.

Mr. Thomsen, vice president of the Stupp Brothers Bridge & Iron Construction Co., of St. Louis, Md., addressed more than 100 representatives of the steel fabricating industry from all parts of the country.

"The importation of steel from continental Europe to the United States," the speaker continued, "has increased rapidly in the last two years and due to the very low percentage of operations, the loss of this tonnage has been felt keenly by our American mills."

H. B. Hirsh, of the Belmont Iron Works, Philadelphia, another speaker, said employes as well as managements "have been called upon to make up the losses in profits due to the ruthless competition that has been rampant in the steel construction industry."

Mr. Hirsh asserted "the industry should be policed either by the Government or by some private agency to check the practices which are forcing many concerns into difficulties."

Discussing new markets for steel, T. J. Foster, of Long Island City, N. Y., said that "only a small portion of the apartments and residences in New York City have been constructed of noninflammable materials."

Foster, chairman of the board of the National Bridge Works, added that "residences in our great cities should be made safe for habitation and as that is done the need for steel will increase."

After a series of tests and round table discussions, the delegates are scheduled to elect officers late today, select the city for next year's convention, and adjourn.

Futures Reform Sought by Hoover

Efforts Being Made to Ease Grain Market Rule in Chicago.

Chicago, Oct. 21 (A.P.).—The Chicago Tribune says negotiations are reported under way between President Hoover and the Chicago Board of Trade on the question of lifting restrictions on trading in grain futures with the view of easing the market situation.

The Tribune recalls that P. B. Carey, president of the Board of Trade, and other representatives had a conference with President Hoover three weeks ago in Washington. Since then, the Tribune said, it had been learned on what appeared to be good authority that President Hoover had instructed Walter Newton, one of his secretaries, to confer with Secretary of Agriculture Arthur M. Hyde, who was said to have looked favorably on the Board of Trade's plans.

Restrictions on trading in grain futures have been complained of for years. Under present regulations all trades of 500,000 bushels of wheat, corn and oats, and 200,000 bushels of rye, must be reported to the Grain Futures Administration. The negotiations under way, according to the Tribune, would, if successful, provide for the handling of these reports by the Board of Trade clearing house.

Grand Trunk Elects Hungerford.

Detroit, Oct. 21 (A.P.).—Directors of the Grand Trunk Western Railroad Co., meeting here today, announced the election of S. J. Hungerford, of Montreal, head of the Canadian National Railroad system, as president of the Grand Trunk Co.

Japan Hits Lamp Trade, U. S. Told

Cheap Imports Attacked Before Commisioner of Customs.

(Associated Press.)

Complaint that importation of cheap incandescent lamps from Japan was injuring American industry were made yesterday before the Commissioner of Customs, F. X. A. Eble, by representatives of American manufacturers.

Data that the Japanese lamps were sold at a higher price in the home market than in the American market and that the action was injuring the American industry was presented. To have the antidumping act invoked, it is necessary to prove that a product is sold here at less than in the home market or less than cost of manufacturing, and that it injures American business.

Edward J. Poor, representing the Hygrade Sylvania Corporation, Salem, Mass., said electric lamps which the Japanese sold to retail trade at 2.6 cents were similar to lamps his company produced in which the material cost alone was 3.24 cents. N. L. Sloan, representing the General Electric Co., testified that the Japanese had taken away the entire Christmas tree electric light market from Americans.

BOND MARKET SAGS IN LIGHTER DEALING

Loss of Four-Tenths Made in Turnover Total of $8,082,000.

New York, Oct. 21 (A.P.).—The bond market today lost some of its recent stability as it joined stocks in a downward movement. While prices dropped from fractions to 3 or more points in various groups, the trading volume was still considerably below normal. Sales totaled only $8,082,000, par value. The average for 60 domestic corporate bonds was off fourtenths of a point.

Most of the higher grade issues suffered with the lesser maturities, but their losses generally were of a minor nature.

United States Government securities were in fair supply, all of the Treasuries closing moderately lower. At the same time Liberty first 4¼s firmed slightly.

The secondary rails, as usual, were the heaviest losers. Among these were some loans of Allegheny Corporation, Baltimore & Ohio, Chesapeake Corporation, St. Paul, Chicago & Northwestern, Erie Great Northern, Rock Island, Missouri Pacific, New York Central and New Haven.

Among the softer utilities and industrials were bonds of International Telephone, Chile Copper, Federal Light & Traction, Goodyear, Otis Steel, Paramount Publix, United Drug and U. S. Rubber.

German government obligations lost from 1 to 2 points and issues of Italy, Argentina, Australia and Belgium were heavy. Strength was shown by bonds of Poland, Colombia, Cuba and Uruguay. British 5½s were a trifle easier.

Textile Workers Seek 20 Per Cent Pay Boost

New York, Oct. 21 (A.P.).—James Starr, secretary-treasurer of the United Textile Workers of America, announced today that a request from workers in the wide sheeting industry for a 20 per cent increase in wages was adopted today at a meeting of the International Emergency Board members.

"The improved conditions in the wide sheeting industry," Mr. Starr's statement said, "from our workers' intimate knowledge of the situation, were brought forcibly to the attention of the International Emergency Board members at the headquarters of the United Textile Workers of America, in session here today. "The many requests coming from the workers in wide sheeting mills throughout the United States compelled the workers to request, through us, a 20 per cent increase of wages."

Industrial Production Improving, Dun Says

New York, Oct. 21 (A.P.).—Industrial production in the third quarter, though running 26 per cent below last year, made a definitely better comparison than in the second quarter, said a survey issued by R. G. Dun & Co. today.

The Dun index of industrial activity showed a seasonal third-quarter gain in activity in 1930, and although a rise did appear in 1931, it was very moderate. The gain this year from 60.7 per cent for August to 62.4 per cent for September was greater than that of 1931 and was the most substantial third-quarter rise in activity for the last three years, the agency declared.

Mr. Allen told Irwin Kurtz, the referee, that the losses were $1,382,681 in sales and $3,128,974 in real esate.

COTTON PRICES CUT BY SOUTHERN SALES

December Closes at 6.19 as General Market Loses 4 to 9 Points.

New York, Oct. 21 (A.P.).—Cotton worked slightly lower today on increased Southern selling and liquidation.

December contracts, which had rallied from 6.20 to 6.32 around midday, closed at 6.19, with the general market closing barely steady at net declines of 4 to 9 points.

The opening was 1 point lower to 3 points higher, with the later months relatively steady on trade buying, which included a moderate demand through houses with Liverpool and Japanese connections.

Southern selling forced the general list 4 to 6 points net lower, but offerings tapered off at the decline, and the midday rally sent the active months about 5 to 9 points net higher, with March advancing from 6.39 to 6.47.

Hedging Checks Advance.

The advance was checked by increased hedging or selling through spot houses with Southern connections in the late trading, and prices made new lows for the day in the last half hour, closing at reactions of 10 to 14 points from the best.

A private report estimated ginnings prior to October 18 at 7,066,000 bales and another made the amount 7,187,327 bales, compared with the official report of 9,496,965 bales ginned to the corresponding date last year.

Liverpool cables said that hedging had been taken by Bombay buying and trade selling in that market and that India was buying cotton goods more freely. Exports today, 16,971, making 1,770,715 so far this season. Port receipts, 117,308. United States port stocks, 4,033,973.

GRAIN VALUES RISE SLIGHTLY ON SALES

Market Closes Unsettled as Drought News Overcomes Bearish Moves.

Chicago, Oct. 21 (A.P.).—Anxiety regarding drought in huge sections of domestic winter wheat territory did much among grain traders today to overcome bearish effects of stock market weakness. Kansas, Nebraska, and Oklahoma advices said seeding delays suggested a pronounced reduction of acreage.

An additional steadying influence was that for the first time of late there were indications of liberal export demand for North American wheat. Evidence pointed also to good-sized purchasing of corn here to go to Seaboard exporters.

Wheat closed unsettled at ⅛ to ¼ decline to a shade advance, compared with yesterday's finish; corn, ⅛ to ¼ up; oats unchanged to a shade lower, and provisions unchanged to a setback of 2 cents.

Canada Ships Wheat.

It was estimated that upward of 1,000,000 bushels of wheat from Canada were taken today for shipment overseas. There were reports, too, that threshing returns warranted a decrease of 34,000,000 bushels in Canadian crop estimates, as compared with a month ago. Besides, advices at hand showed that the movement of wheat to terminal markets both north and south of the Canadian boundary was rapidly falling off.

Helping to restore confidence among wheat traders were reports that Government restrictions on future delivery dealings in grain would soon be removed by the Secretary of Agriculture. Doubts were expressed that such action would be of material immediate benefit, coming when the greatest surplus of wheat in the Nation's history had been accumulated. Ultimately, however, the removal of restrictions, pit experts said, would prove of immense benefit.

Corn and oats swayed with wheat. Shipping demand here for corn was active, though handicapped by ¼ cent advance in lake freight rates.

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS —By John Hix

ONE of the classics of trick football plays was the "hidden ball" play by which Pop Warner's Carlisle Indians scored an easy touchdown over Harvard in 1903. Big Dillon, the Indian player who ran easily to Harvard's goal line unnoticed by the opposing players, carried the ball from the kick-off and never laid his hands on it—a teammate had tucked it under Dillon's jersey.

The Carlisle players, receiving the ball at the kick-off, grouped together as if forming the old flying-wedge formation to return the ball into Harvard territory. During the formation of this wedge the ball was slipped under Dillon's jersey and he, detaching himself from the group, eased over to the edge of the field and then ran for a touchdown. In the meantime the Harvard team piled the fake wedge formation into a heap.

Strange as it seems, when Dillon completed his run across the Harvard line he could not down the ball. He could not reach it with his hands, and rules held that until the ball touched the ground it was not downed. Another player of the Carlisle team came to his rescue, however, and pulled the ball from its hiding place, downing it.

Dillon carried the ball over the line, but as he did not down it, some superexperts on football rules held that he should not be given credit for the touchdown; that Jimmy Johnson, who really downed the ball, scored the goal. Dillon, however, has always been given credit for the run and the touchdown.

2 THIEVES IMPRISON MAYFLOWER GUEST AND GET $2,000 LOOT

$13,000 Is Taken in Other Robberies; Police Start Drive to Halt Crime.

Two hold-up men waylaid Bernard Putnam, a newspaper correspondent from Holland, who is touring the country, in his room at the Mayflower Hotel, early Thursday night, and robbing him of jewelry and clothing valued in excess of $2,000, imprisoned him in a closet, barricading the door with a trunk.

Other robberies in which about $13,000 worth of merchandise was stolen, were reported to police who are concentrating their efforts to halt the wave of thefts in the city.

Putnam aroused guests at the hotel by frantically knocking on the doors of the closet. Employes released him. He told police that his assailants had entered his room and robbed him of a valuable ring, a quantity of clothing and $900 in cash.

Other Jewelry Thefts.

Mrs. Charles Cramer, of 4900 Hill Brook Lane northwest, discovered that jewelry valued at $8,000, and including a diamond studded ring valued at $6,000, was stolen from a jewelry box in a closet at her home. Leon W. Cramer, of Philadelphia, also reported a gem theft. He told police that jewelry valued at $300 had been stolen from his car when he parked it at First and F streets northwest yesterday morning.

Thirty-four cases, each containing 10,000 cigarettes, were stolen from a freight car en route to Washington from Monroe, Va. Police notified local dealers to be on the lookout for any one offering a large quantity of cigarettes for sale.

Police yesterday launched an investigation of a robbery of a smokehouse at 635 G street southeast, where a pool of blood was discovered near the broken doors of the establishment. Smoked meats valued at $20 were stolen, according to a report by Charles C. Schroth, proprietor.

Woman Threatened.

Mrs. Mary Lord, of 1860 Clydesdale place northwest, reported that a thief who forced the door to her apartment while she was asleep early yesterday threatened her with a gun, saying he wanted money. He was frightened away before he could take anything.

Two armed bandits who stepped from the shadows under the railway bridge in East Potomac Park robbed George J. Chanides, of 1310 Euclid street northwest, of $49 last night, he told police. The pair drove off in a roadster, he said.

Max Libster reported to police that a fur coat, valued at $350, was stolen from his fur shop at 716 Thirteenth street late yesterday. He said it was apparently taken while he was busy in the rear of his shop.

MAN KILLED IN LEAP AS WIFE'S GRIP FAILS

Hurtling from an eleventh story apartment window at the Dupont Circle Apartments, Dupont Circle and Connecticut avenue, George T. Webster, 49, retired electrical contractor and patient at St. Elizabeths Hospital, was killed almost instantly yesterday.

An attendant, assigned to care for Webster, while he visited his wife at their home, 2127 P street northwest, waited outside, police said, and was unable to avert the tragedy. Deputy Coroner Christopher Murphy ordered an inquest for 11 o'clock this morning at the Morgue. Among those summoned to testify are the hospital attendant, Raymond P. Myers.

Webster stepped out of the window, his wife, Florence Webster told police, as the couple inspected the apartment suite with a view to occupying it when her husband was released from the Federal institution. Mrs. Webster said she was inspecting the pantry when she heard the bedroom window open.

Rushing into the room, Mrs. Webster said her husband was hanging by his finger tips from the outside ledge. She cried to Miss Anne Bryant, apartment clerk, who was showing the apartment to the couple, to obtain aid and the latter rushed into the hall. Mrs. Webster said her husband's hands slipped from her grasp.

Miss Bryant said Webster had looked over the apartment earlier in the day in company with the attendant.

Capital Salesman Victim Of Virginia HoldupGang

Virginia State, King George County and Fredericksburg city officers last night were earching for the white and colored bandits who robbed J. H. Wharton, of 1448 Park road, a traveling salesman, of $36 yesterday morning.

Wharton was robbed at pistol point on Kings highway several miles from Fredericksburg. He was forced from his car and led to a farmhouse by the holdup men. After robbing him, the pair threw away the keys to his car and told him to stand facing the wall of the farmhouse for half an hour.

Opening their three-day session at the Washington Hotel, members of the American Association of School Physicians emphasized the urgent need for scientific health programs in the schools of the Nation.

$7 Taxi Holdup Reported.

Glover Park Citizens Claim Member Record

With only two or three homes in its territory not represented in its membership, the Glover Park Citizens Association now lays claim to the membership record of the federation. Other associations have larger memberships, but the Glover Park group maintains it has the best percentage.

At last night's meeting, 31 new members were added, making a total of 378 now enrolled. It might also claim the largest attendance record on its 400 persons at the meeting in the auditorium of the Industrial Home School. The association announced three floats have been prepared for the Halloween parade of the federation.

2-Year Term Given In Theft of $11,850

Sentence Follows Plea of Guilty of Embezzling Bank Funds.

Justice Daniel W. O'Donoghue yesterday in District Supreme Court sentenced Bernard L. Mann, 24 years old, formerly a teller in the Morris Plan Bank, to two years in prison, following a plea of guilty to embezzling $11,850 of the bank's money.

Mann left the bank May 28 last, and failed to report for work the next day. He was traced to the Pacific Coast after an investigation showed a shortage in his accounts. It was also shown that at the start of his trip Mann had taken unto himself a bride, who was arrested with him.

In asking for leniency for Mann, his attorney said that his father had been killed in Lynchburg, Va., while he was performing his duties as a city detective. At that time Mann was only 12 years old.

Skilled Man Offers Self For Board and Shelter

Despairing of being able to find work and tired and sick of living on charity, a man 51 years old told The Post last night that he is willing to do any kind of work for his room and board. He said he had been without employment since being laid off by a machine shop in Cleveland a year ago. He has worked in machine shops for 25 years, but has given up hope of being able to return to his trade of tool and die maker.

Believing this man is worthy, The Post is taking this means of announcing his offer. The name and temporary address of the man can be obtained by calling the City Editor, National 4205.

WATER DEPARTMENT AUDITOR GAS SUICIDE

Thomas L. Sommerville, 30, Found Dead by Wife as She Enters Home.

Thomas L. Sommerville, 30, 826 Underwood street northwest, an auditor in the Water Department of the District Government, was found asphyxiated late yesterday in his bedroom above the kitchen in which gas jets were open.

The body was found by his wife, Rena, when she returned home from work.

After investigation, the coroner last night announced the death was a suicide.

It was found that the electric lights had been turned off, and the electric clock had stopped at 10:30. Apparently the jet had been open practically all day.

Sommerville was a grandson of the late Thomas L. Sommerville, who was president of the old City National Bank in Fifteenth street. He served in the Navy during the war and later in the Merchant Marine.

The District Bicentennial Commission has awarded the community of Anacostia first prize for the greatest improvement in lawns and gardens since the July inspection by the lawn and garden committee of the commission, it was announced at a meeting of the Anacostia Citizens Association last night.

A trophy will be presented to the community at the November meeting. At the same time J. A. Cook, of 1517 T street southeast, will receive a gold medal for the best lawn and garden in the community.

Plans for participation in the Halloween parade were approved by the association and members of the various standing committees were appointed.

Spread Work Step Is Organized Here

Head of Capital Traction Company Presides at First Meeting.

John H. Hanna, president of the Capital Traction Co., presided at a meeting yesterday afternoon at the United States Chamber of Commerce Building for the organization of a "spread-the-work" movement in Washington. Representatives of 50 business and trade organizations attended.

The objective of the movement, which has been started in other localities, is to decrease unemployment by the spreading of work among the greatest possible number of men through shortening work periods and schedules.

The banking and industrial committee of the Fifth Federal Reserve District is cooperating with Mr. Hanna and the committee.

Lip-Reading Classes Changed.

The lip-reading classes, which the Washington League for the Hard of Hearing conducts each week in cooperation with the Episcopal Hospital, will meet every Tuesday night, instead of Thursday, as was announced last week. One meeting will be held at 7:45 p. m. at the dispensary of the hospital, 1147 Fifteenth street northwest. The clubrooms of the League for the Hard of Hearing, 826 Connecticut avenue, will be open every afternoon, and a member of the club will be present to receive visitors and give information.

PAINTERS TO INSIST ON SHORTER HOURS

Employers Association Will Meet Today to Study Union's Demands.

Union painters decided last night not to back down on demands for a six-hour day and five-day week, which employers charge are holding up completion of the new House Office Building and two other large projects here.

At a meeting last night at 704 Sixth street northwest, Local No. 368, Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators and Paperhangers of America, voted to hold out for a 30-hour week to spread employment through the union.

Earlier, A. R. Thomas, president of the Master Painters Association of Washington, announced that a meeting scheduled for yesterday was called off pending action at last night's union session. The association will meet at noon Monday, when "open shop" proposals will be considered, he said.

B. F. Walen, business agent of the painters' union, said last night some of the contending contractors had met their terms. He predicted the House Office Building would go on a six-hour basis Monday.

"It costs the contractors no more," he said. "Painters under the new arrangement will receive $8.25 a day instead of $11, and more jobs will be created."

New Eliot Foundation Chapter Established

Headquarters of a new community chapter of the Eliot Foundation of Adult Education was opened yesterday at Wardman Park Hotel, it was announced by Miss Rena V. Schwartz, who is in charge of activities of Washington chapters.

Man Gets 10-Year Term In Two Safe Crackings

A tell-tale thumb print on one of two safes that were "blown" in the office of the Hahn Shoe Co. last February, yesterday was the deciding factor in sending William Davis, of New Jersey, to prison for ten years.

Chief Justice A. A. Wheat, before whom Davis was tried last week, gave him the limit on a charge of housebreaking. There was no money stolen from the safes, but both were destroyed.

Research Pressed By Typhus Victim

Dr. Dyer Continues Experiments From His Bed in Naval Hospital.

From his bedside he gives instructions to his assistants, who are carrying on the work at which he contracted the disease several weeks ago.

Dr. Dyer is not yet able to sit up. However, physicians at the hospital said that he is rapidly gaining strength.

VACANT STRUCTURES FOR HOMELESS WILL BE ASKED OF GRANT

District Commission and Welfare Heads Confer on Winter Crisis.

The District Commissioners plan to ask Lieut. Col. U. S. Grant 3d, director of public buildings and public parks, for permission to utilize vacant buildings on park sites for housing Washington's homeless this winter, it was stated yesterday after a conference between welfare officials and the municipal heads.

An investigation also was ordered to determine the possibility of devoting certain District-owned buildings to the same use. The parks office, however, is known to have at least a dozen vacant structures that would be suitable for occupation.

The Commissioners and welfare officials yesterday morning conferred with the Bureau of the Budget and reached a practical agreement as to the methods which will be employed in expediting special relief legislation when Congress reconvenes. Other conferences will be held, however, and some time before formal request for an appropriation is made the amount of money to be asked will be agreed upon.

Further conferences as to meeting immediate needs, in line with recommendations made by the emergency relief committee, will be held today.

Because of a false published report that President Hoover had declined to support the District government in its efforts to obtain an early appropriation for relief of the unemployed, the Commissioners yesterday issued a formal statement that he assured them of his interest and "that he will use every means in his power to assist in the procuring of these funds."

Hight to Retire As Willard Head

To Terminate 31 Years as President After Oct. 31; Successor Not Named.

Frank S. Hight, after 31 years of service with the Willard Hotel, and now president of the hotel, announced yesterday that he will retire from this position after October 31. He would not reveal his future plans. His successor has not yet been named.

Mr. Hight came to the Willard Hotel as manager in 1901. In 1907 he was made president. During this period the hotel was operated by the Willard Hotel Co. When the hotel was taken over by the Capitol Hotel Co., a subsidiary of the Boomer-du Pont Properties Corporation, Mr. Hight was appointed managing director. In July, 1929, when the hostelry became the Willard Hotel, Inc., Mr. Hight was named president.

Mr. Hight is one of the best known hotel men in the country, and is a member of the executive council of the American Hotel Association. Before coming to Washington he was at the Waldorf-Astoria in New York, serving under George C. Boldt.

His eleven months as superintendent of police here constituted "the most remarkable experience in my career," Brig. Gen. Pelham D. Glassford last night told the Men's Club of the Foundry Methodist Episcopal Church in an informal address.

Praise for the personnel of the police force was voiced by Gen. Glassford, who related several instances of outstanding valor by local policemen. He urged a "kindlier feeling for the man on the beat."

Gen. Glassford told the churchmen that 55 per cent of the felonies committed in the District over a given recent period were traced to youths under 21 years of age.

Gen. Glassford's Report Withheld by Commission

The annual report of the Metropolitan Police Department, containing several recommendations for District legislation, yesterday was on the desk of Commissioner Herbert B. Crosby, but the latter declined to make it public until he had "time to look it over."

Brig. Gen. Pelham D. Glassford prepared the report and the proposals after conferences with Corporation Counsel William W. Bride. Among them is one that the police be authorized by law to deal with future marches into the Capital.
